

Carl Foreman Given Honors

Hollywood (AP) — A screen writer who once declined to tell a congressional committee whether he ever was a communist was honored Tuesday night by his fellow writers.

Carl Foreman was voted the writer of the best 1952 American drama at the fifth annual awards dinner of the Screen Writers' guild. He won it for his screen play of "High Noon." He was not present to receive the award.

Foreman testified in 1951 before the house un-American activities committee that he was not then a member of the communist party, but declined to say whether he had previously belonged to the party.

Other writers honored by their fellow craftsmen were Frank S. Nugent for "The Quiet Man"; Adolph Green and Betty Comden, for "Singin' in the Rain"; and Sonya Levien for "Quo Vadis" and "The Merry Widow."

Marcellus Winters, 28, is listed today as an escapee from Oregon State penitentiary, though officers believe there is a possibility he may be hiding inside the walls.

Winters was in the 6:30 o'clock count Tuesday evening, but at the 10 o'clock p.m. count he was missing. He was not a trustee and officers found nothing giving a clue as to how he got away if he is outside.

Winters was received from Clackamas county in December, 1952, on a 10-year sentence for assault with intent to kill. He has given no previous trouble in the prison.

Washington (AP) — Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay said today emergency repair work will start immediately on Savage Rapids dam on the Rogue river near Grants Pass in southwestern Oregon.

A contract for the work was awarded to Young and Smith Construction company, Salt Lake City, on a low bid of $343,854. The dam, a key water control structure on the Grants Pass reclamation project, diverts water from the Rogue river to irrigate some 10,300 acres of land in the river basin.

The reclamation bureau said a study showed that the 33-year-old dam "has deteriorated to a critical condition . . . threatening the economic existence of the community through partial disruption of the irrigation water supply."

Wend (AP) — A new water reservoir on Awreck Heights, part of the city's half-million dollar water expansion program, sprang a leak last weekend.

That was discovered when the five million gallon reservoir was being tested. It was drained Tuesday for repairs.

Washington (AP) — Rep. Roosevelt (D., N. Y.) Wednesday asked the house to remove Rep. Velde (R., Ill.) as chairman of its un-American activities committee.

Roosevelt introduced a resolution for removal of Velde. He told newsmen his move was based on "the admittedly false and reckless charges" Velde made against Mrs. Agnes Meyer, a threatened investigation of Reds among clergymen and "the fact that he (Velde) acted in both instances without consultation of fellow members of the committee."

Velde was officially elected chairman of the group by action of the house when the new congress organized in January.

Velde suggested last week-end that his committee might look into communist influences in the churches. This stirred up protests from a number of clergymen, including Velde's own pastor.
