

Legion Praised By Paul McNutt

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 21 (AP)—The American Legion's new national headquarters building was dedicated yesterday with praise from former Legion commander, Paul V. McNutt, for the Legion's stand on preparedness.

McNutt, war manpower commissioner during World War II, described the Legion as "for 30 years... a voice crying in the wilderness."

As flags of the United States and United Nations waved above he told an outdoor audience: "Americans love freedom with such a passion that they instinctively resent any move which smacks of regimentation. 'If I am any judge of their temper at the moment it would seem that after mature consideration rather than emotional judgment, they are ready to submit themselves to such controls as are necessary during, but only during, the period of national danger.'"

McNutt restated the Legion's advocacy of universal military training and mobilization of all resources. He continued: "All freedom-loving nations and peoples look to us. We are ready to support and befriend our allies and to cooperate with movements designed to isolate totalitarianism and tyranny."

The $2,500,000 structure, built by the state of Indiana, was presented by Governor Schriker to George N. Craig of Brazil, Ind., Legion national commander.

He was initiated into Pi Kappa Phi in February, 1933, held the office of warden and archon (president) in 1935 and 1939. He became district archon of the Pacific Northwest in 1944 and then national secretary in 1946. He was re-elected to the post in 1948.

SOS Call for Labor Made

"Help! Help!" cried W. H. Baillie, Salem manager for the state employment service Monday as he was besieged by both bean and hop growers for additional harvest hands.

"I could use 3000 hop pickers in the Independence area alone," remarked the employment officer. "On top of that there is a need for 1500 bean pickers in the Stayton area and 1500 more in beans and hops in the north and east portions of the county."

High temperatures during the day and warm nights have brought the hops into maturity much faster than had been anticipated. Then, too, the beans keep right on growing. So much so, in fact, that pickers have not been able to get them off the vines fast enough.

In some instances Baillie relates, the swimming hole has had much more appeal to the younger generation than the humid conditions that prevail between the bean rows.

Flegel Flays McKay's Rule

Medford, Ore., Aug. 21 (AP)—Senator Austin Flegel, democratic nominee for governor, yesterday charged the republican state administration with responsibility for the "bogging down of lumber shipments in Oregon with resultant widespread mill shutdowns."

Flegel spoke before a crowd of about 400 democrats at a picnic here.

In a hard-hitting campaign speech, Flegel flailed the administration of Gov. Douglas McKay for what he called it "do-nothing policies."

The Southern Pacific railroad came in for a frontal attack when Flegel declared it had been either unable or unwilling to provide sufficient cars for lumber shipments at the points where it enjoys a monopoly.

The gubernatorial candidate also pledged himself to carry out the mandate of voters in 1948 for an immediate juvenile penal institution.

Grand Island Jersey High

Grand Island—The registered Jersey bull, Sumallo Viscount, owned by Frank Finnicum of Grand Island, is announced by the American Jersey Cattle club from its national headquarters in Columbus, O., as having qualified as tested sire.

Sixteen tested daughters of Sumallo Viscount produced an average of 8,020 pounds of milk testing 5.1 butterfat and averaging 412 pounds fat each, which is more than two times the butterfat production of the average dairy cow in the United States. All records were made under official supervision of the American Jersey Cattle club, and the production is computed on a 305-day twice daily milking mature basis.

Sumallo Viscount has also been officially classified for type by the American Jersey Cattle club with the highest possible rating of excellent, equivalent to a score compared to the breed's type score of 90 percent or better when card allotting 200 points to a perfect animal.

This sire was bred by J. Grauer and Sons of Eburne, B.C., and was purchased by Finnicum in 1939.

Aged Recluse Found Burned

Grants Pass, Ore., Aug. 21 (AP)—An aged recluse, delirious from burns, was found in his isolated cabin today, ending a search for him by posse that had combed the backwoods above Marial.

Te burned man, Bill Gariff, 76, could not tell how he was burned. His face and head were badly seared, possibly by steam burns. A suggestion of sunburn was dismissed.

State police, who aided in the search, said he probably will be brought out by boat for treatment.

The search was started when state police were informed that Gariff was seen on a trail near Marial in the Rogue river canyon northwest of this city. He refused offers of aid and staggered away, apparently dazed. Neighbors found his provision-laden pack mules grazing near the trail.

Strike Halts Detroit Paper

Detroit, Aug. 21 (AP)—Refusal of craft union members to cross picket lines of the National Association of Broadcasting Engineers and Technicians (Ind.) prevented the Detroit News from publishing its first edition today.

Printers, pressmen, photo-engravers and stereotypers gave no indication they would cross the lines in time to print any edition.

The NABET pickets are from news-owned radio station WWJ. WWJ operated on regular broadcast channels with supervisory personnel operating equipment. Its television and FM broadcasts were shut down.

George Maher, national executive secretary of the union, said the engineers and technicians walked out to enforce demands for a wage of $125 a week, against a current wage of $116.50.

The station and union have been negotiating on a new contract since February.

Primaries in Three States

(By the Associated Press) With the lineup for their state and senate tickets still up in the air, New York democrats and republicans pick candidates for 45 hours seats in primaries tomorrow.

Most of those nominated in New York will be present house members, since only three republicans and two democrats face primary contests.

Wyoming and Mississippi voters will choose house nominees the same day. Wyoming will also select party candidates in a gubernatorial race. Delaware democrats in convention will nominate a candidate to run against republican representative J. Caleb Boggs.

The week, marked also by a run-off primary in Texas Saturday, to choose the democratic nominees for two house posts and two state offices, may bring some clear indication of party choices for governor and senator in New York state and a mayoral contest in New York City.

Senator Lehman (D., Lib., N. Y.) is counted as a sure starter in the democratic senatorial race. But republicans haven't come close yet to settling on his opponent. Both parties will nominate for senate and governor at conventions September 6-7.

Some republicans are still trying to persuade Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to reverse his decision not to run again.
