

County Judge Murphy, 65 Dies Suddenly in Hospital

Death Wednesday afternoon claimed Grant Murphy, 65, Marion county judge since 1941. Murphy died at the Salem Memorial hospital where he had been taken Monday following a heart attack suffered in his office.

The county judge earlier had been reported as recovering successfully and his death was unexpected.

A native of Marion county, Grant Murphy was the son of George W. and Ida Murphy. He was born in Marion county south of Salem, November 15, 1885, and moved to Stayton at the age of 13 years. Murphy resided in Stayton for 44 years coming to Salem to make his home in 1943.

While residing at Stayton Murphy was very active in the civic affairs of that town. He served for 21 years on the school board, three times as a city councilman and was mayor for two terms, from 1918 to 1922 and a third term from 1940 to 1941. This term was terminated by his appointment to the office of county judge, a position to which he has ever since been re-elected.

During his early life Murphy followed building and lumbering. He organized the Murphy Garden Lumber company in 1918 and was active as its manager until he sold his interest in 1942.

Honolulu to Greet Party

Arrangements are being made by phone calls and cablegrams between Salem and Honolulu for entertainment of 19 Salem and Albany visitors to the Hawaiian city the first week in January.

John A. Hamilton, executive vice president of the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce, called the Salem chamber Wednesday and asked for information about time of arrival of the Oregon party. The Honolulu chamber, he said, wanted to entertain the party on a certain date.

Thursday afternoon Manager Clay Cochran of the Salem chamber was going to reply by cable that Wednesday, Jan. 3, would be a good date. Manager Cochran will also send a communication to Ann Monson, former secretary to Cochran, and now in Honolulu, asking that she also meet the Oregonians.

Mayor Robert L. Elfstrom, who will be in the Salem party, will be official representative both of the city and the Chamber of Commerce while in Honolulu.

The Oregon party will comprise 15 from Salem, nine from Portland, four from Albany, eight from Medford and three from Eugene. After attending the Rose Bowl game in Pasadena on January 1 the party will leave Los Angeles by United Air Lines at 10:35 a.m., January 2, and arrive in Honolulu at 6 p.m.

In Honolulu they will stay at the Moana hotel.

Shoemaker is 56 years old, and came to Oregon from Iowa in 1927.

Europe's Youth Discouraged

The young people of Europe, and there are 14 million orphans among them, feel utterly discouraged and can see little ahead of them except trouble brought about by another war.

This slant on the situation across the Atlantic was presented to members of the Salem Lions club Thursday noon by Mrs. Henry Roe-Cloud, "American Mother for 1950," who recently returned from a trip abroad.

Mrs. Roe-Cloud spoke of visiting with several German youths, some of them being college students. She reported they were doing a lot of thinking concerning their future.

When asked what they thought of the democratic way of life, they replied they had few ideas on the subject since their lives had always been under a single ruler or a dictator.

However, the youth expressed the opinion that peace will not come out of rulers but will come from the common people who will see that everybody has a home, sufficient food and security.

Christmas music for the program was provided by a group of approximately 30 Parrish junior high school pupils directed by Madalene Suko.

Congressmen Leave For Home Christmas

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP)—Failure of a majority of members to show up today threatened to force adjournment of the house until after Christmas.

Home-bent congressmen were leaving the capitol in droves last night and today.

Lack of a quorum—218 of the 435 members—was indicated as only 179 members responded when their names were called by the clerk. This was 39 short of the majority required to do business.

Speaker Rayburn and House Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts went into a long huddle at the speaker's rostrum to decide what to do and stall for time.

Associates Pay Tribute To Late Grant Murphy

Marion county officials—the men with whom the late Grant Murphy had worked—were shocked and sorrowed to learn of the death of their county judge.

County commissioner E. L. Rogers said, "I've worked with Grant in the Odd Fellows lodge and in county matters for 30 years. I could always work with him congenially. He was one of the most conscientious men I know. His main interest was for the upbuilding and advancement of Marion county. His death has broken up a county court combination that has probably been more cooperative than any other county court in the state of Oregon. I've lost one of the best friends I've ever had."

Said Roy Rice, the other member of the county court: "He was a wonderful man to work with. He didn't try to dictate, but tried to find out the problems of his departments."

Circuit court judge George Duncan: "His personal and professional character and qualifications were of the highest and he was at all times ready to give his time freely in enterprises benefitting the public. He leaves a memory which will be a source of great consolation to his family and friends."

County recorder Herman W. Lanke: "Grant Murphy was a tireless worker. He lived in Marion county all his life and understood the problems of the county very well. He was a student of county governments and county law and helped with the laws and problems that confronted Marion county when it reached a population of over 100,000."

Sheriff Denver Young: "His unusual ability to weigh all matters brought before him and then render fair and impartial judgment will make his position a very hard one to fill. I feel that the people of this county have lost a good friend and suffered a great loss."

County Clerk Henry Mattson: "Marion county lost a good man in Judge Murphy and he will be hard to replace. He was always fair, courteous and trustworthy. His splendid cooperation will be a lasting memory."

Juvenile officer Mrs. Nona White: "Judge Murphy was keenly interested in children. He was always sympathetic to the needs of those who came before

Mrs. Hattie W. Caraway

1st Woman U. S. Senator Passes

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP)—Mrs. Hattie W. Caraway, 72, of Arkansas, first woman ever elected to the United States senate, died today at White Hall sanitarium at Falls Church, Va.

She had been ill since Jan. 11. Her condition took a turn for the worse Jan. 18 when she had a stroke which left her partly paralyzed.

Mrs. Caraway was a member of the federal employees' compensation appeals board at the time of her death.

She was a senator for slightly more than 13 years during the administration of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

A democrat, Mrs. Caraway went to the senate Nov. 13, 1931, by appointment to succeed her late husband, Thaddeus Caraway. Later she won one special and two regular elections.

While not the first woman to hold a senate seat—Rebecca Lattimer Felton of Georgia was appointed in 1922 to fill out a vacancy—Mrs. Caraway was the first member of her sex to win a senatorial election.

Until she entered the senate, Mrs. Caraway was known as a homebody.

City Shuts Off Water From G.I.'s Family

Jim Armstrong of Salem was a veteran of three and a half years in the navy. Since the war, and while working here at the paper mill, he was on the inactive reserve list.

He had married, and at their Salem home there is a small baby. And Jim, called back into the service, is on the high seas. His wife hasn't yet learned where.

Pending that first sailor's paycheck the money at home ran pretty short. The water bill became delinquent and amounted to $5.70. When the young wife didn't pay up quite promptly the city of Salem shut off the water. And there was a baby to be taken care of.

Jim's mother paid the bill. The water is running again.

H. C. Shoemaker, chairman of the state welfare commission, says only one case of this nature was brought to his attention. And the video set owner was promptly trimmed from the relief rolls, he said.

"Any recipient who is buying a television set obviously has a source of unreported income," he said. "Any recipient who is given a set will have a choice between converting it to cash or leaving our rolls."
