

Copper Rush On White River

Fairbanks, Alaska (AP) — A small scale copper stampede along the Alaska Highway on Canada's Yukon Territory was reported Friday by a Fairbanks mining man.

T. F. Anderson, who arrived over the highway Thursday, said the frenzied mining claim staking is at White River Canyon, about two miles off the highway and about 50 miles from the Alaska border.

He said truck drivers are parking their vehicles to stake claims and several roadhouse operators have closed their places to join the rush.

The road is lined with parked cars and trucks, he said, and people are camping out. He was informed 90 claims have been filed in the area, which is supposed to have copper, nickel, and cobalt deposits. The discovery claim was staked by four men about four months ago.

Anderson said a large mining concern is reported to be buying up claims for $2,000 each.

East Germany Hits at Churches

Berlin (AP) — The East German Communists chose Good Friday to increase their harassment of the church.

The Red regime in three sudden thrusts:

1. Refused to permit the Evangelical-Lutheran Synod to hold a planned annual meeting in Weimar April 16 to 21 and gave no reason for the refusal.
2. Seized a Protestant Seminary at Eisenberg, sent the students to their homes and arrested Deacon Protaske, the senior faculty member, again without giving any reason.
3. Banned Easter services in the half-mile deep "death zone" separating East and West Germany with a police order forbidding any assemblage of more than three persons.

Engineering Students To Visit Detroit Dam

Between 45 and 50 junior and senior electrical engineering students of Oregon State College will visit Detroit Dam Thursday, April 9, according to F. O. McMullan, head of the college electrical engineering department.

Professor Louis N. Stone will be in charge of the group. They will be shown about the newest unit in the Army Engineers' Williamette Basin project by H. W. Rutherford, Detroit Dam project engineer.

Detroit Dam is rapidly nearing completion and is expected to be producing hydro-electric power early this summer. The pool behind the dam will be filled the middle of this month. Dedication of the $69,244,000 multi-purpose project has been set tentatively for June 10.

Didn't Cost So Much to Be Sick in Old Days

By FRED ZIMMERMAN

Home visits by the general practitioner in medicine back in the early 1880s were something on the order of "cheaper by the dozen," judging by an old account book unearthed by Madsen Wrecking company, currently engaged in razing the former home of Judge George Burnett at North High and Center streets.

Single calls were listed in some instances at $2.50, but when the physician made two visits the same day the charge was $4. Another patient, who probably needed nothing more than a few assuring words from his doctor, was presented with a bill for $3.50 for two calls in a single day.

It appears from the ledger that obstetric cases involved a fee of $50. However, in one or two instances the charge was $20. The physician apparently took into consideration the family's ability to pay.

Indicating that the physician was accustomed to settle on a barter basis for a part of his service at least, is a notation against a man's name that "he paid $10 in money and $13 in wood." Another patient agreed to "pay for it and he did work for Dr. — making stone wall around cemetery lot."

Pasted on one page of the ledger is a note written out on an ordinary piece of paper in which the signer agrees to "pay to the order of — twenty-two dollars with interest from date at 10 per cent per annum." Here, too, there is no indication that the note was paid.

Apparently some patients paid their full obligations, and others ignored the doctor once they were in good health. For the ledger is replete with instances where there is nothing on the credit side of the ledger opposite their names.

Partial payments are recorded and quite often the physician wrote "paid in full" opposite a sum that covered but half of the full amount.

A bit of tragedy is written into the faded pages of the ledger with the pencilled statement opposite a patient's name "charged with murder of —"

An instance of an unpaid charge, involving a bit of humor is the notation "Mistake, — of Mill creek has no wife and never had; money refunded." There had been a charge of $5 against a man for two visits to the "wife" in December of 1880. A credit of $5 was made in February, 1884 and then the notation of the mistake and refund.

The ledger extends through a period of early 1880 to 1884. How it came into the possession of Judge Burnett is not known, although it is probable it was evidence in a case being tried before the jurist.

Newberg Dairy Business Sold

Newberg (AP) — Sale of the Newberg dairy to the Farmers Cooperative Creamery at McMinnville was announced today by Raymond and Gene Buckley, managers of the Newberg plant.

The transaction includes sale of all milk routes and dairy equipment but not the Newberg dairy building which will continue to be used for frozen food lockers.

Delton Russell, manager of the cooperative, said the firm would continue to buy milk from the same producers who furnished milk to the Newberg dairy and would employ the same drivers.

Medal Given Phone Crew

The bronze Vail Medal was awarded to a Pacific Telephone & Telegraph company crew this week for saving a Salem woman from drowning in the surf at Depoe Bay last September.

Mrs. Gertrude Emerson was swept into the ocean when waves dashed over rocks on the beach at Otter Crest. The telephone company line crew of five men saw her in distress in the water and succeeded in bringing her to safety half an hour later when Henry Weise of Newport, foreman of the crew, threw her a weighted handline 125 feet out in the water.

Assisting Weise were Robert Kelly of Roseburg, Wallace Donnelly of Newport, Herbert Doering of Portland, and Robert Bahm of Newport.

F. A. Dressler, vice president and general manager of the telephone company, said the award is made annually to telephone men and women "for noteworthy public service."

Any Fish Ought to Bite At This Bait

Some folks might consider it a bit on the odd side to have earthworms named after them, but that isn't the case with John E. Davis and A. Burr Black, Salem entomologists. Each has recently had a new species of Plutellus — earthworm to most of us — named after him. One of the worms is Plutellus davisii, and the other is Plutellus blackii.

One of the worms was collected by Davis, who is in charge of the plant pest and disease survey program for the state department of agriculture, on the Cheko river six miles above Brookings. The other was found near Salem by Black, who is state spary inspector and entomologist with the department.

The two worm species were identified by Dorothy McKay-Fender of McMinnville and James A. Macnab of the Portland State Extension Center. Each specimen has been deposited in the collection of the California Academy of Sciences.

The two new earthworms are described in some detail — about 12 pages — by McKay-Fender and Macnab in an article in a recent issue of the Wasmann Journal of Biology. The authors say the worms "are unique among North American forms in being bihousi," which means they have a double case or covering in a particular part of the worm.

Woodburn Pastor Writes Easter Play

Woodburn — Rev. Ormal B. Trick, pastor of the Woodburn Methodist church, has written an Easter play, "The Divine Miracle," for publication in "The Church School" in 1954, at the request of the editor. A review of this play will be given Sunday evening at 8 in the local church.

The setting of the play is a bombed church on Easter morning and characters are: The prologue, Peggy Ann Doerfler; Margaret Blackburn, Mrs. Hazel Thompson; Steward Langston, Norman Tyler; Mary Magdalene, Matti Sue Clark; Salome, Ruth Marie Applegate; Mary, Sonia Avin; and the angel, Sam VanArsdale. As a part of the service the choir will sing from the cantata, "Easter Angels."
