State Budget

However, he pointed out that this figure included only general fund appropriations and that actually, the entire budget, including all dedicated funds, will be approximately $550 million.

"We have revenue in sight to bring out a so-called balanced budget," Walker said. "But to bring out that budget, and to meet a part of the proposed building program, we will have to budget all of the $40 million surplus now in the general fund."
"That means we will begin the 1955 fiscal year without a surplus to draw from."
Walker told the senate that the ways and means committee was "very well along" and predicted it will be able to wrap up its work in two weeks.

Justice Warner ruled that he could find nothing in the act "which either expressly or by inference warrants a conclusion that legitimate competition among any number of dealers was intended to be suppressed or discouraged, nor is such an end essential to obtain the 'over-all purpose for which the act was designed.'"

Two strong dissenting opinions were filed by Justice James T. Brand and Justice Hall S. Lusk.

Dissenting Opinions
"I do not contend that the function of the defendant is not limited by statute to the wielding of a rubber stamp marked 'approved' on every application for a license," Justice Brand said. "But that statute, considered as a whole and viewed in the light of years of administrative and judicial construction, empowers the defendant to consider the broad economic aspects of the case with due regard for the interests of producer, distributor and the public."
"If the defendant has abused its power," he continued, "the judicial remedy is to correct the abuse, not to abolish the power. This latter function is legislative."

Justice Lusk took the position that the prevailing opinion was directly opposed to a former decision of the court upholding the authority of the milk administrator.
Other Decisions
Handed down by the court were: Evans Box Co. versus Weverhauser Timber company, appellant, appeal from Multnomah county, Aris G. Walker, circuit judge, judgment reversed. Opinion by Justice W. C. Perry.
Jean Ryan, appellant, vs. Robert Ryan Hotels, Inc., appeal from Cook county, Dan M. King, circuit judge, Decree modified. Opinion by Justice Walter L. Toose.
S. R. Brazil, appellant vs. Robert Dupree, et al, appeal from Multnomah county, James R. Bain, circuit judge, Order of trial court setting aside decision in favor of appellant considered withdrawn and granting new trial affirmed. Case remanded for further proceedings. Opinion by Justice Hall S. Lusk.
Clady Wintersteen, vs. Harry Semler, appellant, appeal from Multnomah county, Charles W. Redding, circuit judge, rehearing denied.

State to Refund About $400,000
Charles H. Heltsel, public utility commissioner said Wednesday that he would be required to refund approximately $400,000 in truck taxes already paid by truckers, as the result of the decision of the state supreme court in making the effective date of the tax November 4, 1952, instead of January 1, 1952.
Sen. Elmo Smith, chairman of the senate highway committee, said that the decision poses a serious question to the legislature.
"In light of the decision, any group of persons affected by a tax approved by the legislature, could be invoking the referendum, delaying the effective date of the tax, and thus save themselves a considerable sum of money just as the truckers did. Smith estimated that the state highway department would lose in the neighborhood of $1,500,000 as the result of the decision.
"Just how the legislature can cope with this question is something I don't know, but it certainly must be considered," Sen. Smith declared.

Francescatti Concert Perfect Season Finale

A program of beautiful music, the racial by Zino Francescatti, noted violinist, Tuesday, was a memorable occasion, certainly a perfect finale to conclude the season for the Community Concert association.

Francescatti is not a violinist of the show-off variety, not one of those who go in for gymnastics and all kinds of "see how I do it" techniques. With his playing music becomes something real. He has all the skill, interpretation, power and vitality it takes for perfection in violinism, and the tone he brings from the violin is one of beauty and remarkable clarity.

The selection of numbers made for an exceptional program. Opening with Two Romances by Beethoven, followed by the Brahms Sonata, the program highlighted the familiar Bruch Concerto in G minor. Following the Intermission came the Ravel Tragan, a number done to perfection, then several shorter numbers including the Debussy one, La-fille aux Cheveux de lin, that was played exquisitely. Francescatti came back for three encores, Dance of the Goblins by Bazzini, Kreisler's Schon Rosmarin and Folgado Campestre by Vals.

A concert in itself was the accompanying by Artur Balsam. His performance made the program truly a two-star one. He is a concert artist himself and has been accompanist in Francescatti tours for years.

Community Concert association members left the high school auditorium happy and thrilled with the season's series and await with keen interest announcement of the 1953-54 offerings. The workers' dinner meeting comes next Monday night.

Civil Service Row Patched up

A long drawn out hassle between the Board of Higher Education and the State Civil Service Commission regarding persons given academic rank by the board, placing outside the realm of civil service, has apparently been composed by the house state and federal affairs.

Rep. Mark Hatfield, chairman of the committee, said Wednesday that after many conferences, correspondence between representatives of both sides, the committee had completed amendments that while not wholly satisfactory to either side, had been accepted by them.
Under these amendments, made to a bill introduced at the request of the Board of Higher Education, all present persons holding academic ranks in the Board of Higher Education system, will continue to do so. In new appointments, however, the bill provides the State Civil Service Commission "shall have the right of review, and in the event that Civil Service Commission and the Board of Higher Education cannot agree, the final decision will be made by the governor."
Objections of both sides made at hearings were met with minor amendments.
