

Thrills Slated At Horse Show

Thrills and spills galore will come fast for both spectator and contestant this Saturday and Sunday afternoons as Salem's own Rodeo and Horshoew unfurls the top events of three different type horse shows, Western, English, and Rodeo, it was announced today by Gene Teague, Stayton, publicity chairman.

High class entries in all contests have assured the sponsors of this show that competition will run high, and the cowboys will be in need of plenty of sky-hooks if the rodeo stock lives up to its reputation, said Teague.

Salem's own 1952 Rodeo and Horshoew, to be held on the "Association Grounds" on South River Road this weekend, is sponsored by the Oregon Mounted Posse and The Salem Saddle Club. Both organizations contain top flight riders and horses that will be vieing against many big name contestants outside of Salem. All late or post entries will be accepted upon arrival.

Glen Conklin, in charge of events, predicted a fast track and the possibility of several new track records. Conklin has also lined up several side events including a performance by the Yamhill County Sheriff's Posse on Saturday and the Clackamas County Sheriff's Posse on Sunday. Show time starts at 2 p.m. Saturday and 1:30 p.m. Sunday with a grand entry for each performance.

Dallas Woman Routs Attacker

Dallas, Ore. (AP) — Police Thursday hunted a man who appeared at a farm house near here and attacked a woman with a hammer.

The victim, Mrs. Margaret Benson, 34, frightened off the man with a rifle, quickly brought to her by a daughter, Connie, 12.

Mrs. Benson told police Connie answered the door and the man asked for her mother. When Mrs. Benson put in an appearance, the man began hitting her with the hammer. She screamed to Connie to bring the gun. The man dropped the hammer Oregon Canning Acreage Has Almost Tripled in Past 10 Yrs.

The increasing importance of canning as a major source of Oregon farm income is shown by the fact that the state's vegetable producers are devoting nearly three times as much land to crops for canning and other forms of processing as they did 10 years ago, according to American Can Company, suppliers of metal containers.

Dr. H. E. Michl, economist for the company, explained that in 1941 only 26,680 acres of Oregon farm land were planted to vegetable crops for processing. In 1951 farmers cultivated 78,850 acres.

He noted that last year's vegetable acreage for processing alone was almost two-and-a-half times the total 1941 acreage devoted to crops for both processing and fresh markets.

"The value of the state's canning and can-making industries but snatched it up again as he fled.

Police said there was no apparent motive for the attack. Mrs. Benson said she had never seen the man before.

to the welfare of Oregon farmers was sharply emphasized when the 53-day steel strike virtually shut off supplies of tinplate for making cans," he declared. "Fortunately, American Can was able to supply its canner customers despite the strike.

"This was because the company made the largest investment in its history—months before the strike—in inventories of tinplate, work in progress, and finished cans to the full extent allowed by government regulations. We have also just rushed tinplate from the company's Hawaiian plants to help meet immediate demands for cans to pack perishable crops."

In addition to their contributions to Oregon farmers, the canning and can-making industries also help bolster the state's prosperity by employing thousands of workers each year in canneries and can-making plants, Dr. Michl emphasized.

About 80 million people lived on the approximately 3,000 islands of the Republic of Indonesia.
