New Church

work. But two hours were lost during the entire building program because of adverse weather.

In his sermon to those present, Archbishop Howard said the church was the fulfillment of the labors of many people.

"This church will, thank God, stand for many generations as a symbol of your spirit of sacrifice, your spirit of hope and your spirit of faith and life," said the archbishop.

Turning to the liturgical phase of the church, a phase that has been given considerable emphasis in recent months, Archbishop Howard stated that this was to bring to the fore the official life of the church—the mystical body of Christ in action.

"It aims not at the material but at the spiritual," he pointed out.

"Man is noblest when he prays, and liturgy is his highest art," continued the archbishop. "The great purpose is to bring us into the presence of Christ."

Among those assisting the archbishop were Rev. Joseph D. Howard, assistant priest; the Very Rev. William Killian, deacon of the mass; Rev. Method Korn, O.S.B., subdeacon of the mass; the Very Revs. Robert Neugebauer and Nicholas Deis, assistant deacons; Rev. James Harris, professional cross; Rev. Lowell Blackburn, archepiscopal cross; Rev. Donald Denman, master of ceremonies, and Rev. Armand Gelinas, assistant master of ceremonies.

While predominantly Catholic, the audience included a number of Protestants and Jews.

A dedication luncheon was held at the Marion hotel at 1 p.m. with Justice Hall S. Lusk of the state supreme court presiding as toastmaster. A welcome to the group was given by Father Vanderbeck, pastor of St. Joseph's church; with responses by the Very Rev. Theodore J. Bernards, dean, Oregon City; Mayor Al Loucks of Salem; the Rt. Rev. Thomas Meier, O.S.B., St. Benedict's abbey; Rt. Rev. Damian Jentges, O.S.B., abbot St. Benedict's; Most Rev. Francis P. Leipzig, D.D., bishop of Baker; Gov. Paul L. Patterson and the Most Rev. Edward D. Howard.

Heavy Use of Aircraft Made

One hundred and five aircraft were used in Oregon during 1952 in dusting or spraying a total of 916,846 acres.

A total of 14,453 hours were flown by the aircraft in these projects and dispensed were 15,478,109 pounds of dust and 1,302,609 gallons of spray.

In the area including Oregon, Washington, Montana and Idaho 491,845 acres were treated with 546 aircraft used and a total of 64,203 hours flown.

By states the number of aircraft used, hours flown and acres treated for the three states besides Oregon are:

Washington, 205 aircraft, 26,995 hours, and 1,772,433 acres.
Montana, 157 aircraft, 14,965 hours, and 1,708,683 hours.
Idaho, 79 aircraft, 7,790 hours, and 413,883 acres.

Included in the acres sprayed in the four state area were approximately 685,000 acres of timberland, treated for spruce budworm.

Aerial surveys fire patrols and other industrial uses had an additional 515 airplanes in the air for approximately 44,000 flight hours. This included the surveying of 11,559,000 acres of timberlands, which were surveyed for suspected bark beetle infestation.

GUARD MEDAL PRESENTED McKAY

Maj. Gen. Thomas E. Rilea, Oregon's adjutant general, presents Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay the Oregon Military Department's medal for distinguished service to the Oregon National Guard. The medal, which Rilea is placing on McKay, was presented during the general's recent visit to Washington, with the ceremony in the office of Sec. McKay. In the picture also are Oregon's four congressmen and Mrs. McKay. Left to right they are Rep. Harris Ellsworth, Rep. Walter Norblad, Rep. Homer D. Angell, Mrs. McKay and Rep. Sam Con.

Plane Attacks

3. Said his nomination of Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen to be Ambassador to Russia seems to him to be a very good appointment. The President made that remark in reply to a request to comment on a statement by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) that it was a serious mistake for the administration to press for Senate approval of the nomination.

4. Said he is deeply interested in Latin American affairs and that it might be a good idea for him to make a brief trip there, but that on the other hand it might better be left to emissaries.

5. Declared he feels this nation cannot afford to reduce its combat strength, but that he does hope to get more national defense for less money by eliminating waste and duplication.

6. Said government staffs have been studying a proposal for authorization of big increases in military and civil defense, but that no conclusions have been reached.

7. Said he would not want to do anything unnecessarily provocative at the moment with respect to any move in the United Nations to brand Russia an aggressor in Korea.

8. Said he has not heard a word on whether Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia is planning to visit the United States.

9. Announced he has asked Lewis Douglas, former ambassador to Great Britain, to head a group which will study such things as foreign trade, the raw material situation, and world markets generally.

10. Commended the Commerce Department for its estimate that its budget for the fiscal year starting July 1, will be cut about 15 per cent. The President said it is too much to hope that the over all picture will be that bright, but that each department is going to make every effort to cut as deep as possible.

It was Eisenhower's fourth news conference and it—like the others—drew a capacity crowd to the conference room in the old State Department building which seats over 200.

Governor

"On the other hand, we have an institution operating with its administration costs divided among some 3600 patients," he added. "The addition of several hundred patients would not make any material increase in such administration costs."

"I wish to make it clear that I am not opposed to the new hospital in or near Portland," the governor declared. "The people voted that they wanted a geriatrics hospital constructed in Portland, when and if funds were available and it is my view that the legislature must give consideration to this verdict of the people."

The governor said, however, that one of the last acts of the old state administration was to approve the priority list of state buildings, in which the rebuilding of the old state hospital building was given first place.

"The Soviet Union and its proposals have run into opposition in this forum from the United States," Zorin said. "Nevertheless, the Soviet Union will preserve in its attempts to bring about the prohibition of atomic weapons and other phases of disarmament."

Speaking of general Soviet policy, Zorin quoted from speeches by Malenkov passages avowing his desire to strengthen world peace.

Zorin said all peoples of the world, including the American people, aspire for peace, but he added that as far "as the U.S. government is concerned, it may be seen from Gross' statements that an armaments race is still the policy of the United States."

Violent Quake

there were 38 confirmed dead in the towns of Gonen and Manyas, but that there was no contact with the towns of Yenice and Cihan, believed to have been even harder hit.

The Balikesir police said they had unconfirmed reports that 500 were dead in Yenice and Cihan, towns of about 2,000 each. Their confirmed reports included 35 dead at Gonen, 100 miles Southwest of Istanbul, and three at nearby Manyas. They said more than half the homes in the latter two towns had been destroyed or damaged.

Istanbul Badly Shaken

The Istanbul Observatory said the quake was felt over an area of more than 10,000 square miles.

Throughout the affected area, people fled their homes, spending the night in the open. Houses and buildings shook throughout Istanbul but there were no reports of casualties in the big port.

A report from Gonen said that half the town was wrecked in the tremor. Rescue squads pulled 60 living victims from debris as fires broke out in the wake of the quake.

In New York, Dr. Frank Press, seismologist at Columbia University, classified the quake as a "severe, Class A earthquake, capable of doing severe damage." Press said his instruments continued to react to the shock for hours after the tremor.

Zorin Fails

To the second question as to whether the Soviet Union considered the U.N. the proper forum for such discussions, Zorin said the discussions have been going on in the U.N. and should continue.

"The Soviet Union and its proposals have run into opposition in this forum from the United States," Zorin said. "Nevertheless, the Soviet Union will preserve in its attempts to bring about the prohibition of atomic weapons and other phases of disarmament."

Speaking of general Soviet policy, Zorin quoted from speeches by Malenkov passages avowing his desire to strengthen world peace.

Zorin said all peoples of the world, including the American people, aspire for peace, but he added that as far "as the U.S. government is concerned, it may be seen from Gross' statements that an armaments race is still the policy of the United States."
