

As in Biblical Times—This Thanksgiving booth in the church school room at Jason Lee Methodist church is as nearly as possible a replica of the booths made by the Children of Israel in the times of Moses, and still made by the Jews when Jesus was a boy. Children at the Salem church observed "The Feast of the Booths" Sunday. Friday night, together with children from other Methodist churches, they attended services at Salem's Jewish synagogue in accord with the commandment of old.

Methodist Children Synagogue Guests in Thanksgiving Study

It was long, long ago that the Lord God, through Moses, commanded the Children of Israel to observe Thanksgiving. But it was the foundation of the present American Thanksgiving day.

And it came to pass that in Salem, Oregon, the children of the fifth grade of Jason Lee Methodist church school went, last Friday night, to the synagogue, as did the Children of Israel and as the Jewish people were doing when Jesus was a boy.

The Methodist children and their teachers attended the regular Friday night service at Salem's Jewish synagogue. Their number was increased four-fold when they invited to go with them children of similar age from the First Methodist church, Leslie church, and the Methodist church at Albany. About 100 youngsters were in the group.

They report that they greatly enjoyed the beautiful Jewish service, and the congregation at the synagogue welcomed them, and urged them to come again. As literally as possible the church school children at Jason Lee are carrying out the Thanksgiving of old.

"Go forth unto the mount, and fetch olive branches, and pine branches, and myrtle branches, and palm branches, and branches of thick trees, and make booths, as it is written. "So the people went forth and brought them, and made themselves booths..."

And that's just what the Methodist children did. A booth was set up in the church schoolroom as nearly to the letter as possible. It was explained to the children why the Jewish people used booths, all symbols were explained, and the old songs were sung as in the youth of Jesus.

Gifts of fruits and other foods were brought to the church Sunday morning, in observance of "The Feast of the Booths." In the afternoon the service was repeated at the Old People's Home on Center street.

It was all part of the regular study course of the children. Their teachers at Jason Lee are Mrs. M. W. Ready and Mrs. Robert Klempel.

6 Guards Injured In Prison Riot

Santa Fe, N. M., Nov. 21 (AP)—Authorities sought today for the cause of yesterday's state prison riot which injured six guards, none seriously, and wrecked two offices and the prison canteen.

Warden Howell Gage ruled out attempts to escape and rebellion at alleged mistreatment. "I know definitely that any alleged mistreatment is not the reason," Gage said yesterday. He added that "it definitely was not an escape attempt."

He said the hour-long uprising behind the penitentiary walls may have been connected with one prisoner "who was out of line." About 100 convicts armed with razors, knives, crude blackjacks, chains and pieces of pipe roved through the prison, overwhelming guards in the exercise yard, administrative office, canteen, laundry and tailor shop.

Prison guards and two dozen state and city police armed to the teeth quelled the revolt without firing a shot.

Brand Likely to Be New Chief Justice

The new chief justice of the state supreme court, who will serve the two years beginning in January, has been chosen. But Chief Justice Hall S. Lusk said today that the name of the new chief won't be announced until the middle of December.

The new chief is expected to be Justice James T. Brand, who now is acting chief justice, which means he serves in the absence of the chief. The high court's custom has been to promote the acting chief to chief.

Still Trying to Save Building

Persons interested in preservation of the old Marion county courthouse are spiking a rumor that they have abandoned the effort to save the building for a museum.

"We are still putting forth every effort to save the structure from destruction," said one of the committee members.

"Anyone interested in the project can send donations, memorial funds or $1.50 in dues to join the Marion County Historical society, to any of the officers or members of the society.

The officers are: President, Miss Merl Dimick, 806 Market street; vice president, Harold Wynd, Jefferson; secretary, Herbert J. Salisbury, 2695 Hulsey avenue; treasurer, Miss Mirphal Blair, 875 Marion street; or to any of the following members: Mrs. A. E. Austin, Woodburn; David Duniway, state archivist, state library, Salem; Murray Wade, 852 North Liberty; Hugh Morrow, Salem public library; Miss Renska L. Swart, 738 North Front street.

Schools Give For Fountain

Salem school children are joining others of the nation in contributing the money that will build a central fountain in front of the Secretariat building at United Nations headquarters in New York.

In Oregon the drive is headed by Mrs. Douglas McKay, wife of the governor. Other wives of governors of the states and of Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico are also leaders. The national chairman is Mrs. Arthur B. Langlie of Washington state.

Locally, assisting Mrs. McKay in the collection of pennies, nickels and dimes, is Rex Putnam, state superintendent of schools, who will supervise the organization of the schools. Linn C. Smith of the United States National bank is treasurer.

The schools are urged to make their contributions before December 15.

Belluschi Asks for Courthouse Details

Pietro Belluschi, Portland architect who is designing the new Marion county courthouse, has written the county court asking information on certain details to be included in the new building.

Belluschi requests information on the type of clock system desired, type of fire alarm system, whether or not a night watchman check-in apparatus is desired, what kind of light control for the jail cells is preferred, etc.

Members of the county court said they would bring the matter up at the next meeting of the building committee. That committee holds no regular meetings, and it is probable that one will be called soon.

Highway Crew Surveys Route

Highway survey crews are surveying a route which is expected to be the ultimate truck by-pass highway east of Salem.

Under the Baldock traffic plan, it is proposed to pave Lancaster road from the Hayesville school to a point at Four Corners for use of trucks now utilizing North Capitol street. The Lancaster route would be used for some years to come but eventually it is planned to use the new route being surveyed, as a four-lane freeway highway.

The route under survey would be routed as follows: Beginning southeast from the Pacific highway at Hayesville school (just north of Salem) the proposed route would lie about one-quarter mile west of Lancaster drive. It will pass just west of State street Four Corners. From there, in a wide arc it will go almost southwest and connect with the Pacific highway about five miles south of Salem.

At its northern terminus it passes along just east of Hollywood avenue and west of Fisher road. It crosses State street about one-quarter mile west of Four Corners and then swings a bit easterly to lie west of the Salem-Aumsville highway south of Four Corners and just east of Paradise Island farm.

The route then swings south and west again east of Hillcrest school for girls, crosses Boone road about one-half mile east of Pringle school and connects near its intersection with Reese road south of Salem.

Mrs. Booth to Attend White House Meeting

Mrs. Agnes Booth, Marion county school superintendent, has received invitation to take part in the program at the president's Mid-Century White House conference on children and youth in Washington, D. C., December 3-7.

Mrs. Booth has been asked to take part in one of the panel discussions, representing educational groups. She plans to leave here on November 29 by train.

Leading up to the national conference, the governor's committee on children and youth for state leaders met in the capital earlier this year.

Kiwanis Hears Layman Preach

A sermon by a layman that would do credit to the clergy was delivered during Tuesday's Kiwanis club luncheon by John C. F. Merrifield, supervisor for the Connecticut Mutual Life, Portland, and chairman of the eighth province of the Episcopal church on layman's work.

Merrifield declared that there was too little development of the spiritual life and too much stress on materialism. He asked that the two sides be brought more closely into balance.

Too little time is spent in the house of God, said Merrifield as pointed out that most communicants thought of their physical comforts while making plans to attend worship.

The average family has gotten away from religion in the home where in former years grace was said at the table and reading of the Bible was a daily occurrence.

Nevertheless, the speaker brought to the attention of his audience that men of all faith were "working for promotion of God's kingdom." There has been a great "awakening of men of the church," he added.

A musical prelude to the address was provided by John Peterson of Yakima, Wash., baritone, and Ann Gibbens, Salem, pianist, both from Willamette's college of music.
