News that KPTV is going to tele-cast the NCAA playoffs Friday and Saturday nights was well received by local sports fans. The way they are going to do it is: KING-TV will do the telecasting chores and the TV waves will be sent out from a tower atop Dearborn hall at Oregon State college to a tower some seven miles south of Salem atop Prospect hill. This tower is a special 200-foot job which was erected for this purpose by the telephone company. From there the waves will travel to a tower between here and Portland and then to the telephone company building on Broadway in Portland. KPTV will then pick up the waves from the telephone building on Broadway while the waves will be sent to the telephone office to be sent to Seattle via network relay cables, for KING-TV.

The trouble which has been bothering local televiewers the past week is due to technical problems the telephone company is having... so says KPTV.

During the above-mentioned trouble, local TV repairman's wife calls to tell him to come home and fix set... Gent already busy answering calls from public telling them trouble is station, not set... What a life!

Maybe same man, but anyway a TV repairman tells lady of the house here not to tinker with set. She didn't touch a knob, not even the on and off switch for over three months.

KPTV is having a tough time deciding who gets to work the morning of the Atomic Bomb blasts. This project will be telecast at 5 a.m. Sunday... Drawing straws may be the final outcome of it all.

Lawrence Harvey, local TV backer for UHF channel 24, KEY-TV, blew in and out of town as fast as one could turn a TV set on and off. Local radio station manager says he didn't even get to see him. A pair of ladies doing a lot of typing for his concern got to see his hat from a distance in local hotel. They were luckier than a lot of other Salem-ites I know.

No Red Composer Dared To Write Funeral Piece

Tokyo (AP)—Why was the work of Polish composer Chopin played at Stalin's funeral?
The newspaper Mainichi asked that question Thursday, then answered it this way:
"No Russian composer would write a funeral march, lest he be nabbed and purged for anticipating someone's death."
For two months in 1933, between the death of Colidge and the retirement of Hoover, the United States had no living ex-President.

Missing Prisoner Found Inside Walls

Marcellus Winters, Oregon State prison inmate reported missing Tuesday night, was found Wednesday night hidden in the industrial building.
Warden Virgil L. O'Malley had suspected that Winters was hidden inside the walls. For 24 hours guards and prison officers had combed the prison buildings looking for him.
Winters was missing at the 10 o'clock count Tuesday night. After a prison movie show he is believed to have mingled with inmates who are quartered in the prison garage building who have to go through the yard to get to their quarters. The warden thinks he may have dodged into a ditch and later got into the industrial building.
Winters is doing a 10-year rap from Clackamas county for assaulting a policeman with intent to kill.
