

Oregonians will see and hear what happens to a city during an enemy attack when they visit "Alert America" show on Swan Island, Portland, June 25 through 30. Scene above is one of many three-dimensional portrayals of war that could hit American cities. The civil defense show, now touring the nation, was built by Valley Forge Foundation. Admission is free.

Defense Show Set for Monday

Ten red, white and blue trailer trucks, carrying the Valley Forge Foundation's "Alert America" show, will arrive in Oregon Monday. The convoy will receive police escort from Interstate bridge to Swan Island, Portland, where the show will be set up in the navy's auditorium from June 25 through 30. It is open to the public without charge. State Civil Defense Director Jack Hayes, whose office is cooperating with Portland civil defense in bringing Alert America to Oregon, said the exhibit is the first of its kind ever built. It portrays all methods of warfare, and explains how civilians can meet any threat through common-sense preparations. Fred Thompson, chairman of the mayor's citizens committee in Portland said that civic clubs, churches, labor unions, women's organizations and veterans are giving active support to Alert America Week. He invited everyone in Oregon to see the show when it comes to Swan Island. Opening night is June 25, from 7 to 10 p.m. From June 26 through 30, doors at the auditorium will be open from one o'clock til 10 p.m. Billings, as a "Paul Revere on Wheels," its purpose is to show that civil defense is a new concept — is part of America's total defense in the event of a third great war. It is visiting 28 states during the first tour. The show is animated in light, sound and color. In addition to an atomic attack room, where visitors will see a city destroyed before their eyes, "Alert America" explains civil defense operations before and after an attack, peacetime uses of atomic energy, and the freedoms Americans want to protect.

Red Cross Operates Blood Program for Civil Defense

The Marion county Red Cross chapter has agreed to assume control of and undertake the operation of the civil defense blood and plasma program for Marion county. The local Red Cross chapter will recruit and train bleeding teams so they will be immediately available in case of disaster. At the present time all Red Cross bleeding teams work out of Portland. Some Salem doctors and nurses are now working voluntarily on such teams but many more will be needed. The Red Cross chapter will also compile and maintain lists of proven Group O donors. These lists will be deposited in various parts of the area so they will be immediately available where and when necessary. Blood from Group O donors, known as the universal type blood, can be used in emergencies, with any other type. A stockpile of necessary equipment and supplies for the procurement, processing, transporting and administration of whole blood will be maintained here for disaster purposes. Wallace S. Wharton, director of Marion county civil defense, believes that the civil defense blood program should be integrated into the general Red Cross program because it has done outstanding work in providing blood for members of the armed forces and also to hospitals within the county for transfusions to patients requiring such treatment without cost to the patient for the blood itself.

Vickie Won't Be Witness

Portland (AP)—Vickie Kader, 4, won't be permitted to testify against her mother who is charged with the first degree murder of Vickie's sister. Judge Frank Lonergan ruled for the present Friday that the child is too young to be a competent witness at the trial of her mother, Mrs. Jada Kader. Mrs. Kader, 22, is accused of smothering her other daughter, Sherrie, 3, and then dropping her into a drainage pit. Vickie, police said, witnessed the slaying and under questioning told them about it. Police quoted Vickie as saying Mrs. Kader held her hand over Sherrie's face and then threw her in the pit because Mrs. Kader was "mad at Sherrie." Mrs. Kader at first told police Sherrie had been kidnapped. Later she led police to the body and said Vickie had accidentally killed her while playing and that she hid the body to protect Vickie.

Distilled Water Safest for Use in Home Steam Irons

Dallas—Distilled water is safest for your steam iron. Many Oregon communities have soft water, and the accepted practice has been to use tap water in the steam iron. Water may be soft, but still contains certain impurities which will eventually erode the inside of the steam iron. Mrs. Manlio Reichert, Polk county home extension agent, says to use distilled water, unless the directions on your steam iron specifically state that tap water is to be used. It may take several years before the homemakers in the "soft water" communities begin to have trouble with their steam irons. The softer the water, the longer it usually takes to close off the small steam holes in the iron with mineral deposits. Homemakers in the "hard water" communities or those using well water, are reporting that they are having difficulty with their steam irons. The electrical repair shops say that most of the steam irons brought in for repair have been used with tap water.
