

Planning Trip to Moon?

Here Are Hazards to Be Faced

Cleveland (AP) — Poisonous ozone, cosmic rays, boiling blood and drowning in the water of one's own body. Those are a few of the hazards awaiting the first man to fly to the moon, says an authority on the earth's upper atmosphere.

What's more, Dr. Clayton S. White said in an interview, once the pilot of the future leaves the earth's atmosphere he must contend with speeding meteors, meteorites, micrometeorites and other flying bodies. Dr. White is research director of Lovelace Clinic in Albuquerque, N.M. Last November he headed a symposium at San Antonio, Tex., on the physics and medicine of the upper atmosphere. He addressed a joint meeting of the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences and the Cleveland Academy of Medicine here Tuesday night. Dr. White said getting a rocket ship into the upper atmosphere is feasible, but a great many problems must be solved before man can survive there. Here's what the doctor says is ahead for the pilot who tries

Oxygen starts to run out at 8,000 to 10,000 feet. Above 80,000 feet there isn't any. At 22,000 feet the barometric pressure is down so much that decompression sickness hits the pilot. His blood boils and there is no room for anything but water in his lungs, causing him to drown. Around 60,000 feet there is a poisonous concentration of ozone. Above that is intensive ultraviolet light from which earth dwellers are protected by the atmosphere. Then come X-rays from the sun and cosmic rays in high concentration. However, Dr. White concluded, if any nation can get a ship into the upper regions, it should be the United States. To make a quick tomato paste empty a can of tomato paste into a saucepan and stir in a paste can of water; season with salt, pepper, and any desired herbs. Add a tablespoon of butter, margarine, or bacon drippings and bring to a boil, stirring often. Use the sauce to pour over fish filets and bake in a moderate oven until the fish flakes easily.

Farm Home Razed By Albany Blaze

Albany — Fire destroyed the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Linn Wills late Tuesday morning eight miles north of Albany near the Conner school. The Wills' daughter, a babysitter, and her son, escaped the house unharmed. Mr. and Mrs. Wills were working in nearby fields when the fire started. The baby sitter called the Albany fire department from the home of Harold Grate, next door. Grate rushed over to the burning home and saved a refrigerator, brooder and chicks. The fire, believed to have started by a flue, leveled the house, leaving only a nearby woodshed. AMAZING PAZO ACTS TO RELIEVE PAIN OF SIMPLE PILES INSTANTLY Speed amazing relief from misery of simple piles, with soothing Pazo.
