

Still No Trace Of 11 Missing

Astoria, Ore., Dec. 21 (AP)—The fate of 11 persons, missing in a fire which swept a ship anchored in the mouth of the Columbia river, still was not determined.

One hundred three others, including 23 passengers and 80 crew members were rescued by the coast guard shortly after flames whipped through the mid section of the Danish vessel, Erra, early yesterday.

Crewmen said the fire started from sparks from a shorted electric cable, a few minutes later a hold was on fire.

Survivors said crew members ran from cabin to cabin pounding on doors and ordering passengers to lifeboat stations.

Four of the eight lifeboats were lowered, the first with women and children and the others with men. Three boats burned and one was not launched.

The coast guard station, only a mile away, rushed tugs to the scene to pick up the lifeboats.

One survivor, E. L. Blythe of Portland, said "there was no panic, but most of the passengers left their luggage behind. Some of them were in night clothing and overcoats."

465-Lb. Santa World's Biggest

Canton, O., Dec. 21 (AP)—Santa Claus in neighboring Minerva, O., finds it quite impossible to squeeze into a chimney. In fact, he once got stuck in a bathtub. But this Santa—his real name is Raymond Fry, 47, a Minerva furniture dealer—doesn't worry about his 465-pound bulk. He claims he is the world's biggest Santa Claus, and he's a jolly man when Christmas comes around.

For five years now, Fry has been playing St. Nick for children's parties and other gatherings. He scorns pillows in favor of his honest-to-goodness paunch, but on one occasion he regretted that.

It was in Chicago, says Fry, and he was playing Santa for a "bunch of tough kids."

"They punched and pulled at me," he says. "When I took my suit off, after that appearance, I was black and blue all over."

Not at all averse to talking about his weight, Fry says: "I don't need anything unusual in the way of furniture to support my weight, but I do have an extra long bath tub."

"I got stuck once this summer in the tub because I had put too much soap in and could not get enough traction to lift myself up."

For breakfast, this Santa enjoys six eggs, bacon, toast, coffee and jelly (it used to be a dozen eggs). Then, in mid-morning, a cereal, followed by a big lunch, a big supper, and occasionally a snack before bedtime.

Marriage After 1-A No Bar to Induction

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP)—Men who are inducted after getting married while classified 1-A are in uniform legally.

Federal District Judge James R. Kirkland made the ruling yesterday in the case of Robert L. Albertson, New Port Beach, Calif. Albertson, now in Japan, asked the court to rule his induction illegal.

Kirkland said Albertson had not been treated wrongly by the law because the decision was up to selective service. He said the policy did not amount to "a moratorium on marriages."

Married men no longer are draft-exempt unless they have children or have a physician's certificate that their wives were pregnant before they got an induction notice.

The "red shift," which is a difference in the spectroscopic of light from distant stars as compared with light from nearby sources, indicates the universe is exploding, with stars traveling away from each other at great speeds.

'We Were Lucky'

Astoria, Ore., Dec. 21 (AP)—"We were terribly lucky," Eva M. Powley of Winnipeg, Canada, said today in a dramatic account of her rescue from the burning ship Erra near here yesterday.

She said she and her niece, Marjorie Hazelwood of Victoria, B.C., were asleep in a cabin on the third deck when the stewardess knocked on the door.

"We got up and got dressed. I forgot the coat to my suit, but I put on my street coat. We grabbed two towels to hold over our noses," she added.

"By that time the smoke had filled the corridor. The stewardess had told the crew that we were still not out of our cabins. A man with a gas mask came along the corridor to lead us out. I didn't get his name, but we held onto his coat tails and went up three flights to the boat deck."

"We were never frightened. But we were lucky. Had we gone back for some of our valuables we would not be here. That's what happened to many people aboard. They went back for something. We lost all of our clothes and our jewelry but what we had on. Our total losses would amount to about $5000," she continued.

"We reached the boat deck in time to see one of the lifeboats tip forward and enter the water head first. Luckily, no one was in it. Our boat, after it was launched made three trips back to the ship to pick up survivors hanging on ropes. On the last trip the water was only six inches from the gunwales of the boat."

"We were in danger of being swamped as the water poured out of an exhaust pipe on the boat and into our lifeboat," she said.

"One of the women started screaming, but a passenger in the boat told her to shut up, and in no uncertain terms, she did. After we landed, we got a real reception from the coast guard, the navy and the Red Cross. It was terrible about those people who lost their lives. We knew all of them personally. We knew about the boat 10 days. I guess we won't really feel this disaster for a week. Then it will hit us."

"I don't know what we are going to do. We had planned to sail to New York and spend a week there."
