

Burrus Returning—SFC Lloyd L. Burrus, 344 North 23rd street, Salem, is among the Army combat veterans on rotation from Korea slated to dock in San Francisco Wednesday aboard the transport, Sgt. Howard Woodford.

Fishing Trip Set—As a part of the summer "Trips Program" of the YMCA, 20 boys are to be taken to Pamela lake on a fishing trip Friday of this week. Any boys interested are requested to contact the Salem YMCA.

Ex Gov. Olcott

In Salem he became acquainted with Oswald West, who later became governor, and the friendship between the two was a factor in Olcott's also becoming Governor. Also they became brothers-in-law, West having married Miss Mabel Hutton of Salem and Olcott later married her sister, Lena Hutton, on Christmas day in 1912.

After Olcott had been in Salem a short time Olcott and West took a one-year hunting and prospecting trip in the mountains, after which Olcott returned to Salem and re-entered the employ of William Brown & Co., by whom he had been employed soon after first arriving here. About a year later he entered the employ of the Ladd & Bush bank.

In 1897 he again went prospecting, and joined the "Wild Horse" gold stampede to British Columbia. Returning to Keithsburg, Ill., he became cashier of the Citizens State bank, remaining there until 1904. In that year he went to Alaska and mushed 1000 miles from Nome to Fairbanks. He took a position in a branch bank at Chena, located at the head of navigation on the Yukon, and was also gold dust teller and buyer for the Fairbanks Banking company in Alaska in 1905 and 1906.

He returned to Salem and entered the state land office under West who at that time was land agent.

West became governor in 1911 and in April of that year when Frank W. Benson, secretary of state died, West appointed Olcott as secretary of state. Olcott was elected to the office in 1912 and again in 1916.

The secretary of state was the successor to the governorship in event of death or resignation of the governor. Governor James Withycombe died in 1919 and Olcott succeeded to the office. He served until 1923 when he was defeated by Walter H. Pierce.

After the governorship Olcott went to Long Beach, Calif., as manager of a branch of the Bank of Italy, but shortly returned to Oregon and made his home in Portland. He was director of Oregon Mutual Savings bank in that city.

He was a member of the Elks and the Masons and of Al Kader Shrine of Portland. Mrs. Olcott died several years ago. He is survived by three sons, Chester Wallace Olcott, Gordon West Olcott and Richard Hutton Olcott. The two latter are twins.

525 Homes

Those who receive house numbers under the mounted delivery system may consider such numbers as permanent, unless a complete renumbering program for the entire area is undertaken, reports the postmaster.

Mounted service means that the patron will receive mail delivery once a day in a box on a post in front of the residence involved. House numbers must be placed on the residences.

The two carriers who are now serving routes 7 and 9 will be transferred to city service. The change from rural to mounted service is the second of considerable size to be effected by the postal service in the Salem area during the past two years.

11 Known Dead

Children and their parents rushed into the streets, crouching, stunned by the giant shaking. A large water tank crashed, flooding the area.

Ed Ritter of Riverside said he was sitting in a service station in Tehachapi when he heard a terrifying rumble.

"The earth rocked convulsively and the entire faces of buildings crumbled and fell in." In seconds, he said, the town was "turned into a shambles."

Another amateur quoted Carl Turner of the Kern County Sheriff's aero detail, who flew in Red Cross workers, as reporting two-thirds of the city's buildings collapsed, with one house caved in and a family probably trapped.

In Sacramento, the state capital state civil defense headquarters ordered medical equipment mobilized to fly into the area.

Tehachapi, with a population of about 3,000, is on U.S. 466 between Bakersfield and Mojave, a little mountain town 4,000 feet high, many of whose residents work at the big monolith Portland cement plant nearby.

It also is the site of the State Women's Prison, which was reported so hard hit that most of its cluster of two-story buildings are unusable.

A call went out for tents in which to house the 327 inmates, including all of California's women convicted of felonies. The prisoners were reported panic-stricken but unhurt.

Sheriff's Capt. F. D. Jones said he understood most of the dead were in an old brick hotel. The town's residential district was damaged, but no deaths were reported there.

Caveins were reported in at least two tunnels in the area, used jointly by the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific railroads, and all travel was blocked.

The S.P.'s main line to San Francisco, which runs along the coast, was not damaged. The Santa Fe said it would move its passengers by bus.

But the main-traveled route between here and Bakersfield, the Ridge Route U.S. 99 was blocked by a slide near Gorman. A highway patrolman said "it seems like the top of a mountain slid off," burying the busy, four-lane freeway route under 25 feet of dirt at one point.

Man Dies in Gas-Filled Room

Alan E. Edwards, 32, a traveling accountant who had offices in the Oregon building, died Sunday afternoon from gas asphyxiation at 1175 Nebraska street.

Coroner Leston W. Howell said Edwards apparently took his own life.

Edwards, in an unconscious condition, was found shortly before 3 o'clock by Miss Billie Scott, who lives in the house. She observed the odor of gas and called police. Officers found all burners on a gas stove open.

Edwards left a note to Miss Scott. The coroner said that Miss Scott and Edwards were out together Saturday evening, had a disagreement and that Miss Scott went away with friends.

She told the coroner, Howell said, that she returned home early Sunday morning, saw Edwards lying on the couch in the living room, and that she then returned until afternoon when she found the man unconscious.

Edwards, a certified public accountant, is believed to have no relatives.

Flames Destroy Rosedale School

The Rosedale rural school, abandoned since its consolidation with the Salem district recently, burned Sunday night in a fire that started mysteriously in a shed at the rear of the building.

Loss was estimated at $10,000 including desks, books, a piano and maps that were to have been moved to a new building soon, according to Connell Ward, clerk.

The Liberty-Salem Heights fire company was called to the scene, but too late to halt the flames. The fire was prevented from spreading, however.

Salem Will Get Radio News Of Soap Box Derby at Akron

Salem Soap Box Derby fans are going to get the word on how Salem Champ Doug Adams makes out in the All-American Derby at Akron, Ohio, on Sunday, August 10, by way of two Salem radio outlets.

KSLM, through its Mutual-Don Lee hook-up, is going to carry a broadcast of the All-American finals, and if it's physically possible we'll be there to tell you how Doug did.

As soon after the race as possible, we're going to get the whole Adams family on the telephone to KOCO here to record their impressions of the All-American, which will be released to you Sunday night.

Last Saturday Champ Doug and family took in the Vancouver, Wash., Derby, where Doug had opportunity to congratulate the titlist, 12-year-old Donald Mervin, who won by inches from the A class champion.

The whole Adams family, Champ Doug, Runner-Up Danny, Brother David and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh E. Adams, plan to start for Akron in the family Chevrolet next Saturday.

They'll be met by a police escort at the outskirts of the city and conveyed to Derby headquarters at the Mayflower hotel. Today Doug's bug, newly painted and carrying the Capital Journal's name, is to be sent on its way to the top side of Derby Downs in Akron. The Douglas McKay Chevrolet company, co-sponsor with the Journal for the Salem Derby, is handling the crating and shipping of the trim racer in which Doug hopes to cop that national title and the $5,000 college scholarship that is grand prize.

Shriners on Picnic—Salem Shrine club's annual picnic at Pat's Acres Sunday was attended by about 400 members, their wives and families. W. J. Braun, president of the club, was in general charge of the picnic and included in the day's diversions were a Shrine band concert and sports. Some casualties had first aid. A yellowjacket stung Curtis Hale in the eye. Two children cut their feet on glass while wading, and Frank Shafer got a finger dislocated in a softball game.

Gov. Stevenson

The row got so hot in the early hours of today that party leaders hastily changed the program of the opening session to obtain a cooling-off period.

They postponed until tonight or Tuesday a showdown on the basic issue which threatens to split the party wide open. That issue is called civil rights.

But the showdown was inevitable. Harriman and Kefauver strategists have formed a coalition in an attempt to ram through a combined "fair play" and loyalty pledge resolution which would bar anti-administration Texas and Mississippi delegations from the convention or bind conservative southerners so tightly to the 1952 platform and nominees that they dare not bolt.

North-South Fight

When that resolution comes this convention may match the historic bitterness of the Ku Klux Klan brawl of 1924 or the party's free silver disaster of 1896. The political heirs of Franklin D. Roosevelt were ganging up on the south regardless of consequences. A moderate element sought to calm the storm.

Stevenson said "no" again Sunday, but Illinois National Committeeman Jacob M. Arvey and other boosters went right ahead with plans to place his name in nomination. They said they were "positive" he would accept a convention draft.

South Closes Ranks

The south had closed ranks again behind Sen. Richard B. Russell, Georgia, after some days of indecision when he was accused of wooing labor with a promise to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act. N candidate was close to the minimum 616 votes necessary to nominate.

The candidates' standing according to United Press tabulation as the gavel was falling: Sen. Estes Kefauver, Tennessee, 271; Russell, 199 1/2; Harriman, 99; Stevenson, 79 1/2; Sen. Robert S. Kerr, Oklahoma, 48; Barkley, 28. Uncommitted or unknown, 299 1/2. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt had one vote in the big Pennsylvania delegation.

Two Hospitals

The present Salem General hospital building will remain in use for chronic, aged, emergency and psychiatric patients. Its normal capacity, often exceeded because of the demand, is 63 beds.

So, with construction of the first unit of the new building Salem General will have a normal 123-bed capacity. Room for additional beds in the old building will be made by removal of the surgery to the new building.

The new building, which will be the west wing unit, will be three stories high. It will have an overall length of 201 feet and a maximum width of 50.4 feet.

The tower will contain the hospital elevators and utility equipment. It will be topped by a penthouse.

Location of the new building will be in the same area as the present hospital on Center street, but north and east of it, with a tunnel connecting the two, which will carry heat conduits from the boiler room in the old building.

The question whether the grants for the Salem hospitals would be approved by the state board of health went before the board from its advisory council which recommended in Salem's favor against the opposition of several Portland hospitals that sought the council's recommendation.

The new wing at Salem Memorial hospital will be of three stories and will join the south end of the present building. It will contain 42 medical-surgical beds and increase the present capacity of 105 to 140.

The maternity department of the hospital will be remodeled and part of it placed on the third floor of the new wing. Space vacated in the present building by removal of the maternity department will be remodeled and converted into surgical and recovery rooms.

James L. Payne is also architect for this expansion. Irwin F. Wedel, superintendent, said the board would be ready to call for bids about August 1.

Hatfield to Tell—Mark Hatfield, Oregon delegate to the republican convention in Chicago, is scheduled to give an eye-witness description of the convention before Salem Junior Chamber of Commerce members Tuesday noon at the Senator hotel.

Julia Cooley Injured—Mrs. Julia A. Cooley, 90 years old, is a patient at Salem General hospital with a possible skull fracture resulting from a fall at her home, 111 Chemeketa street. The hospital reports her as in satisfactory condition.
