

Some Notations . . .

By M. L. F.

A legislative party for next week will be the one for which the Third House is to entertain on Monday evening in the house chambers at 8 o'clock. . . . In charge of arrangements is Roy Mayers, dean of the Third House group. . . . The event is for all members of the legislature and the legislative press.

Salem Zonta club members not attending the group's luncheon Thursday at the Golden Pheasant missed an interesting program. . . . Miss Dorothy Pearce and Miss Bertha Kohlhaugen, who were in charge of the program, were very philosophical about the matter, saying at the start they knew there would be a comparatively small attendance for the day because the program was by "status of women committee." . . . True enough there were more empty seats than usual, but the absent ones were the losers. . . . Miss Pearce and Miss Kohlhaugen many weeks ago sent out questionnaires to all members. . . . From those questionnaires they fixed up a "game" for the members, asking questions about different fields of work for women and the progress of women in all businesses and professions, as well as on general information about women who work. . . . Each member was handed a blank with 20 questions. . . . The questions ranged from "What factors have the greatest effect upon wages?" to "Are there more single or married women working?" from "How many Zontians answering the questionnaire said 'women are given equal pay for equal work in their respective fields?'" to "What percentage of the working women have children under 18 years of age?" . . . After filling out their answers in a given time, members exchanged their questions and corrected each other's as the answers were given. . . . There were some red faces when the correct answers were given, revealing many women working are not up on information and news about their sex. . . . Miss Pearce and Miss Kohlhaugen handed out some "bouquets" to some of the members who filled in the questionnaires with some interesting and pertinent facts about their fields of work. . . .

Thursday was a busy day in this department. . . . Preceding the Zonta luncheon there was the charmingly arranged coffee party for which Mrs. Herman Jochimsen was hostess at her attractive South High street home to honor Mrs. George E. Flagg, Portland, who is back in Salem with Mr. Flagg during the legislature. . . . Many of the guests were former neighbors of Mrs. Flagg when she lived here in the home now occupied by the Jochimsens. . . . To suit their family needs, the Jochimsens enlarged the house, and guests were interested in noting the additions and the tasteful decorating superintended by Mrs. Jochimsen. . . . Interesting accent on green features the decorating in the home. . . . many comments from all on the addition of the breakfast room or family dining room off the kitchen and the den leading off from it. . . .

The coffee table was arranged in the front dining room and was covered with a pretty pink satin cloth, the centerpiece an antique dish with pink, white, blue and red spring blooms and blossoms. . . . Pouring were Mrs. Daniel J. Fry and Mrs. Earl Snell. . . . Assisting about the living room and in the dining room were Mrs. Charles E. Heitsel, Mrs. Raymond Busch, Mrs. Harold M. Oltner, Mrs. Robert F. Wolf, Mrs. John A. Heitsel. . . . Among guests during our call Mrs. Linn C. Smith, Mrs. E. L. Edwards, Mrs. Edgar T. Pierce, Mrs. William E. Shinn, Mrs. Robert Drager, Mrs. James Walton, Mrs. Stewart Johnson, Mrs. H. L. Staver, Mrs. Kroll W. Kay, Mrs. Koopce Wilson, Mrs. Aurelia Grim, Mrs. A. D. Woodmansee, Mrs. J. N. Bishop, Mrs. Harry N. Crain, Mrs. H. E. Malson, Mrs. James E. Linn, Mrs. George W. Nelson. . . .

Two teas came Thursday afternoon. . . . There was a large turnout for the annual mother and daughter tea given by Salem unit of Oregon State Mothers club at the beautiful new Fairmount Hill home of Mr. and Mrs. K. D. Lytle on West Lincoln. . . . Among the guests was Mrs. Dale Miller of Portland, state president of OSC mothers. . . . The tea table was set with a white outwork cloth, pink camellias in varied shades and pink tapers in silver holders. . . . to Mrs. Carl J. Wendt and other committee chairmen went many compliments for the tea and the large group attending. . . . Town and Gown club's program and tea also was Thursday afternoon, at the First Congregational church. . . . Mrs. Victor F. Morris of Eugene was guest speaker to discuss Thomas Jefferson, his life, his ideals and his place in American history. . . . The tea table was all in white, covered with a white embroidered cloth and arranged with white camellias for the centerpiece, white candles at either side. . . . Flowering quince and the white camellias were used on the mantel. . . .

Friends attending the supper for which Dr. and Mrs. A. D. Woodmansee were hosts Tuesday evening following the Zine Francescatti concert found the violinist and his wife and Arthur Balsam, the accompanist, delightful conversationalists. . . . The Francescattis and Mr. Balsam were in Salem from Sunday evening until Wednesday afternoon and were delighted with this section of Oregon. . . . The Woodmansees drove the Francescattis and Mr. Balsam to Portland on Wednesday and the visitors were very interested in the valley farmlands. . . . The Francescattis live in a new home at Monterey, Mass., calling their place Fiddletop. . . .

For the supper party, Mrs. Woodmansee arranged the table with a pink satin damask cloth and a bouquet of pink and white camellias. . . . Mrs. Karl Heitsel, Mrs. Charles H. Heitsel and Mrs. David Bennett III assisted. . . . Guests for the affair included Mr. and Mrs. Francescatti, Arthur Balsam, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Heitsel, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Heitsel, Dr. and Mrs. William Lidbeck, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Heitsel, Mrs. David Bennett III, Mrs. William H. Lytle, Mr. and Mrs. Max Rogers, Dr. and Mrs. B. D. Blatchford, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Furvine, Dr. and Mrs. Dalbert Jensen, Dr. and Mrs. Wolcott E. Buren, William Wallace Graham and his daughter, Mrs. Virginia Newell, Portland, Dr. and Mrs. Chester A. Downs, Mr. and Mrs. James Walton. . . .
