Chandy Points Way to Peace

Peace can come by reconciliation of one way of life with another, using the good parts of both, K. K. Chandy, Christian leader from India, told an audience at the Fellowship of Reconciliation conference Saturday night.

In his address at the Salem Woman's club he outlined the differences and the similarities among capitalism, communism and community living as they may be applied to the idea of reconciliation. Different peoples react in different ways to each of the three, he said.

In another address he spoke on the subject, "The Ministry of Reconciliation," and was one of the participants in a panel discussion with Miss Elly Mayr of Austria, Hideo Hashimoto of Lewis and Clark college, Portland, Francis Dart of University of Oregon, and Orval Etter, far west secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation.

Theme of the panel discussion was that reconciliation may be attained and may ease the world tension in the struggle for power by injecting the Christian spirit of love for man and God into world relations.

Miss Mayr, one of the main speakers of the conference, spoke on the possibility of reconciliation as seen from behind the Iron Curtain.

The conference closed Sunday morning with a worship service with the Unitarian Fellowship, where Chandy spoke on the Gandhian movement. He was an associate of Gandhi in India.

Woman to Face Stabbing Charge

Roseburg (AP)—District Attorney Robert Stults said Sunday he would file a manslaughter charge against Mrs. Mary Jewel Gilpin, 29, in the stabbing death of L. C. Parker, 40.

Mrs. Gilpin, mother of two children, admitted stabbing Parker with a hunting knife early Sunday after an argument that began at a Saturday night dance at Tenmile, near here, Stults said.

Parker, who roomed at Mrs. Gilpin's home, escorted her to the dance but became angered when she danced with other men, she said in a signed statement.

She went home in a taxicab with a 17-year-old youth whose name police withheld, her statement said. Parker arrived later and the argument resumed. Stults quoted Mrs. Gilpin as saying she grabbed up the knife and stabbed Parker, then flagged a passing car and told occupants to call police. Parker died on the way to a hospital.

Ralston Here Tuesday Night

Members of the Salem Knife and Fork club will listen to a discussion of "Back Stairs of History" Tuesday night when the guest of honor will be Cameron Ralston, former chairman and executive secretary of the famous Committee of One Hundred which had so much to do with curbing the activities of the late Al Capone in Chicago of the late '20s, erstwhile college professor, author and popular platform speaker.

The meeting will be held at the Marion hotel. Ralston has long been a favorite speaker in the Knife and Fork clubs and it is believed that many will want to take advantage of his presence in Salem to hear him speak on history.

Ralston was born in Paisley, Scotland. Fittingly enough, his father was a weaver. The boy came to America while still a young man in 1914. After serving in the AEF he worked as a miner and at other hard trades before he entered college. After being graduated he served for awhile on the faculty of Washington and Jefferson college, Washington, Pa.

For a number of years he served as director of public forums for the United States department of the interior and during those years he became a lecturer in his own right. In speaking of his personal ability on the platform, Dr. John W. Studebaker, the then United States commissioner, had this to say of Cameron Ralston: "He is a dynamic speaker and a man of great vision."

Group to Study Flying Saucers

Wellington, New Zealand (AP)—A group of New Zealand scientists, engineers and air pilots Monday formed a society dedicated to proving that flying saucers really exist.

The founders of the new society—the Civilian Saucer Investigation of New Zealand, Inc.—said saucers must be operated by a high intelligence since they avoid even pursuing aircraft.

The society members also suggested saucers recently sighted in Australia and New Zealand were due to someone's interest in the recent explosion of Britain's first atomic weapon on the Monte Bello Island off Australia.

In ancient times meteors were believed to originate in the atmosphere.
