Albany Welfare Beneficiaries Had $4800 in Bank Account

Albany—Refunding of $2,354 of illegally received public welfare funds to the state by an Albany couple, reported from Salem earlier this week, was in no way attributable to discussions at the state legislature over a proposal to render public welfare client lists open to public inspection, Mrs. Lucille McBride, Linn county public welfare administrator, said Thursday.

Mrs. McBride said the $2,354 check sent to the state treasurer represents all money received by the couple through the welfare department since 1951, when the two started receiving old age assistance.

At the time the couple made application, Mrs. McBride explained, a case worker thoroughly checked the couple's resources, finding the two had no funds in banks and owned only their residence, its site and an adjoining lot. The worker found the two had no children and no income, having exhausted their resources.

What the worker did not know was that the couple had more than $500 cash hidden in their home.

The administrator explained that old age assistance recipients are permitted to reserve up to $250 in savings to cover funeral expenses, which otherwise must be paid from public funds. The husband in this case is aged 85 and the wife 59.

Revelation of the fact that the couple had in excess of $500 accumulated in cash came when routine re-investigation was made last January, Mrs. McBride said.

This year, she noted, a new and more adequate report form for old age assistance recipients and applicants to fill out was distributed. The Albany couple received one of these blanks but failed to return it. Upon being pressed, however, and upon receiving a second new blank, the two finally on Feb. 28 filed the new report, and it was in this that they admitted they had $4,800 in a joint account in an Albany bank.

Of this amount, case workers found, most had been received from disposition of the couple's interests in property in 1945 and 1947, of which nothing had appeared in their previous reports.

Detroit

Detroit — Brownie Scouts of Detroit and Idanha were honored at an investiture ceremony Wednesday under the direction of Mrs. Francis Kettleston, Mrs. Howard Dean and Mrs. Bradford Humphrey, troop leaders.

Girls invested included Sherri Shepard, Marie Howland, Sandra Kite, Billy Shufford, Darlene Farrow, Wanda Jennings, Janet Wilson, Verna Worthington and Sandra Joyce.

Upon being apprised that existence of this credit in the bank rendered their reception of welfare funds illegal, Mrs. McBride said, the couple readily consented to refund the amounts they had received.

In the opinion of the case workers, Mrs. McBride said, the couple's original failure to report cash on hand was due to their failure to understand legal requirements rather than with intent to defraud the public.

The couple will not now be eligible for public assistance until their remaining funds in the bank have been exhausted.

Membership pendants were awarded to Judy Willis, Penny Lou Dean, Dorothy Cokenour, Gay Palmerton, Brenda Humphrey, Mary Lou Moore, Darlyne Delker, Katherine Harris, Lyndia Storey and Nancy Storey.

Mothers of the girls were invited for the ceremony and refreshments were served by the leaders.

The ladies' auxiliary of the Santiam aerie of the Eagles will sponsor a dance Saturday night at the Detroit school gymnasium.

Prizes and refreshments will be featured and music will be supplied by Gordon Winchcomb's orchestra.

ACORNS FROM THE

WITH DEL MILNE

There are many fellows with too many girls but I'm a little different—brother did I have girls in my hair... It's like this—last week I talked about my son Charles putting the bee on me for a steak from the Oak Room and at the same time getting his name in the paper. When my daughters Carolyn, Margiane and Mary Lee read that article they all combined to give me the "Royal Inauguration." "What does Charles have, besides cowboys boots, that we don't have?" "Mary Lee says cute things too, daddy, why not put her name in the paper?" "Carolyn is the oldest, she knows more 'n' anybody why not let her talk, daddy?" "Aw! I don't want to talk, let Margiane talk, I'd rather eat—say daddy I tell you, let's you take us all down to the Oak Room and treat us to dinner, then we'll all be happy." And don't think I didn't—but quick.
