Young Pianist Greeted Here

Young Pianist Greeted Here
By DONNA EASON
A capacity audience greeted Tana Bowden, gifted young pianist, at Waller Hall last night. She was presented in the Salem Junior Federated Music clubs in a benefit concert. The profits to be shared by the artist and the Mary E. Denton Williams music scholarship fund.

The 17-year-old musician played an artist's program as an artist should play it. Each composition was presented with a depth of understanding and musicianship rarely heard in young pianists. Her beautiful melodic lines were shaped with artistry and her climaxes were sonorously satisfying.

The beauty, finesse and integrity of the opening Bach numbers captivated her audience at the outset. The Beethoven sonata, Op. 31 No. 2 was presented convincingly with a wide variety of tonal effects.

Although she always adhered to the tempo, she seemed to be recreating the meaning of the work and to be painting a large over-all picture.

Lovely indeed were the two moderns, Griffes' "White Peacock" and Debussy's "L'Isle Joyeuse." The six varied Chopin numbers closing the program were exquisite in lyrical quality—each a thing of beauty.

Recently Tana won the state contest of the Junior Federated Music Clubs for "Junior Musicians."

Harvey

It is estimated that the Salem TV station will serve a population of 740,000 and it will be as powerful a station as any UHF station in this part of the country.

The station will employ a minimum of 28 persons and it will be the policy to employ as many local people as have talent for TV, Harvey said. In discussing the station he warned that persons with television sets should ascertain that their sets have the channel or can be adapted to this UHF station.

Harvey left most of the details of describing what use the Harvey Machinery company would make of the old Salem alumina plant, if the firm acquires it from the government, to the chief engineer for the company, Gene Zinniger.

Harvey did say that there would have to be changes and additions made at the Salem plant, noting that it had been systematically cannibalized since it was started, with the original engineers not permitted to finish it.

He pointed out that it was not a complete plant for the purpose for which it was designed. As to the changes that would be made, Harvey said it would depend on what they did with the plant first.

He said that had the plant been awarded to his firm when it made the highest bid, certain contracts and contacts, along with the payroll at the plant, would not have been lost. He blamed the delay, because of indecision on the part of the government, for irreparable damage, that would require time to build back again.

"First we have to get the attack.

This was the first case in history of American military planes being attacked by Communist planes over the U. S. zone.

To Integrate

Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton, they said, had given a legal opinion that the plan meets conditions of the Oregon law, so no state barrier is foreseen.

Members of the subcommittee indicated that it may ask Senator Guy Cordon in Washington to represent the state at that end in getting immediate clearance.

Senator Merrifield said that if approval is received from Washington by the end of the week, the enabling bills could be introduced early next week. Further conferences are scheduled, however, with Arthur England, actuary for the state's present retirement act, he said.

Three bills will be necessary to carry out the integrated plan. First the legislature would have to repeal the present public employee retirement act outright. Next a bill must be passed enacting the federal retirement plan after which it will be necessary to reenact the state retirement act.

This procedure, Rep. Baum said, is required because the state must repeal its retirement act to become eligible for federal benefits. However, once eligible, the legislature must then reenact the state plan without federal objection.

Could Be Done in a Day
"The whole thing could be accomplished in one single day if the senate and house are willing to do so," said Merrifield. "There are no hitches; we've gone into the whole thing carefully."

USSR Accused

Lie, throwing aside his conventional neutrality as secretary general, said every other U.N. member had respected his authority and independence except for the "Soviet Union, together with the four member governments allied with it." He added: "Because of the stand I took in support of United Nations action against armed aggression in Korea, these five member governments have refused since 1950 even to recognize me as secretary general. For almost three years I have borne with this situation in silence."

Most Serious Violation
"Now, however, I believe the time is appropriate for me to say that this action, in my opinion, is by far the most serious violation of Article 100 of the charter that has occurred."

Article 100 forbids member governments to interfere with the independence of the secretary general.

"The policy of the Soviet government," Lie went on, "has been and continues to be a policy of the crudest form of pressure not only against me but against any future secretary general who may incur the displeasure of the Soviet Union for doing his duty as he sees it."

"It is to a large extent because of this Soviet attitude that I have offered my resignation."

plant," said Chief Engineer Zinniger.
He said the plant would be used to get synthetic cryolite and recover cryolite from old cell linings from the Harvey reduction plant located in the vicinity of The Dalles.

The major portion of the plant will be used for research and development work in connection with recovering alumina from domestic clay deposits.

This research will include the development of an economical method of making silicon-aluminum alloy, using domestic oxide of clay bauxite from this area.

Zinniger, with the Harvey Machinery company since the firm became interested in the development of aluminum in the Northwest, said that the firm will not limit its work to a reduction plant. It also has plans for fabricating facilities in the foreseeable future.

The engineer, who has another interest in the Northwest in addition to aluminum—his daughter is at the University of Oregon—is a native of Switzerland and was educated in that country, being a graduate of the University of Zurich.

Zinniger has been in the aluminum field for 27 years and has built aluminum reduction plants in many foreign countries, some among these being in India, Italy and Canada.

It's in the bag... Salem basketball fans will be able to view two of the NCAA tournament to be staged in Corvallis March 13-14.

Through the facilities of Television station KPTV in Portland the first game Friday night will be telecast and the final game Saturday night also.

This will be good news to the local B-Ball fans as the tickets to the top notch games were sold out long, long ago. Gill Coliseum which seats better than 10,000 people has been a sellout for several weeks.

Should everything follow the expected mold, the first game Friday night will pit the University of Washington against the Seattle University quint.

Northwest basketball fans have been begging for this fray for a long time and now it is practically a reality. Seattle plays Idaho State Tuesday night in Seattle and the winner meets Washington in the tourney opener Friday night at 7:00 p.m. From 7:00 to 7:25 p.m. will be the pre-game warm-up telecast.

Of course the game Saturday night which will be telecast at 9:30 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. can not be determined until the Friday night contests are played.

KING-TV of Seattle will telecast the event and will cable the pictures to Seattle and KPTV will in turn tap their lines to transmit to KPTV viewers.

G. C. Burton, special agent in charge, Federal Bureau of Investigation, Portland, will be in Salem tomorrow as the first instructor in an advanced training school for law enforcement officers in this area. His class will deal with ethics and public relations in law enforcement.
