Ed Schroder, president of the Chamber of Commerce, called from the audience four boys from Salem schools who have been active in interesting their schools in saving bonds. They were congratulated in person by Secretary Snyder and given certificates signed by him on the spot. The boys were Arthur Erickson and Dick Chandler of McKinley school and Roger Shafer and Jim Heldman of Englewood.

George Mirnaugh of Portland, representative of the treasury, made special introductions of Herbert E. Barker, who was director of the payroll bond drive in Salem, Mrs. A. N. on Ingels, head of the women's division, and Sidney L. Stevens, Marion county bond director, to each of whom was presented a special autographed award from the treasury.

The high school choir opened the program with several songs. The invocation was by Rev. George Swift.

Bradley Takes

Senator Lyndon C. Johnson (D-Tex.) asked Bradley whether "substantially" more manpower, air and sea power than now available in Asia would be required to carry out the MacArthur proposals.

"Substantially more aid and I would say substantially more naval," Bradley replied.

Recess until Tuesday
Johnson: "Is that available?"
Bradley: "Well, if you stripped everything else you might get it, but we would have to see our other defense requirements stripped to the extent that you would have to do it to carry it out at this time."

Bradley testified behind closed doors. As has been the practice all through the hearings, a stenographic report of his testimony was sent to reporters after first going through censors for removal of anything they decided might harm the national interest if made public.

The hearings were recessed at 12:10 p.m. (EST) today until 9 a.m. Tuesday. Gen Bradley was asked to return to the witness chair then.

Approves Dismissal
Bradley listed these reasons why he said the military high command approved MacArthur's dismissal:

1. MacArthur's public statements and communications "indicated that he was not in sympathy with the decision to try to limit the conflict to Korea." He said this would make it difficult for MacArthur to carry out directives, adding: "It was necessary to have a commander more responsive to control from Washington."

2. MacArthur "had failed to comply with the presidential directive to clear statements on policy before making such statements public."

3. The joint chiefs of staff "have felt and feel now that the military must be controlled by civilian authority in this country."

Chinese Losses

The Reds threw 125,000 men of their sector in their second spring offensive, Almond said. The first Red all-out smash began April 22 and bogged down at the end of 10 days.

In their new drive, the Reds fell before the tremendous fire power of U. N. artillery, planes and automatic weapons. "We were trapped on barbed wire entanglements... blown up by mines. The enemy 'may be getting ready to strike again,' Almond said, "and if he does we are prepared to meet him."

"We have a line across the Peninsula and we are holding it. We have a line of fire that operates day and night, rain or shine. Our capability of bringing down instant fire whenever we sight these people is tremendous."

Much of Sunday's record casualty toll, he said, was compiled when artillery caught the Chinese trying to carry off their dead all along a two and a half mile valley.

Eighth army reports no field dispatches and given no hint of heavy Red assaults Sunday. U. N. forces suffered "comparatively few casualties" from the Reds' human sea wave attacks, Almond reported. "And the Second division is still in good shape."

A spokesman at Tokyo headquarters said the Indian Head division apparently inflicted more than 30 casualties for every one it suffered.

Briefing officers said the division's position was "still dangerous." But Chinese assaults dwindled during the night to six probing attacks on the lengthy east-central front held by the second division. All were beaten back.

Pressure diminished all along the front Monday morning, the eighth army said.

Teague Retires From Business

Emerson U. Teague, Kaiser-Frazier dealer in Salem for the past five and a half years, Monday announced his retirement from business here.

The Teagues, who came to Salem from Portland about five and a half years ago and purchased a home here, plan to continue to live here following his retirement. Teague retires after 28 years of being in business, most of it in the automotive business.

Teague's office will remain open through the month of June for business transactions and Teague has made arrangements with the Davidson Auto Service company here to have service and maintenance parts for the Kaisers and Fraziers during the interim that a new dealer is being placed in Salem.

In announcing his retirement Teague said that he wished to state his appreciation to those people with whom he had done business since coming to Salem.

About six months ago the Teague Lumber company, a wholesale business, was transferred to Eugene. Teague later sold his retail business to Howser Bros. on 12th street and the past week he made arrangements for the transfer of the Ferguson tractor line to other interests.

Sammons, who declared that even though he was a republican, he had long been a friend of the secretary and said that since Snyder took over his presidential office in 1946, the gross national debt had been reduced from $289 billions to $255 billions at the end of March, 1951.

Snyder declared that with full employment and vast expansion of private industry throughout the nation, he was of the opinion that this country can proceed with its defense program and still keep the country on a high level of economy.

"We must warn the public against scare buying, and above all else urge every individual to adopt a thrift program and invest all possible in savings bonds."

Snyder, who came to Salem from Burbank, Calif., where he had been visiting and making speeches prior to the trip here Monday, arrived at the Naval Air Facility at McNary field at 11:42 a.m. daylight time, aboard a Coast Guard RS-D.

The first to leave the biplane, Sec. Snyder was greeted by Oregon's Gov. Douglas McKay. In the secretary's party aboard the plane were Mrs. Snyder; William Bray, assistant to the secretary of treasury; Snyder's military aide, Comdr. James Schrader, and Leo Siler, public relations officer.

Among those at the airport to greet the Snyder party besides the governor were Mrs. McKay, Mayor Al Loucks, the Marion county defense bond director, Sidney L. Stevens, the Salem director for payroll defense bond sales, Herb Barker, Lt. Comdr. Wallace Hug, officer in charge of the Salem Naval Air Facility, Lt. Stanley Faldander, executive officer at the facility, and a Chamber of Commerce group headed by President Ed Schroder and the secretary, Clay Cochran.

Oregon's Fair Trade Law Passed in 1935
Oregon's fair trade law, which might be thrown out by today's supreme court decision, was passed by the 1935 legislature. It allows manufacturers to set retail prices, regardless of whether the retailer agrees. That is specifically forbidden by today's decision.
The Oregon law was tested a few years ago, the state supreme court ruling it is valid. This suit was brought by Borden Milk Co. in a successful attempt to forbid a Salem grocer from selling one of its products for less than the price fixed by the company.
