

A Tornado Overturned an automobile owned by George A. Mullen of 2110 Berry street during a visit to Minneapolis. The car of considerable weight, was parked at the curb when the wind picked it up, turned it over and dropped it on the lawn. Damage in excess of $500 was caused.

SPECTACULAR SUNRISE ACTION

Newsman Tells How Outfit Drove Reds Off High Point

By FRANK H. BARTHOLOMEW
Kumhwa, East-Central Front, Korea, Aug. 19 (Delayed) (AP)—The hills leading northward along this valley burst into flame for miles on the dot at 6 o'clock this morning, and an allied regiment drove the Chinese from a controlling mountain position in a spectacular sunrise action.

We went to the front in the light of a full moon, starting at 4 a.m. We passed a gun emplacement, then immediately below us in the moonlit valley we saw the UN troops standing quietly awaiting the word to advance.

Suddenly the dimly-seen ridge line opposite us lit up like a gigantic neon tube. The skyline was afire. The 'T O T'—time on target—opening salvo had landed. They were synchronized to land together along the entire area.

The enemy recovered from the daze of the first barrage and started delaying action fire with machine guns and mortars from strongpoints. Artillery observers with the infantry spotted the strongpoints one by one and radioed back their position to the artillery.

The staccato of machine guns sounded continuously. Tracer bullets made orange arcs against the morning sky. The big guns fired again, shooting over our heads. The tanks opened up with ear-splitting fire.

The closeness of our own fire, and the Chinese mortars, made the front line positions of the attacking troops untenable and they withdrew to the tank positions. But soon an officer with a portable radio was able to send back word to headquarters that the troops had taken two days' objectives, in their limited offensive, in one morning.

Cadets Can Go To Notre Dame

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 21 (AP)—An anonymous benefactor has offered to pay the way at the University of Notre Dame of any of the cadets dismissed from the U. S. military academy.

The Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, president of the University, in announcing the offer today said it stipulated that those who accept it shall not participate in any form of varsity athletics and that they need the financial help.

It is good for one or all of the 90 cadets dismissed for violating the academy's honor code by trading examination information, Father Cavanaugh said. He estimated the cost per year at $1,350 to $1,400 per student.

Those who wish to take advantage of the offer must get in touch with the director of admissions by Sept. 1 as registration begins Sept. 11, Father Cavanaugh said.

Father Cavanaugh quoted the donor as saying: "Because I feel with millions that in the American tradition a man who makes a mistake should have a reasonable chance to rehabilitate himself I make this offer to the cadets, athletes and non-athletes, who have been recently detached from the U. S. military academy."

"I shall pay the board, room and tuition of the young men, Catholic or non-Catholic, among them who wish to enter the University of Notre Dame with the understanding that they meet Notre Dame standards and academic requirements, that they need such help, and that these young men will not participate in any form of varsity athletics."

Knudson said the interstate commerce commission, of which he is a member, is prepared to take drastic steps to cope with the situation.

He told ICC officials and lumber and grain men from five states that there has been no car shortage in the northwest lumber industry for several months. Actually there has been a surplus, he said.

Knudson declared that this surplus has caused some shippers to send their products by round about rail routes, diverting them from one point to another until the market price became more favorable.

ICC agents have been alerted to watch for such practices, he said.

Knudson said that grain is starting to back up at shipping points again, and that a permits system is now in effect. It is designed partly, he said, to prevent storage of grain in freight cars.

Help Needed to Post Sign on Highway Here

The North Santiam Chamber of Commerce has suggested to the Salem chamber that it assist in financing a 10-by-20-foot sign to be erected on Highway 99E just north of Lancaster drive.

The sign advises travelers to turn east at Salem for the Detroit dam and points east and south.

A letter to the Salem chamber from L. H. Wright of Stayton, secretary of the North Santiam chamber, says Bend and Sisters are cooperating and suggests that a total of $100 for a period of three years, the duration of the sign contract, would be appropriate.

Contract for First Atomic Powered Sub

Washington, Aug. 21 (AP)—A contract for the first atomic-powered submarine has been awarded to the Electric Boat Co., at Groton, Conn., the navy announced today.

The announcement gave no details. The fact that a formal contract has been let, however, presumably indicates the project has advanced to a point where the navy feels confident a nuclear-powered submarine can be built.

In an informal report to congress last February, said great progress toward such a submarine had been made in experimental work.

the northwest corner of McMinnville. Five other stops during the day will be in Marion county.

On Friday, August 24, the tour will begin at 9 a.m. at the R. E. Kerr filbert orchard at 2020 River road between Junction City and Eugene. Five other stops will be made during the day.

Idle Loggers Urged To Harvest Crops
Oregon loggers, left idle by the dry weather forest closure, were urged Tuesday to take their families into the orchards, bean fields and hop yards and help save the crops.

Earl R. Lovell, director of the state employment service, said loggers could use their idle time to earn many extra dollars and help alleviate the shortage of 6,000 harvest workers.

He declared the Salem office could use 1000 bean pickers now and 300 hop pickers within two weeks, while Eugene, Lebanon and McMinnville areas are also short of help.

Flow of Columbia Increasing at Dam

Seattle, Aug. 21 (AP)—Flow of the Columbia river at Grand Coulee dam has been decreasing at a rapid rate the past few weeks, the Bonneville power administration reported today.

Its flow last week averaged 126,000 second-feet, as compared with 181,000 second-feet the previous week. The drop was caused partly by storage operations upstream at Kootenay lake.

Although the flow is still a little above average for this period of the year, a continued decrease at such a rate could mean a serious power shortage in future months, the administration said.

On several rivers west of the Cascades the flow was below average for this period, although the decrease was a slower rate than that of eastern Washington rivers.

C. W. Hamblin Leaving Here

Dr. Chester W. Hamblin, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Salem for the past six years, president of the Westminster foundation for the synod of Oregon for five years and for two years head of the Oregon Council of Churches, has accepted a ministerial call from the Palo Alto, Calif., First Presbyterian church.

Official notice will be given the Salem church board Tuesday night.

Just when Dr. Hamblin will sever his connections with the Salem church will not be determined until he had had an opportunity to discuss the matter with his official board.

No announcement concerning a successor is expected to be made for some time.
