Jeffers of UP Summoned

Pasadena, Calif. (P)—Death has ended the success story of William Martin Jeffers, 77, former president of the Union Pacific Railroad.

He died yesterday in a hotel of what an associate described as "complications of advanced age." He had been ill for two years.

The son of a railroad, Jeffers began his career as a call boy for the Union Pacific at 14. He became president of the road in 1937, when it had 65,000 employees. In taking the job Jeffers said his ambition had been realized and that it was "a greater thrill to become president of the Union Pacific than to have become president of the United States."

His administration was marked by many progressive advancements, including fast, low-fare trains, low-priced dining car meals and service by nurse-stewardesses.

Jeffers took great pride in maintaining close contact with the men in the ranks, and friends said he never was too busy to stop and talk over the railroad problems with the workers. He continued to carry his card in the telegraphers' union after becoming an executive.

Zoning Group Doubles Time

For the next three weeks at least, and maybe longer, the zoning committee of the city planning and zoning commission will work double time on the new zoning code.

At a meeting last night the committee decided to meet Wednesday and Thursday nights of each week instead of only on Thursday nights as it has been doing for the last two years.

The twice-a-week meetings will continue until the code is completed and all corrections made. After that will come public hearings in various parts of the city, and these will be followed by hearings before the city council.

Members of the zoning committee, who have changed the code to meet conditions in a city that has doubled in population since the commission was formed 25 years ago, are Robert Stanley, chairman, Robert Powell, V. D. McMullen, City Attorney Chris J. Kowitz and City Engineer J. H. Davis. The committee has had the assistance of two real estate men, George Grabenhorst and James B. Young.

Seek Limit on Income Taxes

Formation of a state-wide bipartisan citizens' committee to support Senate Joint Resolution No. 6, which seeks a "minimum limit on federal income tax rate," was announced Friday by Robert A. Bennet, former legislator and counsel for the Oregon committee to limit federal taxation.

Dr. James Buckley is chairman of the group, Irving Rand, former state senator is secretary and Eugene Caldwell, treasurer. All the officers are from Portland.

The committee is obtaining information from Oregon business firms as to the effect of federal tax rates, from 22.2 percent to 92 percent, on business and industrial expansion and creation of new payrolls.

Lt. Victor Gibson Back To Duty With Army

Returning to inactive duty with the Army Thursday was Lt. Victor Gibson, who was called to active duty with the 389th engineers Army Reserve unit from Salem in October, 1950.

Gibson left for duty in France in January, 1952, and had been there with the 81st engineer boat company, stationed at Rochefort, France. His wife and the couple's three children, Carolyn, Victor, Jr., and Melanie, joined him in France in July, 1952.

The officer and his family arrived back in the States February 1 and have returned to Salem to their home on Cunningham lane.

Lt. Gibson is a veteran of World War II, serving in Europe with the 20th Armored division at that time.

Forming Committee To Push Bond Sales

Bruce Williams, Marion county defense savings bond chairman, is forming a committee to be announced soon for an energetic sales program here this year to help reach Oregon's 1953 quota of $46,300,000. The national quota for the E, H, J and K series bonds will be $5,600,000,000.

Williams said payroll savings and sales to farmers will be particularly stressed this year.

Tornado Victim—A Red Cross nurse tends a 2-year-old victim of the tornado that swept through Bald Knob, Ark., last year. Both of the youngster's legs were fractured. To help her and some 238,000 other victims of disaster in 1951-1952 the Red Cross spent $21,100,445.

Home Service Is a Main Job of Local Red Cross

Red Cross, which now is conducting its annual fund drive in Salem and Marion county, performs a multitude of services, some well known such as the blood program, while others are not so well publicized.

One of these lesser-known services is what Red Cross calls "home service." Hardly a day goes by but that one to 10 home service cases are processed in the local Red Cross office, making it the most expensive of all programs, Manager Frank Parcher estimates.

Last year, the local chapter's home service processed 1,374 cases, spending $5,817 in financial assistance. To continue its work here, and in other parts of the world, Red Cross home service depends on the financial support now being asked during the month-long campaign for funds.

Basically, home service is that portion of the Red Cross program devoted to helping members of the armed forces and their families. It offers counseling in personal and family problems; it assists servicemen and their dependents by providing reports and social histories needed by the military; it offers guidance concerning direct communication between servicemen and dependents; and, it transmits information through Red Cross channels when direct communication will not work.

Nearly every day, Mrs. Helen Bailey, home service director for Marion county Red Cross chapter, battles against time and red tape to get a serviceman home in time to see a seriously ill member of his family.

The need for "going through channels" when dealing with any of the armed services is one reason Mrs. Bailey urges servicemen's families to see the Red Cross first when necessary to get in touch with a son or husband away from home.

"We're used to finding servicemen out of contact with families. Just last week we were asked to locate a boy who had not been heard from since 1951."

To work effectively at locating and bringing together servicemen and their families, the Red Cross home service program must work not only through Red Cross offices in this country and overseas, but through military authorities as well.

The scope of the home service program is hard to explain, Mrs. Bailey says, but some understanding of its size can be gained by looking at facts and figures:

In the Far East alone Red Cross has a staff of 400 experienced field workers helping fighting men in Korea and Japan. In Europe, 200 workers provide thousands of services needed by servicemen and their dependents. In the United States, Red Cross has a field staff of 1,970 workers at 186 military installations, 95 military hospitals and 78 veterans administration offices. In Red Cross chapter offices from Maine to Oregon, 14,600 home service workers, such as Mrs. Bailey, counsel and assist thousands of servicemen, veterans and their families each month.

Conference to Close Sunday

The week-long Interchurch Missionary Conference of the Evangelical Foreign Missions Association will come to a close Sunday afternoon with a great missionary rally in the First Baptist church. A score of missionaries dressed in native costumes will participate.

The closing address will be given by Dr. Vincent Brushwyler, executive secretary of the Conservative Baptist Foreign Missionary Society, and president of the Evangelical Foreign Missions Association. His subject will be "Communism and World Missions." He has traveled extensively, recently returning from Africa, Europe, and the Far East including India and Japan, and is well informed on the effects of Communism on missionary lands. An offering for foreign missions will be received as part of the afternoon service.

This Interchurch Missionary Conference is the first such conference to be conducted in the U. S. on a cooperative basis by Evangelical Missionary Societies. It was planned specifically as an experiment in cooperative missionary effort. Pastors of cooperating churches, enthusiastic over the success of the venture, have already requested another similar conference for next year. Dr. Clyde Taylor of Washington, D. C., executive director of the Evangelical Foreign Missions Association, has presided at all sessions of the conference. Locally it was supported by the Salem Association of Evangelicals.

Evangelicals Well Pleased

Leaders of the Evangelical Foreign Missions Association are elated over the response of the public to the Interchurch Missionary Conference being held this week in the First Baptist church. "Enthusiasm is growing daily," said Dr. Clyde Taylor, executive director of the association. Crowds of people have also shown a keen interest in the missionary displays being shown by the various missionary societies.

Last night's meeting was addressed by Dr. Harold Chalfant, international director of Christian education for the Four Square church. His theme was an appeal to youth to live their lives recklessly for Christ and foreign missions.

This afternoon (Friday), at the request of the local pastors, the 2:00 o'clock Open Forum will be conducted on the subject of missionary promotion. In the evening service three speakers will be heard. Rev. Roland Rice of the Oriental Missionary society will speak about Japan; Rev. Donald Turner of the Voice of the Andes radio station will speak about Ecuador.

Principal speaker during the evening will be Rev. Orval Butcher, representative of the Wesleyan Methodist church.

Spillman Speaks On Devils Strike

Evangelist Don Hiatt Spillman announces that he will speak on "The Devil's Sit Down Strike" Sunday night at 8 o'clock at Crystal Gardens. Will sinners have a second chance to be saved? Is one of many questions the evangelist promises to answer during his lecture which is open to the public.

"Stephen"—the first film in a series of outstanding sound pictures on the life of St. Paul will be featured at 6:45. This will be followed at 7:20 by the song service under the direction of Lewis Lyman. Interspersed with solos, duets, and quartets, this part of the meeting is enjoyed by all. Crystal Gardens is located at the corner of Liberty and Ferry streets. All seats are free.

Presbyterian Men to Hear Clifford Maser

"The War's Leftovers" will be the subject at the Men's Club dinner meeting Tuesday evening, March 10, at 6:30 o'clock, at First Presbyterian church. Professor Clifford E. Maser of Oregon State college will be the speaker.

Dr. Maser has had a life full of research and experience in world affairs. He is at present dean of the School of Business and Technology at Oregon State. He spent 1950-52 in Germany

Church Ready Early in May

The First Methodist church plans participation in the United Evangelical Mission beginning Sunday and continuing throughout the balance of the week.

Rev. Berlyn Farris of Eugene will preach Sunday morning during regular services at the Elsinore theater. He will also address meetings scheduled for each night in the Carrier room of the church.

First of a series of instruction periods will be held at 2:30 Sunday afternoon in the Carrier room.

According to predictions made by the contractor and the architect, the church, which is in the process of extensive alterations, will be ready for occupancy in the fore part of May. Unforeseen problems set the schedule back approximately a month.

The centennial sessions of the Oregon Conference will be held in Salem June 18-21 and it is the hope of the board of trustees that the church will be in readiness for that event.

New Cemetery Planned Here

A 56-acre cemetery, to be known as Restlawn Memory Gardens, is under development on the Dallas highway near Oak Knoll golf course six miles west of Salem.

The project is being developed by a firm having headquarters at El Paso, Texas, Norman Anderson and Associates, who purchased the land from Al Vernon. Don Fichter, who is Salem manager for the company, has offices in the Livelys building.

The company has a similar cemetery in Eugene, another in Portland, and two more are planned in the valley. The scheme of development is a series of gardens, each about an acre and a half in area, with a central memorial in the center of each.

Work on the project is to start this month and within the next three or four years an administration building is planned.

Undergoes Surgery

Dallas—Mrs. P. J. Voth of Salem underwent major surgery in the Bartell hospital of Dallas on Wednesday, March 4. She is reported doing very nicely.

Other medication cases confined to the hospital were mostly cases of influenza.

Apart from two species of bats, it is not believed there are any indigenous mammals in New Zealand.
