Boots and Spurs

By GRAHAM SHARKEY

Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Ward gave the saddle clubbers one of the most hilarious programs of the year at the fun night last week. Ella Druke with her floppy hat and king-size overalls, Al Inglis as an undertaker with his tuxedo, bathing cap and dark glasses were prize winners for their costumes and manners.

This was a hard times party but it can be overcome when, with the efforts of yourself and horse, you win the prize is a stick of gum—and in the club room afterwards dry crusts of bread, cull strawberries and coffee made from two coffee beans were served. This was followed, however, by big helpings of fresh strawberry topping on ice cream along with coffee and cake to overcome the hardtime theme of the party.

This past week-end most of the riding members of the club were trailing their horses to the south entrance of the Silver Creek falls area where an abandoned farm had been turned over for headquarters for their first overnight trail ride. Saturday afternoon the riders followed the lookout trail to Eagle mountain and upon return to camp completed their ideas on digging in after which dinner was served. It was a typical cowboy meal with everything on a plate and the opportunity for second helpings.

As darkness fell the group moved inside and with the aid
