Amateur Radio Unique Contest

Members of the Salem Amateur Radio club will participate in a unique contest with other amateur radio clubs throughout the nation Saturday and Sunday.

Objective of the contest is to contact as many stations as possible in 14 hours with two-way radio equipment. The contest runs from 4 p.m. Saturday to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Last year, the Salem club finished third in the national contest. Local radiomen averaged about a contact per minute for the first three or four hours.

To participate in the contest, members of the Salem club will conduct their annual two-day outing at Monument Park, near Gates. There, the radio equipment will be set up, and the radiomen will record each contact made.

About 20 or 25 members of the local club are expected to participate in the novel contest. A highlight of the trip will be the automobile caravan carrying club members from Salem to the Monument Park campsite. Nearly all members of the club have their cars equipped with two-way radios, and they carry on conversation between cars while such a caravan is moving.

The caravan will leave Salem about 9:30 a.m. Saturday, giving the radio operators time to set up their portable equipment at Monument Park in time for the contest's start at 4 p.m.

The group will return to Salem Sunday evening.

Britain Plans Seek to Prove

After Lie's previous talks with British government leaders on his save-the-UN mission to Washington, London, Paris and Moscow, Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin announced Britain would support Red China but only three—Russia, India and Yugoslavia—have supported the Peiping membership bid up to now.

Seven affirmative votes are needed to seat the Reds in the security council. Lie has been working behind the scenes to swing other votes, including those of France and Egypt, with the hope of settling the question by the end of July.

Britain has approached Egypt, Ecuador and France on the China question but got no commitments. The French position is complicated by the anti-communist campaign in Indo-China.

The United States has announced it will not support Red China but will not try to veto a majority decision.

Youth Held in Murder Case

A 19-year-old Philadelphian who apparently advised several Salem residents that he had been "in trouble" back east was taken into custody by Salem detectives Wednesday on charges of robbery and murder.

The youth was identified as Charles Johnson. He denied any connection with the Philadelphia case.

Police had been advised that Johnson was in Salem. He was wanted in connection with the murder and robbery of Thomas Rispoli, 51, on a Philadelphia street. Rispoli was carrying approximately $1,000 at the time of his death, but the money was taken. It included a $500 bill.

General description of the Johnson wanted by Pennsylvania authorities fit the description of the youth arrested by Salem police. A tattoo mark—"Mother"—was found on his forearm. Fingerprints were taken for a more accurate check.

Runaway Team Adds to Pageant

One team of horses used in the Pageant of Progress Tuesday night was just a little too realistic.

Toward the end of the show, when the progress in transportation was being shown by a parade of buckboards, buggies, wagons and automobiles, the team took fright at one of those new-fangled horseless carriages and ran away.

As the team pivoted in front of the grandstand the rig side-swiped another and knocked one of the occupants, a man, to the ground, but he wasn't hurt.

Then the team took off down the track toward the stadium with the driver trying to hold them. They reached Silverton road, however, and collided with an automobile owned by James C. Stone, 1115 North Capital and caused some damage to the car, including broken headlamps.

Change in Law

and the 90-day suspension on the second conviction will be sufficiently severe to warn the violator of the drastic action which will take place if a third conviction takes place.

Another amendment to be offered the legislature would, if passed, provide for an all-time revocation of drivers' license of any person convicted of a felony committed with the aid of an automobile.

Such an amendment, Newbury said, would make it difficult for criminals to use cars without being picked up by police officers.

Atomic Secrets Safeguarded

Washington, June 21 (AP)—High American, British and Canadian officials, presumably concerned over a recent wave of spy cases, are meeting here to plan tighter safeguards around atomic secrets.

The U. S. atomic energy commission announced yesterday that "security standards" and "procedures applicable to the protection of information jointly held by the atomic energy programs of the three countries" are under discussion.

It added that "policies affecting the declassification of information" are not being discussed.

Officials attending the sessions were close-mouthed and the AEC did not say when the new series of conferences began.

However, the recent arrest of three Americans by FBI agents back-tracking over the trail left by Dr. Klaus Fuchs, the British scientist convicted of being an atomic spy for Russia, has brought new congressional demands for tighter control over this country's secrets.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, has called for 300 more agents to hunt down spies. Senate and house committees are reported to have agreed tentatively to meet his request.

Hoover testified that Red spies are trying to steal secret data on atomic research, jet propulsion, radar and germ warfare methods.

Bakers' Strike

Demand for bakery reports doubled, much of it from out of town. To meet the situation it is attempting to all variety bread and attempting to supply the area with white and wheat bread. It reports people coming from Portland, and they are turned away unless they succeed in convincing the bakery they are from some place in the Salem trade area. Some pressure is being brought to get the Salem bakeries to put bread on the Portland market, which is not being considered.

Not all Portland people are being turned away. One bakery reports selling to Portlanders who happen to be passing through Salem. It has rejected calls, however, from two big Portland restaurants.

Another bakery says the calls from Salem grocery stores has increased greatly. That is mainly for bread. It finds no special call for pastries.

The Cherry City Baking company is baking bread round the clock.

"We are trying to take care of our area business and keep in the good graces of the union," it reported. "We are not sending bread into any territory not regularly served by us. An exception to that is that we are sending bread to several Portland hospitals, but that is, we understand, not objected to by the union."

"So far we are keeping up with the demand for pie, but maybe we won't be able to keep it up. Some of the Salem bakeries are now baking their own."

It was reported Wednesday that two of the struck Portland concerns are sending bread into Salem from their plants in Eugene.

Major Dike

An estimated 1500 acres are under water in the Kootenai area. The river was splashing at the dike tops along 30,000 acres of farmland in the valley. Other dikes, most of them soggy with water and leaning badly, were expected to go out.

The Kootenai was rising its entire length.

Just Goes to Pieces
Lt. Fayette Worthington, an army engineer officer, at flood control headquarters in Bonners Ferry said the big dike on the Kootenai broke about 4:30 this morning. "It just went to pieces," he said. "It broke in six or seven places a few miles north and east of the town."

The town itself is protected by dikes four feet higher than the current river level.

There were no casualties reported from the break today. The flood fatality count now totals one in British Columbia and four in Washington state.

Engineers Combat Waters
The army dispatched a company of combat engineers and equipment operators to the Bonners Ferry area today. The contingent of 250 are expected to reach the flood area at nightfall.

A company of about 250 men of the 36th engineers combat group left Fort Lewis at 6 a.m. for the Bonners Ferry front. Col. Henry Douglas commands the unit. The troops took 20 dump trucks, two truck-mounted shovels and several amphibious "ducks."

The army engineers reported about 1,200 acres were under water this morning from the Kootenai. Half the total was flooded by a new dike break during the night north and east of Bonners Ferry.

A total of 144,750 bags was sent to Bonners Ferry by the engineers for use in sandbagging.

Col. E. C. Itchner, the Seattle district engineer, was on the Kootenai scene. He went there yesterday.

The army troops joined 60 Idaho national guardsmen in the flood fight.

The lower Columbia, slowly inching out over unprotected lowlands, forced two Vancouver sawmills and one chemical plant to close. The dike protecting the Vancouver Jantzen knitting mills plant was being raised.

In Portland, the Willamette forced two families living on the bottomlands near the St. Johns bridge to evacuate their homes. A few east side warehouses along the downtown Portland harbor had seepage water in their basements.
