

Student Activities Are Noted

By BARBARA JACKSON

Christian Resource Week will begin Tuesday on the Willamette campus. Chapels, firesides, and panels will be given during the program. Replacing Religious Emphasis Week, the program will be started Tuesday at 10 a.m. with a chapel at the First Presbyterian church and an address given by Bishop Raymond A. Grant of Portland.

At 2 o'clock a meditation service will be held in the First Congregational church and at 8 p.m. will be the concert of Marian Anderson in Salem high school auditorium. Following her performance there will be a reception.

The Rev. Herbert E. Richards of Boise, Idaho, will address the student body and towns people at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the First Presbyterian church. The Rev. Mr. Richards will moderate a panel of students, discussing "God on This Campus?" at 3 p.m. in Waller hall.

Firesides at the various living organizations will be Wednesday evening. During Thursday chapel at 10 o'clock the Rev. Mr. Richards will speak on "The Realness of Christianity" in the First Presbyterian church. Three movies, "Song of Bernadette," "One God," "They Heard the Angels Sing," will be shown at 2 o'clock and at 7 p.m. Thursday in Waller hall.

Friday morning at 8 o'clock there will be a communion and dedication service in the First Congregational church, completing the program for the week. A library display will be on exhibit throughout Christian Resource week, with books and materials from all denominational publishing houses.

Spring rush for the four sororities on Willamette's campus will come to a close tomorrow night with formal bidding to membership. Wednesday rush began with open house in the chapter houses of Alpha Chi Omega, Chi Omega, Delta Gamma, and Pi Beta Phi. Yesterday simple parties with entertainment were given, and tonight parties will again take place. Tomorrow afternoon is the second preferential luncheon and the first preferential dinner will take place tomorrow night. After formal bids have been sent, firesides will be held in all four houses for the new pledges.

Elected as president of the Associated Women Students after elections last week is Mary Campbell of Salem. Assisting her as first vice president will be Judy Fullager of Portland, and Yvonne Grosser, also of Portland, as second vice president. Joyce Schmitz of Beaverton, secretary, and Elizabeth Loving of Portland, treasurer.

Officers were installed at Miss Campbell's home in Salem Sunday and an informal party followed. In cabinet meeting action the new officers decided to hold their annual AWS dance March 13 and chose Gall Urdike of Portland as chairman of the affair.

Margie Leonard of Silverton was elected president of Alpha Chi Omega this week. Assisting her will be Carol Emerson of Corbett as vice president, Frances Smith of Portland as second vice president, Charleen Asvik of Portland as recording secretary, Anne Mellis of Roseburg as corresponding secretary, and Mary-Jane Stewart of Portland as treasurer.

New president of the Willamette law school is Paul Dally of Longview, Wash. Ronald Watson of Calgary, Alberta, Canada, will be vice president, and secretary-treasurer is Dick Barber of Salem. Jack Weisser of Bend was chosen to be student body representative.

More elections on the campus named new officers of the classes. Bob Miller of Vancouver, Wash., was elected senior class president, and other senior officers are George Buland of Palo Alto, Calif., vice president; Joyce Foster of San Mateo, Calif., secretary; Marilyn Merz of Ada, treasurer, and Barbara Baker and John Ambler of Portland as sergeants-at-arms.

Junior class president is Gay Weeks of Salem, and assisting him will be Ken Cooper of Seattle, Wash., vice president; Carol Emerson of Corbett, secretary; Bob Batchelder of Portland, treasurer; Duane Shields of Bothell, Wash., and Bob Hanauksa of Salem as sergeants-at-arms.

Bob Alfred of Portland is the new sophomore class president, and other officers are Doug Graham of Portland, vice president; Pat Gentle of San Leandro, Cal., secretary; Pat Harris of Portland, treasurer; and Dick Rohrer of Portland and Dick Lewis of Lebanon as sergeants-at-arms.

Chaperoning 30 Girls from As Many Countries Real Job

By DOROTHY ROE

How would you like to be responsible for 30 beauty queens from 30 different countries, each speaking a different language and each convinced she's the most beautiful girl in the world? How would you like to keep track of their dates, advise them on manners and dress, get them to appointments on time in a body, and keep them under constant surveillance to guard against accidents, flirtations and scandals?

How would you manage to prevent squabbles and hair-pullings and make sure none of them slipped out for a late date or got lost in the subway or suddenly got homesick and decided to take the first plane for home?

This is the annual headache of Jane Kilbourne of Pan American World Airways, who each year has the job of chaperoning contestants for the title of Miss Universe when they arrive in the United States for the grand finals in Long Beach, Calif.

This year more than 30 contestants are expected to be on hand for the finals, and though they are not due to arrive until July, preliminaries already have been started, and Miss Kilbourne already is having chills.

The finalists for the "Miss Universe" competition are chosen from hundreds of entrants in each country. When Miss Italy, Miss Finland, Miss Uruguay and the rest finally arrive in New York or California for the home stretch, each already has been thoroughly feled, flattered and conditioned as a prima donna.

Last year the harried Miss Kilbourne shepherded the girls who arrived from Europe through the New York terminal, and after two days of constant supervision was suffering from an acute case of frazzled nerves, eyestrain and heebie-jeebies.

None of the girls escaped Jane's eagle eye until they were delivered into the keeping of firm and determined Red Cross women in Long Beach, one assigned to each girl.

But the interim was a study in tension worthy of our best movie directors including the time when the girls were assembled for a meeting with New York City officials, complete with newsreels and TV cameras — and one girl was missing.

Francis chaperon Jane found the culprit in her hotel room, gorging herself on ice cream sodas. Somehow the stout-hearted Miss Kilbourne managed to survive her ordeal with no major calamities, however, and even made such an impression on her charges that many of them still write to her regularly.

Pair Wed At Albany Feb. 14

Albany — A mid-February wedding was Saturday evening when Miss Patricia Louise Knowles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther L. Wade, Portland, was wed to Raymond LeRoy Neely, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Neely of Albany. The Rev. R. H. Welland read the 8 o'clock service at Immanuel Lutheran church.

The altar was decorated with baskets filled with Calla lilies, fuchsia, pink snapdragons and irises. Tiers of candelabras flanked the altar.

Preceding the ceremony, Marvin Martz sang. Mrs. Ralph Heins played the wedding music.

The bride was given in marriage by her stepfather and wore a white dress of Chantilly lace over satin. The bodice was fitted and topped with a stiped jacket fashioned with standup collar, long sleeves, pointed at the wrists. The illusion veil was fastened with a headdress of pearl flowerlets. The bride carried a bouquet of Calla lilies.

Mrs. Wanda Hein was the matron of honor and wore an orchid lace and net dress. She carried a heart-shaped bouquet of spring flowers centered with camellias.

Bridesmaids were Miss Patsy Cawfield and Miss Beverly Oshesky. They wore blue dresses made identically to the matron of honor and carried similar bouquets.

Joseph Neely, Jr., was best man for his brother, and ushers were Kenneth Phelps and Walter Foley.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Wade wore a mauve-shaded street length dress with harmonizing accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a beige colored street length dress with black accessories and her flowers were also pink carnations.

The reception was in the church social hall with more than 100 in attendance. Bouquets of early spring flowers were used as the decorations. The wedding cake was heart-shaped and was surrounded by candles and flowered hearth.

Mrs. Lydia Coughlan and Mrs. Carl Schooley poured and Mrs. Irwin Kampfer, aunt of the bride, served the cake. Serving were Mrs. Harrell Wilbanks, Mrs. Dick Seavy and Mrs. Monte Kropp. In charge of the guest book was Mrs. Floyd Runyon. Mrs. Don Hendrickson was in charge of the gift table.

The couple left on a wedding trip to the Oregon coast, the bride wearing a two-toned grey gabardine suit with black and white accessories topped with a red coat. She wore an orchid corsage.

The bride attended high school at Carlisle, Pa., and the University of Oregon. The bridegroom attended Albany high school and Oregon State college. After February 21 the couple will be at home at 1700 E. Eighth avenue.

SALEM HEIGHTS — Mrs. Hugh Kelley entertained the South Hills Garden club Tuesday evening. Assisting the hostess was Mrs. Lewis Bartlett. Sixteen members answered to the roll call. The group decided that each member bring some worth while topic on gardening to the next meeting and discuss it.

P. H. Brydon was the speaker, discussing pruning roses. He showed colored slides on rhododendrons and camellias.
