McMinnville (AP) — The order of Trappist monks plans Thursday to establish a monastery on a 1,200-acre site in the rich Willamette Valley near here.

It will be the first Trappist Abbey on the West Coast.

An announcement from the Abbey of Our Lady of Guadalupe at Pecos, N. M., said the community there would be transferred to the site here.

Temporary buildings will go up soon, and a small group of monks will begin building for eventual transfer of the others, the announcement said.

The purchase of the land recently was completed by the Rt. Rev. Don M. Columban Hawkins, C.S.O., abbot of the abbey at Pecos, and his procurator, the Rev. M. Christopher, O.C.S.O.

The site is three miles north of Lafayette, the bulk of the property purchased from Harry Kuehne of Carlton. Others sell-

Oppose Tolls For New Bridge

The state highway commission was accused of breaking faith with the people Wednesday as the senate highways committee heard opposition to the bill to impose tolls on the Portland-Vancouver bridge to pay the cost of a second span.

George Webber, secretary of the Upper Sandy Boulevard Boosters, said the commission didn't let the legislature know of its toll plans until it had the bill introduced in the legislature.

Rep. Alfred Corbett, Portland democrat, said the tolls would work a hardship on residents of southwest Washington who work in Portland, and students who cross the river to attend Portland colleges.

Washington and Oregon would build the new bridge. The Washington legislature already has passed a bill authorizing the tolls.

He also rebuked the highway commission for its silence on the bridge plans until the legislature met.
