Hearing Slated For Top Official

Washington (AP)—A top justice department official was reported Thursday to be a prime target of house investigators in hearings starting next Tuesday.

Rep. Chelf (D., Ky.), chairman of the special judiciary subcommittee investigating the department, declined to identify the official beyond saying he is still in the department.

Most of the top assistants to former Atty. Gen. J. Howard McGrath have resigned or have been given new duties in a department shake-up instituted by McGrath's successor, James P. McGranery.

The subcommittee is known to have been working on one official "in particular" for some time, and investigators reported they now think they have the "missing link" of evidence they needed.

Chelf gave no indication of the nature of the committee's case, but said there would be some "surprising revelations."

"When the democrats came into power 20 years ago I could wear a size 12 dress. Now I have to wear a size 46. I've grown too fat under the administration of the democrats."

Keating said she switched to the republican party.

Delay on Radar Plane Controls

Washington (AP)—The Air Force lost several million dollars and more than a year's time trying to get ultra-new defense armament for B-47 atomic bombers, it was disclosed Thursday.

Undersecretary Roswell L. Gilpatric told the United Press that $105,000,000 in contracts with Emerson Electric Co. have been washed out because the St. Louis firm proved unable to produce an intricate radar fire control system for guns on the 600-mile-an-hour Stratofortress.

That action came more than five years after the first of five contracts was placed. Air Force sources said Emerson originally submitted the most acceptable proposal in response to bid invitations.

In St. Louis, Emerson President O. C. Schmidt said he had no comment on the contract developments.

Truman Knows 4 Boys Cited on Liquor Charge

There was no comment on Sparkman's statement that the recent steel strike had been mishandled.

Silent on Margaret
Nor did the president wish to go into any detail on the incidents involving daughter Margaret, Secret Service and Swedish newspapers.

In response to a question, Truman said he hadn't made any personal inquiries but had read reports regarding charges in the Swedish press that Secret Service men accompanying his daughter had used roughhouse tactics.

He said no new instructions are planned for the Secret Service guards because they are always right and don't need any.

Swipe at Post
On another international matter, Truman had nothing to say about the calling of a new communist party congress in Moscow, sizing it up as none of his business.

At one point, he took a swipe at the Saturday Evening Post, saying it is always wrong.

That was in response to an inquiry whether he intends to answer an article in the magazine that said he gave the country false information about a grain shortage.

Truman said he hadn't read the article and didn't intend to. He said he almost never reads the Post because it always is wrong.

Asked how he knows, whether he got a briefing on such things, the president said all he needs to do is look at the table of contents and he knows.

Mess Referred To
Another line of questioning centered on an exchange of correspondence between Governor Stevenson and a Portland newspaper editor which referred to "the mess in Washington." Truman said he had no comment because he knew nothing of any mess.

some talking to the ship's boats and others going over the side straight into the rescue craft.

"The forward half sank almost immediately, but as we left, the after part was still afloat but sinking slowly," said First Engineer Dulcilio Sant'ago of Brooklyn, N. Y.

The two big lifeboats, meanwhile had assembled the survivors—Capt. Utvik and 23 others in one that brought them to Ramsgate, and the other 13 in a Dover boat.

Truman Knows 4 Boys Cited on Liquor Charge

Four juveniles were cited to the court of domestic relations Thursday morning on charges of illegal possession of intoxicating beverage and one adult was fined $25 in municipal court for furnishing minors with liquor.

The quintet was picked up by city police where they were parked in City View cemetery, 290 Hoyt street, with the remains of a half-case of beer in their possession.

Jack Leo Emerald, 23, a parolee of the Fairview Home, admitted to police that he bought the beer at a tavern when the four 15 and 16-year-old youths put up most of the money and asked him to buy it for them.

Emerald is paroled to a Mr. Green at the American Legion club, 2650 S. Commercial, where he works and lives.

The four juveniles were released to their parents prior to their appearance in court.

Bridge in Freeway
The bridge is a part of the new four-lane freeway under construction between Salem and Portland. Contract for the grading of the freeway north of the Willamette river to the Boones Ferry road has been let and the work is under way.

A route for continuation of the freeway from the Wilsonville bridge to Salem has not been definitely decided upon. Authorization of the work on this section of the road is dependent upon the legislature authorizing additional bonds for the highway program in the state.

At the last legislature the highway commission requested authorization of issuance of $75,000,000 in bonds but the legislature reduced this amount to $40,000,000 for a three-year period, on the grounds that this sum would carry on the needed work until the 1953 legislative session, at which time the road program could be reviewed by the legislators and determination made on the issuance of additional bonds.

Columbia Basin Primary Issue

Boise, Idaho (AP)—The governors of Oregon and Washington, after a strategy conference here with General Eisenhower, agreed Thursday that Columbia Basin development is the primary issue of this campaign year in the Northwest.

Earlier, the Republican Presidential nominee had said "the inspiration, the vision and plans" for development of the West must come from Western people, with a minimum of federal participation.

Eisenhower conferred Wednesday with nine Western governors.

On the Columbia Basin issue, Langlie said the proposed Hells Canyon Dam on the Snake River is a "poorly conceived dam and does not answer the purpose as claimed."

Of the basin development program, McKay added: "We do not want it done by a CVA." Langlie said the other governors felt likewise.

Speaking for the governors after the Eisenhower conference, Langlie said Wednesday the "general feeling" among them was that the public lands plank of the Republican platform did not fully express their feelings. He said they were preparing a memorandum on it for Eisenhower.

Donald Ban MacCrimmon, great Scottish musician, wrote the lament, "MacCrimmon Never Will Return" before he followed Bonnie Prince Charles in the campaign of 1745 and died in the Route of Moy.

Middle of Road Policies Promised by Eisenhower

Kansas City, Kan. (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower says the paths to the extreme left and far right both lead to tyranny—and that the Truman administration is traveling left.

"The greatest problem of America today," he said, "is to take that straight road down the middle, the path of progress that will never allow tyranny to become the feature of the future of the American government."

The Republican presidential nominee set forth those views in a speech Wednesday night in Boise, Idaho, and then flew here for a Thursday conference with GOP leaders from seven mid-western states.

At Boise, Eisenhower told a police-estimated crowd of about 20,000 persons:

"We have had for a long time a government in power that applies the philosophy of the left to government."

And he said centralization of power in Washington has become so great that the government "does everything but come in and wash the dishes for the housewives."

The general spoke from the steps of Idaho's capitol in making what his associates had billed in advance as his first frank political speech since winning the GOP nomination July 11.

Eisenhower disregarded his prepared text, but in his off-the-cuff remarks he stressed much the same theme he had outlined in the prepared version.

The general promised that as president he would devote all his efforts to providing a government "that does not grow complacent, that does not grow away from the people and become indifferent to them, that does not become arrogant in the exercise of its power, but strives to be the partner and servant of the people and not their master."

Civil Service

However, it developed that the so-called department policy had never been outlined in an directive, but had been "discussed" at several appraiser meetings.

The hearing was enlivened when Attorney Williams objected to Smith smiling at a question posed by the attorney.

"This is no laughing matter," Williams declared. "A man's job is at stake."

It was pointed out at the conclusion of the hearing that any decision that the commission might make would be advisory, as the commission can take final action only in such cases as dismissal can be proven for racial, political or religious reasons.
