

Hearing Held on Bill to Ban Paper Liquor Ads

The WCTU bill to abolish liquor advertising was opposed before the house alcohol committee Monday by Carl C. Webb, manager of the Oregon Newspaper Publishers association. "Advertising regulations now in force under the Oregon Liquor Control commission are much more stringent than those imposed by federal laws or those in most other states," Webb said. "Both advertisers and advertising media are constantly working with the commission to help it enforce its advertising regulations," he added. Mrs. Lamar Tooze, representing the WCTU, said liquor advertising encourages young people to drink and that it's false and misleading. Carroll O'Rourke, president of the Oregon Ad club, said the people don't want liquor advertising banned. He cited the fact that in 1930, the people overwhelmingly rejected a bill that would have banned liquor advertising.

Farm Prices Down 11 Pct.

By PATRICIA WIGGINS
Washington (AP) — Questions and answers about the farm price problem that has set off a controversy between Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson and some members of congress:

How much have farm prices declined?

For the past two years, prices farmers received for their crops and livestock have moved gradually downward. The level of all farm prices is now 11 per cent under a year ago.

Cotton is now selling at 29.79 cents a pound compared to 41.38 cents two years ago; hogs at $17.80 a 100 pounds compared to $20; beef cattle at $19.70 a 100 lbs. compared to $27; wool, 51 cents a pound compared to 98 cents.

Some crops, like wheat, have not dropped so sharply in price. But production costs, fertilizer, machinery and others, have not dropped as much as prices received by farmers so farmers net income has shrunk even on these crops.

Parity Explained

What is "parity"? Government economists have figured out a price on each commodity which they say will give the farmer a fair return on his crop in relation to his costs of production and living expenses. The "parity" price also is supposed to be fair to people who buy the crop.

Pressure Vessel to Reflect Expansion

A substantial expansion of Oregon industries during the past two years is reflected in the technical work of the state labor department completed for that period, Commissioner W. E. Kinsey said today in revealing that his department has issued permits for the operation of 29,830 industrial pressure vessels of all kinds. This figure represents a gain of 9218 vessels over the preceding biennium, he said.

Kinsey stated that Bureau of Labor statistics showed 6666 boilers, 16,878 unfired pressure vessels and 6286 liquefied petroleum gas tanks in active service in Oregon toward the end of 1932—all subject to annual inspection. In addition, Oregon manufacturers increased their production of such vessels by 480, constructing a total of 4681 in the two years. These were shop-inspected by labor department technicians for compliance with the safety code of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the legal standard for Oregon.

During 32 of the first 36 years of the U.S. republic, it had a native Virginian for president.
