

Mill Supply To New Home

The Mill Supply corporation will open for business Monday in a new home with double the floor space of the former location and increased facilities to serve its customers, Carl Steelhammer, president and manager of the corporation, announced this week.

The new quarters at 465 South Church street is a reinforced concrete structure with a 60-foot frontage. It was built on the site of the old Hanson-Lillequist building which was torn down some time ago.

It is owned by Carl Armpriest and was built by the Erwin E. Batterman contracting firm.

The Mill Supply corporation handles power machinery and equipment for sawmills, canneries, farmers and other users of heavy equipment.

It will be completely moved into its new location Monday, Steelhammer said. It has been located at 110 Division street. No change in employees will be made, he added. The present four employees will continue at the new location.
