TRAFFIC SAFETY experts tell us that one of the evils of one-way streets is the inclination of motorists to cut corners when turning left into side streets and to drive on the wrong side of the street unintentionally. That is something the driver must guard against himself, they say.

SOMETIMES when you watch a couple of expert glass men working you think they are just lucky, at first. Then, when you see them remove a cracked show window after taping it, without dropping a fragment, you admit there must be some skill involved. Two such men are C. K. (Kirt) Dye and Don Hayes. "Our greatest problem is sidewalk superintendents," Kirt says, "but we've never cut a throat yet."

WE WONDER, sometimes, how Father James Maxwell out at St. Paul handles his large parish with all its problems without a blemish on his pleasant disposition.

CENTRAL HOWELL folks have their own little joke, but it just could be coincidental. At the south end of the banquet room in the basement of the school house are the rest rooms, but neither is marked "boys" or "girls." The home folks know which is which, of course, and get many a chuckle from the dazed expressions on the face of the stranger.

MARTIN A. VIESKO, master plasterer of 2440 Bluff St., has left his mark in this world. He helped to plaster the famous Dohney Catholic church, the general hospital, Hall of Justice and City hall in Los Angeles. He likes to recall the days in Salem, when he was a boy, and steak sold for 10 cents a pound. What a memory!

SAWPIT JACK, our old friend up Stayton way, writes that he knocked off a rooster pheasant this year with a 14-inch tail feather. "Not so long," Sawpit writes, "but pretty good when you consider I bagged him with a slingshot. My powder was wet that day." Don't know about that one. Sawpit's stories don't always check out. We asked Sawpit about the slingshot, and he said he doesn't usually use it until the season closes. "It's so quiet, like," he added.

EVER NOTICE that chipper little redhead lady around the Safeway store at Broadway and Market St., during the shopping hour? We're thinking of Betty Smith, who lives in a cozy apartment right back of the Master bakery. Her red hair is gray now, but she still has the pep.

AND THEN THERE is a chipper guy, Joey Tompkins, who is quite a wizard with a camera. He's an ex-Marine and at one time was quite a yard bird. Recently, Alex Jones sold him one of those fancy string neckties. No one would take Joey's picture, and he's still putting.

ONE OF THE BUSIEST gals we know in the valley is Mrs. Grace Ditter of Sublimity. She's active in about a dozen women's organizations, correspondent for the Capital Journal, and helps her husband, Gene, in their large general store in her spare time after the housekeeping is done.
