Inn Building Falls in Night

In a sudden collapse of roof and walls, tons of brick and timbers crashed into the rear part of the Rainbow Inn, 163 South Commercial street, about 12:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The building is part of the old Klinger estate. The inn is operated by J. L. Hutchison. It was necessary to close the business until repairs are made.

Excavation of a building project on adjoining property may have precipitated the collapse. It was said, however, that the roof of the building and an adjoining one have been in bad condition for a long time, causing leakage that could not be stopped, that the timbers were dry-rotted and much of the brick without mortar.

The restaurant had closed only a short time before the collapse, and at the time of the crash the only person in the building was John Buechler, the janitor, who was not injured.

A plate glass window at the front of the building was broken from the concussion when a large section of the roof fell. A portion of the south wall at the rear of the building on the south side fell inward as the roof and supporting timbers gave way.

First reports indicated an explosion had occurred, and firemen rushed to the scene.

Gls Raise Flag

Commanding generals were jubilant. But the infantrymen who reached the banks of the much-talked-about Yalu river boundary were not impressed. One GI cocked an eye at the narrow stream and exclaimed: "Well, I'll be damned. So this is the Yalu. Well how do you like that?"

Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond, 10th corps commander, said the feat of the 17th combat team "divided enemy held territory and isolated all significant forces east of the 127th meridian east longitude."

Reds still held a Japanese-built network of military roads on both sides of Hyesanjin. They were reported reorganizing in the border.

In the northwest, the Reds also were reported building defenses.

U.S. 24th division cavalry patrols ran into light enemy machine gun fire on the western front Tuesday. But U. S. First cavalry patrols six miles away found no Reds north of Yong-pi. The South Korean First corps advanced as much as two miles without opposition on the cavalry's right flank.

Guerrillas Attack on South Far south of this front guerrillas attacked three villages and Fifth air force fighters "virtually destroyed" the Red-held hamlet of Yongpo, 55 miles south of Seoul.

The day's greatest and most peaceful feat was the conquest of Hyesanjin by the Seventh division's 17th regimental combat team. Officers said a military government would arrive in a few days and organize a free election.

Eleven tanks and rolling anti-aircraft batteries were in the column that covered the final two miles. They rolled into the town at 9:45 a.m. (4:45 p.m. PST Monday).

Tavern Wall Falls—South wall of Rainbow Inn, 163 S. Commercial street, collapsed early today tumbling tons of rubble into the excavation now under way at Ferry and Commercial street. Recent removal of the adjacent Holman building that served as a buttress for the wall, together with wet weather, contributed to the collapse. The wall was laid about 80 years ago following a fire of 1865 that burned out framed structures in this block.

Graham Rites Set Wednesday

Funeral services will be held at the Virgil T. Golden chapel Wednesday morning at 10:30 a.m. for Carl Adams Graham, long-time resident of Salem who died at his farm south of Salem following a heart attack. Burial will be in Webster City, Iowa.

Graham, a late resident of 2525 South Commercial street, had apparently been working at his farm when he had the attack. He was found Saturday afternoon when he did not return home.

Born November 11, 1889, at Webster City, Graham came to Salem 30 years ago. He was a member of Salem lodge No. 336, BPOE.

Surviving are his wife, Ruth H. Graham, Salem; a daughter, Dorotha Graham, Portland; two sons, Robert C. Graham of the U. S. Army and K. Dean Graham of Eugene; two sisters, Hattie E. Graham and Mrs. Earl E. Humble, both of Webster City, Iowa; and two brothers, Henry and William V. Graham of Webster City.

Flood Waters

near Marysville, in the face of the threat of the flooding Yuba and Bear rivers. The muddy torrent, which has already smashed through levees in three places and inundated the towns of Hammonton and Marigold, continues to rise.

The American river burst its banks near Sacramento and flooded thousands of acres of suburban land, driving 1,000 people from their homes.

8 Killed in California
Eight California deaths were attributed, directly or indirectly, to the floods.

The U. S. weather bureau at San Francisco predicted "moderate to heavy rain" for the High Sierra today—the ninth straight day of storms.

Reno, gaudy little city of casinos and quickie divorces, reeled under the impact of the flood. Muddy water raced through the business district in a stream three blocks wide, sweeping trees, benches, cars.

Bus Service

Stating that their future purpose will be to contact other suburban areas, such as Brownling, Keizer, Four Corners and similar sectors, the organization heads posed the question of jurisdiction in these outlying areas.

Since the state has no right to grant a transportation franchise and the authority of the city is doubtful, the city of Salem, through the Public Utilities commission, will ask the attorney general for a decision.

One member of the gathering stated that she had contacted the county court and been assured that if the authority rested in that body, such a franchise would be granted.

The gathering was told that two Oregon transportation companies had shown an interest in such service in the suburban areas but had, thus far, declined to enter into the conflict because of its unsettled nature.

The improvement club will attempt to induce the other suburban organizations to enter a general council for parallel action in arranging for bus service.

Officers of the new East Salem club are: President, J. H. Gordon; vice president, J. C. Carpenter; secretary, Mrs. Charles Bottorff; board of directors, J. M. Sleight, S. W. Burris, John H. Wolf, Harold O. Bressler, Chester Shelberg and Rex Lambert.

Going to Chicago—David Blackmer, Capital Journal's school reporter and sports editor of the Salem high school Clarion, examines his cold-weather undies as he was ready to leave Tuesday morning for Chicago. Dave will attend the national scholastic press conference, although the Clarion has for years had national recognition for excellence.

Blackmer Leaves for Chicago After Money Raising Job

David Blackmer, sports editor of the Salem High School Clarion, and the Capital Journal's school reporter, thought the Clarion should be represented at the National Scholastic Press conference in Chicago.

For nine years in a row the awards for its excellence as a school newspaper. But it had never been represented at a national meeting.

It should be, thought Dave. But it would cost $250, according to an estimate by Leah Hogue, staff adviser. There was no way to get the money, but for Dave to hustle it. He did. Tuesday morning he left for Chicago.

Still short, and the deadline only a few hours away, Dave braved the Chamber of Commerce Monday at its noon luncheon. He told them about the Clarion, and about himself and his plans, and by all accounts, did a good job of it. The result was that before he left the Senator hotel he had $50 to add to money previously collected. A dollar here and there, sometimes $5. And it was enough.

Dave used to live in Chicago, and sold papers there. So it will be an added pleasure—to visit the places where the news kids gathered.

cache of coins which brought the total money found to nearly $800. The money was given to custody of the coroner pending disposition of the case.

Services for the mother and son who were joined in death early Tuesday were scheduled to be held Wednesday, November 22, at 3 p.m. at the Howells Edwards chapel with concluding services at Belcrest Memorial park.
