Increase Announced In Price of Fuel Oil

Union Oil company of California announces an increase in the price of heavy fuel oil (bunker) from $1.40 per barrel to $1.60 per barrel in Los Angeles, effective at 7 a.m., July 18. This is equivalent to an increase of 20 cents per barrel at all points.

Concurrently, the company's postings for heavy crude oil will be adjusted according to schedule which will be mailed to all producers tonight.

Reese H. Taylor, president of Union Oil company said: "Despite this increase in the price of Union Oil company's fuel oil, our prices for this product still remain well below those currently existing at the Gulf coast and elsewhere. Historically, fuel oil prices in the west have been subsequently the same or higher than in other areas. This increase is an effort to bring our prices somewhat closer to the market value of the product."

Bean Festival Crowd Enjoys Three-Unit Junior Parade

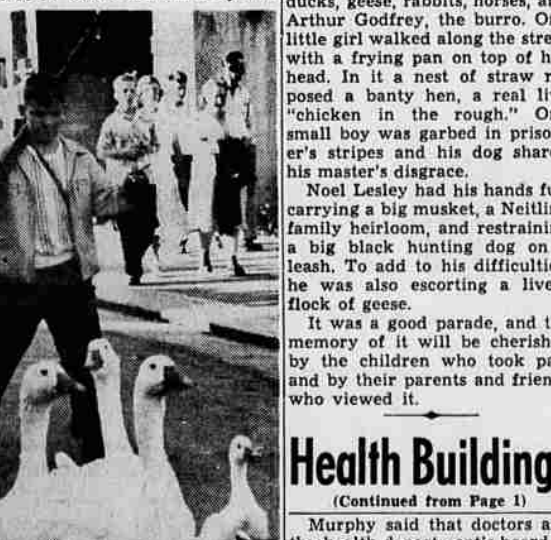

Stayton—That yearly event, eagerly awaited by the small fry of the community, the junior parade, was held in Stayton Thursday, as a part of the 11th annual Santiam Bean festival. Sunny skies and balmy breezes brought a large crowd to witness the parade.

Sweepstakes award went to a decorated wagon, covered in pink, blue and white paper napkins. With the float were Rosemarie Freres, Paul Freres, Janice Jungwirth, Donnie and Ronnie Jungwirth.

The parade had three divisions, costume, pet and float. In the costume division a ballet troupe, in yellow satin, from the Paul Armstrong School of Dancing, Salem, was first prize winner; Indians, five of them, who really are the children of M. Van Driesche, Chamber of Commerce president, won second; an attractive Hula girl was Joan Trahan of Lyons, who captured third; western duo, Johnny and Bonnie Bryant, in decorative cow country costumes, were fourth.

First prize winner in the pet division was Gerald Wilson of Mill City and his pal, Arthur Godefrey, the burro; "Cheaper by the Dozen" was the sign on the wagon-cage of lively baby ducks, which John and Martha Hatch, and Tommy and Janice Mason of North Santiam escorted, winning second place; a tiny girl carrying a tiny kitten in a basket was Paula Kirkland, third place; "Bring 'em Back Alive" was the entry of pets drawn in a wagon by Lovel and Patsy Humphreys.

Units of Guard

The public information officer for the Oregon military district said many army reserve units in the state might be affected, although no orders had been received.

Major Paul F. Mielly listed larger Oregon units that would come under the non-divisional classification.

They include the 409th quartermaster battalion and one battalion of the 369th boat and shore regiment at Salem; the 6310th logistical unit at Medford, including members from Klamath Falls; 382nd quartermaster battalion, Medford; 426th transportation truck battalion or Eugene.

Among Portland units are: 369th boat and shore regiment; 356th ordnance maintenance company, 311th MP battalion, 816th transportation truck battalion; 422nd transportation traffic regulation group, 497th engineer port construction and repair regiment, the 6213th station complement, activated on July 1st last night, and several hospital units, including the 321st general and the 331st mobile army surgical field unit.

Gen. Rilea said the only non-divisional Oregon guard units are the 237th anti-aircraft group and the 3670th ordnance company, both of Portland.

He pointed out that if the 41st division, including Oregon and Washington national guard units, were broken up, Oregon could furnish two regimental combat teams.

41st Division Has Annual Convention

Opening in Portland Friday was the annual national convention of the 41st Infantry Division association, composed of members and former members of the 41st infantry division.

Business sessions of the convention are to be held Friday and Saturday at the Portland armory and an all-day picnic is slated for the Oaks park in Portland Sunday.

Health Building

Murphy said that doctors and the health department's board of directors agree that approximately 6000 square feet of space would be needed for adequate headquarters for the health department.

"A building of that size would cost about $75,000," figured Murphy.

The United States government has made a practice of matching 50 per cent of the amount raised by counties for hospital construction purposes. Thus, if Marion county was to provide $50,000, the government would probably provide $25,000 toward a $75,000 building.

"Members of the county court agree that a new building is needed," Murphy said. "The health department's board of directors agree that a new building is needed. Now if we can get some indication from interested groups or individuals on whether or not they're interested in a new health building, we will know whether or not to go ahead and put the measure on the ballot."

Californians in Session Today

California delegates to the International Association of Machinists convention which opens Monday in Salem went into a preliminary meeting Friday at the Marion hotel.

The convention, to be attended by representatives from unions in 11 western states, will be opened at the Labor temple Monday at 10 a. m. with the Rev. George Swift giving an invocation.

Among the list of speakers at the opening session will be Chief of Police Clyde A. Warren and Charles Barclay, representing the city and mayor, William Kimsey, Oregon labor commissioner, and Paul E. Gurske, chairman of the state industrial accident commission.

In the afternoon session, Governor Douglas McKay or a representative from his office is scheduled to address the group.

The convention will be held Monday through Wednesday. Preliminary meetings of the California group Friday at the Marion hotel were expected to be in preparation for regular business sessions of the convention.

Armed Forces

Senate committee approval of the two bills was unanimous. In the house group, Rep. Harry L. Towse (R., N. J.) cast a lone vote against them. He said he would oppose them until they (defense officials) say what they are going to do.

Brig. Gen. C. V. R. Schuyler, chief of the army's planning branch told the house committee the call for more fighting men was decided upon by the joint chiefs of staff. He said the joint chiefs also agreed that possible developments in Korea or elsewhere could mean a further "upward revision" on short notice.

He added that there are tentative plans for reopening some World War II army camps, but he did not say which ones.

Under the present draft law, only men 19 through 25 are subject to induction and veterans of the past war are exempt except in cases of men who served less than three months.

Schuyler said the army can equip all the men it needs for training purposes, but will have to buy "in some categories" to make them ready for battle.

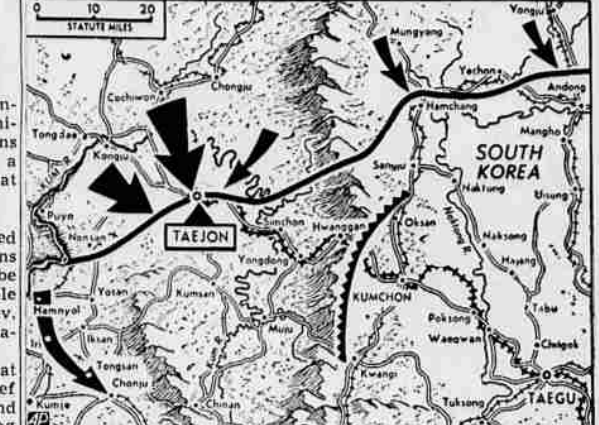

The fighting services already had their mobilization program in high gear to provide reinforcements for the hard-pressed American forces in Korea.

The marines yesterday called up all their organized reserve ground units—47,000 officers and men—while the army alerted an undisclosed number of regular units for far eastern duty, and the navy ordered "several" of its organized air reserve squadrons back on active duty immediately. An early call for national guard units also was expected momentarily.

Dinner Fetes Mrs. Kuban

Liberty—Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kurth honored his sister, Mrs. Steve Kuban, who is visiting here from Joliet, Ill., on Wednesday evening at a dinner at their home on W. Browning avenue. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kurth of Portland; Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Kurth, Billy and Gerald, Lou Jr., Bonnie Jean, and Cheryl Lee Kurth.

The U.S. has about 140 tornadoes a year.

War Map—Heavy dark arrows show main North Korean drives against Taejon from which U. S. troops are withdrawing according to front line dispatches. However, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique said U. S. 24th infantry division "is still holding firm" in that area. American forces apparently were falling back to the Kumchon area where a new stand (jagged line) will be made. Red columns are reported in Chonju, southwest of Taejon; others are moving on highways leading to Hamchang and Andong. Solid line is approximately battle line. (AP Wirephoto map)

Victory

The battle began yesterday afternoon when the U.S. task force moved against the city which nestles in a cup of a mountain ridge.

Crouched on a hillside in a soybean patch with Capt. Carlton S. Johnson of Chester, Pa., and M/Sgt. Kenneth E. Brown of La Mesa, Tex., I watched the assault.

Flanking Movement Used
 Under a barrage of artillery and mortar fire which splashed fire into villages on the slopes of the mountain behind Yechon, two companies began a flanking move—a tactic which the Reds previously have used successfully.

To the west, small groups of soldiers legged it across the rice fields. A machine gunner ran heavily up the slopes and into a grove of trees. There was silence for a moment then the guns opened up.

Directly north, down a deserted road into Yechon, the colored soldiers stalked warily into clusters of houses, firing as they went.

To the east, a small knot of soldiers clustered about a small mud hut then broke into sudden life and the men dived into fields for cover as a machine-gun rattled.

The immediate communist objective seemed to be the highway junction of Yongdon, 23 miles southeast of Taejon, and 100 miles northwest of Pusan.

The dispatch said North Korean guerrilla snipers were reported to have penetrated up to 18 miles south of Taejon.

Earlier reports said the Reds had attacked the new American defense line some four miles southeast of Taejon in regimental strength—probably 1,500 to 2,000 men—with heavy tank support at 10:30 a. m. (8:30 p. m. Thursday EDT).

The latest dispatch from United Press War Correspondent Peter Kallscher indicated that the heavy attack had forced the Americans to abandon their first lines of defense and fall back deeper into the hills overlooking the roads running southeast and south from Taejon.

It appeared that the North Koreans were trying desperately to smash on to the southeast before the Americans could regroup after losing Taejon.

Sundell of Portland On Vets Committee

Gov. Douglas McKay announced the appointment of Erland N. Sundell of Portland today as a member of the advisory committee to the director of veterans' affairs, representing disabled American veterans.

Sundell, named to succeed Robert Bryant of Grants Pass, served with the 91st Division in World War I. He is a past department commander and department adjutant of the DAV and at present is service officer for the Portland chapter.

Ex-Convict

Warden George Alexander disclosed that Detillion made his home near a tile yard just a short distance outside the walls of the penitentiary.

Polk County Deputy Sheriff Tony Neufeldt said Detillion had been receiving many more visitors than usual from Salem the past few days. Examination of the 3/4-inch bolt which held the window casing proved that only with the aid of a wrench could Detillion have removed them.

Detillion is 26, six feet, one inch in height, with brown eyes, brown hair, and a medium complexion.

Salem Saddle Club Plans Appearances

Members of the Salem Saddle club are planning appearances in three upcoming events.

Saturday about 40 men and women from the club will participate in a parade, drills, etc., at the Stayton bean festival.

Later the group will appear at the Silvertown horse show, then on August 11, 12 and 13 will participate in the gigantic Crooked River roundup at Prineville.
