Exams Due On Campus; Term Ends

By ALICE LEHMAN
(Capital Journal Correspondent)

Oregon State College, Corvallis (Special)—Typewriters clack, pens scratch and minds whirl as the last ounce of energy and "midnight oil" is used to finish term papers, notebooks and reports before the Friday deadline. Yes, the final week of classes has arrived and now there is a week of final exams to which we are looking forward. OSC students really know the term is coming to an end when the Barometer, student newspaper, announces that it is printing the last paper for the term. The first paper to be published next term is on April 1, this paper is called the "Thermometer." It is a so-called backward paper where all news is twisted to fit the needs of the editors and where the largest amount of news is jokes. Students always look forward to this once a year publication.

The Women's Recreational association elected last week and Kalja Lietuviets of Salem was elected secretary of the organization. Lela Beach of Independence was tapped for Parthenia, women's physical education honorary. Another Independence girl, Alice Rowland, was installed last week as Panhellenic president. Panhellenic is composed of the presidents from the sororities and is the controlling body for all Greek women's activities on campus.

Last week-end the OSC speech department presented its final play of the term. It was entitled "Our Town." The play is very unique in that it has no stage properties and the acting is all pantomime. The entire show is read by a narrator, Denny Felke

Members of the sorority from Salem who helped on the breakfast were: Margie Acton, Pebble DeSart, Beverly Young, Pat Healy, and Sally Becker.

Once again we close for a term, but will be back in two weeks with much more news and activities on the forthcoming spring term, the so-called sunshine term.

A bill aimed at making ballot titles more understandable was approved Tuesday by the house statute revision committee.

The bill, introduced by Reps. Alfred H. Corbett and Phil Roth, both of Portland, results from criticism that ballot titles at the November election were difficult to understand.

The bill provides for a single title on the ballot, and removes other restrictions that have tended to make them vague.

Italian Court Rules Vs. Britain on Oil

Venice, Italy, (AP)—An Italian court ruled today against Britain's Anglo-Iranian Oil Company in its fight to gain possession of 5,000 tons of Iranian oil brought here by the tanker Miriella.

The court found that the Supor Company of Rome, Miriella, had purchased the oil legally from the Iranian National Oil Company. The tribunal ordered the immediate release of the oil to Supor.

The court rejected the AIOC's request that the oil be sequestered. It had been impounded pending the tribunal's decision.

Labish Brokers Said Cornering Onion Market

Chicago (AP)—Three Californians said today they don't want to corner the market, they just want to buy onions, $1,000,000 worth.

They said they had no plan to take advantage of considerable "paper profits," possibly in excess of $1,000 a day, accumulated on a rising market the past two weeks.

During that time the price of onions for March delivery rose from $2.85 per 50-pound sack to Monday's high of $4.40. The market dropped 10 to 12 cents yesterday, and the Californians bought 360,000 pounds.

George R. Craig, Los Angeles, Walter McGillivray, Stockton and Moe Felberbaum, Oakland, said they came here because onions are hard to find on the West Coast.

The three are partners in the Labish Brokerage company at Brooks, Ore. They are primarily onion dealers, although Craig said he also was a grower. "Can't even get enough to flavor a salad back home," McGillivray said.

The Chicago Mercantile Exchange, world's biggest onion market, ought to squelch rumors of manipulating in onion futures. Joseph F. Sieger, chairman of the Exchange's board of governors said the rumors had been aimed at both the buying and selling side of the market.

Oregon's 10 independent colleges joined Tuesday in a statement urging the legislature not to make a four-year school out of Portland State college.

They presented their statement to the house education committee, which will hear similar objections Thursday from the state board of higher education.

The independent colleges argued that there is no immediate need for increased higher education in Oregon.

The college now gives only freshman and sophomore courses.
