Bible Words to Live by

What should be the favorite scriptural verse for every person appears frequently in both the Old and the New Testaments of the Holy Bible. It is the warp and woof of the spiritual life of the individual and the divinely constituted bond of human relations. It appears first in Deuteronomy and it was emphasized by Jesus Christ as the basic law for character perfection and the pledge for eternal salvation. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with thy whole heart, and with thy whole soul, and with thy whole mind, This is the greatest and the first commandment. And the second is like it, thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments depend the whole Law and the Prophets."

This precept was the burden of the preaching of the Apostles. St. John the Divine makes it the theme of his epistles. The saints became saints because they understood and practiced it. To quote only one, St. Therese of Lisieux, who has so much influenced the modern world to better living by adopting her "little way of love," closed her extraordinary life with the words: "My God, I love Thee."

No one can find the secret of true happiness until he has accepted in thought and deed this fundamental principle for right living. It is for this that God created man and it is in this unselfish love that he finds his perfect union with God and his neighbor.

Most Rev. Joseph C. Willging, D. D. (Roman Catholic) Bishop of Pueblo, Colo.

Deaths on Operating Table Generally Due to Heart Failure

Milwaukee, Wis. (AP) — A Cleveland, O., surgeon says that at least one out of every 10,000 patients dies while on the operating table because of heart failure during an operation. Dr. Claud Beck said "the number of deaths may be even higher."

He called it "a tragedy of the first order, so awful we must not let it happen."

Addressing a meeting of the Wisconsin State Medical Society, Dr. Beck described his program to revive patients who "die" while undergoing surgery. He is a professor of cardiovascular surgery at Western Reserve university.

Beck said that by "death" he meant stoppage of the heart after which the patient was almost certain to remain dead unless emergency action was taken.

"The problem is," he said, "to get oxygen into the blood through the lungs. Then the oxygen-carrying blood must circulate through the body.

"Unless that is done, permanent brain damage is likely to occur within five minutes."

The procedure Beck recommended for reviving the patient calls for an immediate opening of the chest by surgery and massage of the heart. That causes it to pump the blood.

Simultaneously, a tube carrying oxygen is connected between the lungs and an elastic bag and the bag is squeezed to make the lungs "breathe."

Beck said that if oxygen equipment in the operating room is ready for use, a surgeon who performs the emergency operation to enable him to massage the heart is "almost sure" to succeed in reviving a patient whose heart stops.

He urged doctors to start a training program to prepare physicians for the operation and to obtain the necessary equipment for such operations.

Beck also said an outside stimulant, such as adrenalin is used to aid in restoring heart action when the organs at a standstill.

Heart stoppage may be caused by anesthesia, shock or unknown causes, he said, but it usually is quite easy to get the heart to beat again through massage and other aids.

Beck told of one successful case in which surgeons took turns and massaged a patient's heart for four hours to restore its action.
