Roaring Fire

G. M. Adcock, a lumber company employe reported that winds created by flames snapped an estimated 200 snags in 10 minutes. Other fire fighters said that they saw snags ripped out by the roots and carried through the air by the draft. Stores of dynamite belonging to logging companies exploded in the fire, adding to the difficulty.

The Tillamook burn fire was the only big fire out of control in Oregon Saturday with the one in the Fremont National Forest northwest of Lakeview held within trails after covering about 3,200 acres. In spite of high winds Friday night that fire was held except at one corner, where a new trail was quickly built. There is a 500-man crew on that fire.

Coos Bay Fire Controlled
A troublesome fire earlier in the week, the one near Coos Bay in the old Tioga Burn, has been under control the past few days but spotted in a couple of places Friday. However, it was held. The one on Wolf Creek north of Grants Pass also was held all day and all night Friday.

In the Salem area firemen from Turner and volunteers Friday night fought a blaze in the Sunnyside district south of Salem, which originated at the Crestwood Acres Girl Scout camp and burned in slash and logged-over land.

The Turner fire department sent two trucks onto the fire and were joined by a truck from the war surplus store near Jefferson and one from the state forestry department.

Burning over about 30 acres the fire was still burning in snags Saturday and Turner still had two trucks out on it. Seventy-five to 100 men were fighting the blaze Friday night. Two of those were from the state forestry department and left the fire as soon as it was considered under control.

Fire danger in all parts of Oregon continued Saturday and weather reports to the state forestry department were for high-temperature and lower humidity Saturday with some easterly winds.

$10 per Child

$80, increasing the state's burden for school support and contended that the counties should pay the $10 county school tax, which the state had carried merely as a relief measure for the counties.

$181,340 Total Tax
The petition filed Saturday points out that on May 29, 1951, the Lane county court and budget committee adopted a budget estimate for the 1951-52 fiscal year, in which a levy of $181,340 was proposed.

The court, the petition states, declared its intention of making up the difference between the levy and the amount required under the $10 county's school tax, by utilizing anticipated receipts from U. S. forest reserves rentals for the school fund.

The school district representatives protested this method and demanded full levy of the $10 county tax.

Red China Seizes 3 U. S. Oil Plants

Hong Kong, July 21 (AP)—The property of three American oil companies in China has been seized by the communists regime, Peiping radio said today.

The companies were Caltex, Ltd., Standard Vacuum and Cahaya Oil Co. (Chung Mei). The seizure apparently became effective July 18.

The properties have been under strict communist control since last Dec. 29, when Red China ordered the seizure of all American property in China. The oil companies apparently were not taken over physically until July 18.

The reason for the action was not clear. Only a trickle of

Brush and Grass Fire in Sunnyside

The Crestwood Girl Scout camp on the George Veall property in the Sunnyside district was in the path of a grass and brush fire that covered 30 acres Friday night. No buildings were burned. In the picture are two members of the Turner fire company which joined with others in fighting the flames.

American oil has reached the communist mainland in the past two years, and stocks are reported very low.

There was speculation the Chinese were making a "face-saving" move in connection with Korean war cease-fire talks.

Employment in Oregon Gains

Employment in Oregon increased through the early weeks of July despite mid-year vacations, woods shutdowns because of low humidity and the between season lull in harvest activities, the state unemployment compensation commission said today.

Although thousands of housewives, students and migrants entered the Oregon labor market in the past few weeks, unemployment also continued low. Only 3,592 persons filed claims or compensation during the past week, less than half of the 7,534 a year ago during the early weeks of the Korean conflict, and the lowest mid-July figure since the end of World War II.

Revised estimates of non-farm employment in June placed the figure at 468,700 above earlier figures and within 10,000 of the all-time high of last August.

Tabulations of reports from more than 1,200 representative employers, as gathered by the commission in co-operation with the U. S. bureau of labor statistics, is expected to show the usual gain for July, while next month's totals should exceed the 478,100 listed last summer. Every month in 1951 has shown an increase of 10 to 40 thousand over previous records, the commission said. June's total was 17,300 higher than a year ago.

Typo Meeting In Session

Opening in Salem Saturday afternoon with a business session that convened at 2 o'clock was the quarterly Oregon Typographical conference.

Here to attend the conference Saturday and Sunday will be delegates from all of the typographical unions in Oregon. Saturday evening the group is entertaining with a dinner at the Senator hotel, with the dinner to be followed by dancing.

Final business session of the group will be Sunday morning, starting at 9 a.m.

President of the Oregon group is Dale Salmunes of Astoria. Other officers are vice president, Herbert Lange of Salem, and secretary-treasurer, Lyle Swetland of Eugene. Host for the conference is the Salem local of the typographical union.

Red Chinese

"He was not brusque but there seemed to be a certain air of finality in his general attitude rather than in what he said," Nuckols commented.

Nuckols said General Nam for the first time was given open guidance by the Chinese Reds. In Nam's Chinese-supplied reply asking for the recess, Nam "was not bombastic," Nuckols said.

As for an overall assessment, Nuckols said "No tangible progress was made, yet I think it would be erroneous to say that no progress was made. There was a general air of reasonableness from the North Korea-Chinese delegation."

The communists said they wanted the recess "to enable both sides to study the proposals thus far presented."

After today's meeting Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, chief United Nations negotiator, flew to Tokyo to confer with United Nations supreme commander Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

Newsmen there asked him if things were going all right and he replied: "I guess so." He had no further comment.

Joy was accompanied by Maj. Gen. L. C. Craigie and Rear Adm. Arleigh Burke, two other members of the allied five-man negotiating team.

Craigie, in a happy mood, told the Tokyo correspondents: "I can't tell you anything and I wish I could tell you more."

The delegates will return to the allied peace camp here on Monday.

Allies Sees No Need
United Nations headquarters in Tokyo said in a statement the U. N. command agreed to the temporary halt in the talks "although it sees no need for such a recess in view of the agreement reached thus far on points it considers necessary for an agenda."

A question not immediately answered was: Did that mean that not many points had been agreed upon?

Or did it mean that negotiations had been progressing so smoothly and agreeable that the United Nations delegates saw no reason for any backward looks?

At Eighth army headquarters, Associated Press Correspondent Nate Polowetzky said there was speculation that communists needed time to receive further instructions to deal with the U. N. delegation's adamant stand against withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea.

Troops Withdrawal
Today, for the first time, the United Nations command disclosed officially that the "basic" issue between the two delegations was the communist demand for withdrawal of all foreign troops as a condition to a cease-fire.

An official army statement said: "The senior U. N. command delegate requested that communications between the two delegations be maintained in order to facilitate a meeting at an earlier date than July 25, if at all possible."

Cherrians to Stayton—Members of the Cherrians who will be in the group's marching unit taking part in the Santiam Bean Festival parade at Stayton this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the Salem Elks lodge. The parade in Stayton is to be at 5:30 p.m.

Mrs. Carson and "Dusty" supply one of the outstanding pleasure features of the annual Western Horse show sponsored by the local Rotary club, to be at McGinnis field under lights, Saturday, August 4. A much younger animal, property of her husband, is being used in rehearsals for the show by Mrs. Carson in case the Arabian cannot enter this year.

Player Victim—Augusto Zande, a member of the Tri-City ball club, advised Salem police that his wallet containing $55 and personal papers had been stolen in Salem.

Jason Lee, (center), accepts check for $300.50 for the Marion county 100 per cent chest X-ray fund, from Gene Schmidt, executive secretary, and Bob Ashby, state president of the Oregon State Employees association. Lee, Marion county chairman, expressed particular thanks to the group for the civic-minded cooperation and congratulations on the above-average turnout of state employes in the first few days of operation of the USPHS mobile X-ray units at the Capitol building. The 18 units will operate throughout eight mid-Willamette valley counties between now and September.

LaBelle Josephine Giving Up Expatriate Life in Paris

BY BILL BECKER (FOR BOB THOMAS)
Hollywood, July (AP)—"Two loves have I," chants Josephine Baker on her triumphant tour of the nation, "My Coun-tree and Pa-ree."

And America's most famous between-wars expatriate sings it like she means it. La Belle Josephine has been heartened by the reception on her return that she says she intends to divide her time henceforth between the U. S. and France.

"I am so happy—I open my own night club, the Chez Josephine Baker, in New York in October," she said with Gallic inflections, backstage. "And then, perhaps, there may be Hollywood."

After her smash two-week stand here, movie moguls are bidding high for her services. The film colony flocked to her local performances.

She broke all records for the Hillstreet theater, netting $45,000 in two weeks for her troupe. Her take was at least $30,000. A fair salary, but just about the way it's been from New York to San Francisco. Staid old Boston liked her so well she had to do two stands there.

Miss Bawer's only regret, she confided with a toss of her foot-high Chignon, is that she could not play St. Louis, where she was born — "Oh, let's say 45 years ago"—the daughter of a Negro policeman and a washerwoman.

She has positively refused to play to a segregated audience during the 14-week tour, now concluding in San Francisco.

Members of her race helped to swell the longest theater queues seen here since the advent of television. And she feels strongly her newly realized potential as a good-will promoter.

"My greatest desire will always be to see my people happier in this country," she said. Prejudice, she indicated, is the only reason she stayed abroad so long—more than 25 years.

Since 1925, she has been a Parisian favorite, earning fame, fortune and at least three husbands. Presently married to French Bandleader Jo (Mr. Soup) Bouillon, she lives in a 50-room thirteenth century chateau. A French maid travels with her.

Her business manager, Ned Schuyler, who has been mulling over the movie offers, says: "It isn't a question of whether the movies want Josephine, but whether they want her enough to make the kind of movie consistent with her way of thinking on the matter of segregation."

In other words, no all-Negro musical.

Perhaps the best film role for her would be "The Josephine Baker Story," but Hollywood

Her physical condition at well, let's say 45—is something to amaze even Benarr Macfadden. After watching Josephine go through her torrid 20-minute Brazilian routine, backstage observers are all in a sweat, too.

"I love people and I just can't do anything but my best for them," she says with a wide flash of the Baker teeth.

From all signs, America is ready to reclaim Josephine. The West Salem Boy Scout troop will have a paper collection drive Sunday. Persons or families having paper they would like hauled away from their premises should have it ready for the pick-up, and are requested to phone any one of these numbers: 2-2316 or 2-3269 or 2-0364.

Club to Meet—Gaiety Hill Garden club will meet with Mrs. Gard E. Nelson for a luncheon Monday noon.

Card of Thanks
We wish to take this opportunity to thank all whose expressions of sympathy and kindness helped so much in our recent bereavement.
