

Familiar Voice Returns To Local Radio Programs

By VIC FRYER

An old familiar voice will be back on Salem radio waves Sunday—but only for the night owls and the early birds. Those normal individuals who go to bed before midnight and get up after six am will just be out of luck.

The voice—that of Ed McElroy—Mac, the Melody Man—whose patter and record programs decorated the Salem air from 1946 to late 1950 before he moved to a neighboring city to the south to continue pleasing radio audiences there.

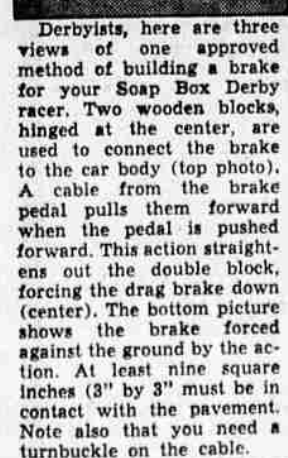

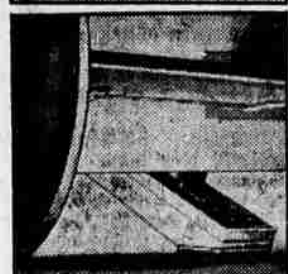

Mac's return to Salem radio will begin at midnight Saturday as he opens his first musical program in the six-night-a-week series from 12 to 6 in the morning.

The program will consist mostly of hit tunes and old favorites, both vocal and instrumental, he said, but it will be a diversified show, broken up by news bulletins and local big news breaks, some semi-classical selections, occasional western numbers and, on Thursday mornings at 3, a mystery program.

Mac may even occasionally lend his own vocal talents to go along with some of the records, he laughed. One of his favorites in this line is a record of "Coney Island Washboard" in which he sings the second round of the song and then harmonizes with the recording vocalist on the third round.

He brings a background of 14 years of varied radio work to his new job, including several years of disc jockey programs and setting up and operating an armed forces station while serving in the navy as a Chief Radio and Radar Technician. He even tried selling radios and appliances for

Derbyists, here are three views of one approved method of building a brake for your Soap Box Derby racer. Two wooden blocks, hinged at the center, are used to connect the brake to the car body (top photo). A cable from the brake pedal pulls them forward when the pedal is pushed forward. This action straightens out the double block, forcing the drag brake down (center). The bottom picture shows the brake forced against the ground by the action. At least nine square inches (3" by 3") must be in contact with the pavement. Note also that you need a turnbuckle on the cable.

Benedictine Sisters Passes

Mt. Angel—Sister Mary Joseph, Benedictine Sister at the Convent Queen of Angels here, died Wednesday afternoon, April 1 at the convent.

Funeral services will be held Monday, April 6, at 10 a.m. from the convent chapel.

Sister M. Joseph, in the 89th year of her age, and the 56th year of her religious profession, was confined to the infirmary for the past several years. Before her sickness, she served in various capacities at the mother house and the branch houses.

She was teacher and superior at the Albany, Portland, and Woodburn missions, and was stationed also in Oregon City and at the Abbey.

She possessed the quality of spirituality in a rare degree, and during her years at the missions, Sister ministered to the needs of both body and soul in her numerous contacts. People whom she aided during sickness and trial have written to her through the many succeeding years.

Sister Joseph was born in Engelberg, Switzerland, in 1864, and came to the United States in 1890, where she was employed as governess in the Meier household of the Meier & Frank company. Later in Mount Angel she made her religious profession in January, 1898, at the Convent Queen of Angels.

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Christina Hess-Waser, Engelberg, Switzerland; a niece, Lillian May Hoesley, state board of health, Portland; nephew, Ed Meiers, Sublimity; and a number of other nieces and nephews in Switzerland and the United States.

Albany Opposes Adair Proposal

Albany—The board of directors of the Albany Chamber of Commerce Friday added their protest to that of North Benton county residents, voting to oppose house joint resolution 16, calling for establishment of an intermediate penal institution at Camp Adair, W. C. Donahue, Chamber president, announced.

Donahue said the board's action was taken because "we feel the facility could possibly be better utilized commercially or industrially." He added that the board considered it necessary to make further investigation of all possibilities before using the Camp Adair site for the balance of its useful life as an institution that would yield little in the way of economic benefit.

Several other considerations were offered by representatives of North Benton county, Owen Cook and Rollie Robinson. Among the claims made by the Benton county men in their argument against establishment of the intermediate penitentiary at Camp Adair was the minimum security offered by the temporary installation; low valuation of physical facilities now existing at the site; poor soil; and recognition of a need for this type of institution in permanent form.

Cook and Robinson went to Salem following the meeting to attend a public hearing on the house joint resolution and to argue against its establishment at Camp Adair.

The site is marked by three large dormitories still standing.

Ex-King Carol of Romania Dies Suddenly in Portugal

Lisbon, Portugal (AP)—Ex-King Carol II, who abandoned the throne of Romania for romance and a wandering life in exile, died early today in near-by Estoril, an exclusive colony of displaced royalty.

His death, at 59, apparently was due to heart failure. Alone at his side was his third wife, former Madame Elena Magda Lupescu—the red-haired beauty who was his companion for 23 years before becoming his wife.

A doctor, called from his home next door, and Carol's secretary arrived at his deathbed too late, it was reported.

The former ruler of now communist-controlled Romania complained recently of heart trouble. He made his last public appearance this week at memorial services in St. George church here for Britain's Queen Grandmother Mary.

The long romance between the handsome playboy king and Madame Lupescu, daughter of an army officer, began in the mid-1920s, when he still was crown prince. Her court influence later won her the title of the uncrowned queen of Romania. Twice she followed him into exile.

Carol, son of Queen Marie and King Ferdinand, first renounced his rights to the Romanian throne in 1925 in favor of a son born to his second wife, Princess Helen of Greece. The boy, Mihai Michael, became king in 1927 on the death of Ferdinand and a council ruled. But Carol—known then as the "bad boy of the Balkans"—returned from exile in Italy and France in 1930 and assumed the throne after the way had been prepared by political friends and an army clique.

Hectic times followed in the politically unstable country. The boy, Mihai Michael, became king in 1927 on the death of Ferdinand and a council ruled. Young Adults to Present Play

As part of the Easter season observance at the First Congregational church, the young adults will present a play titled "The Rock," on Sunday night, April 12th. The play is the story of the struggle of Peter to be worthy of the trust placed in him by his friend and teacher, Jesus of Nazareth.

The enthusiastic reception given by the community to the First Congregational church's centennial celebration a year ago encouraged the young adult group to attempt this serious dramatic production. There will be no admission charge, but an offering will be taken to help pay the pledge the group has made to the church building loan fund, a national fund for use of all churches of the denomination. Mrs. Leon Brown, well-known dramatic coach, is assisting the group in their presentation, which has been a rehearsal six weeks.

Burglars Hit Albany Church

Albany—Burglars some time Thursday night ransacked the First Presbyterian church office and study after forcing two doors open, taking $80 in cash set aside as a deacons' fund, city police reported Friday.

The church, at W. Fifth Ave., and Broadalbin St., was entered between 5:45 p.m., Thursday and 9:30 a.m., Friday. The theft was discovered by the Rev. Morton L. Booth.

Police, who investigated, said both doors were locked and had been forced open by the yeggs. Equipment and personal property in the pastor's study had been strewn about the room. No other damage to church equipment was noted by the Rev. Booth.

Officers Friday were checking to learn the identity of two persons, carrying flashlights, who were seen in the area late Friday night.

South Dakotans Can Pray for Rain Free

Pierre, S. D. (AP)—Indians can dance and preachers can pray for rain without paying a license fee, state officials said today. But scientific rainmakers must fork over $100 each for licenses under a new law passed by the state legislature.

The law provides for the regulation and control of artificial rainmaking activities.

Session Has Teacher Bills

The Anderson report on teacher education which would provide elementary and secondary programs at Ashland, LaGrande, Monmouth, Eugene, Corvallis and Portland is now before the state legislature.

Implementation of the Anderson report will require passing of two bills — S.B. 426 amending the college of education law and H.B. 713 elevating Portland State Extension Center to include teacher education in the junior and senior years with degrees through existing institutions.

Another recommendation of Dr. Earl W. Anderson, Ohio State University professor who conducted the six months study for the state board of higher education, would put elementary teacher education at the University of Oregon and Oregon State College. This recommendation requires no change in existing laws.

At a legislative hearing Wednesday night in Salem members of the board of higher education joined institutional executives, school superintendents of Salem and Corvallis, the state superintendent of public instruction, the Oregon Educational Association, Oregon Congress of Parents and Teachers,

American Association of University Women, and citizens of southern and eastern Oregon in urging the passing of the Anderson report. The University of Oregon, which has long opposed general studies for the three colleges of education, opposed that part of S.B. 426 and were joined by former Governor Charles A. Sprague and President G. Herbert Smith of Willamette university.

Measures on the Anderson report are now before the joint ways and means subcommittee on higher education.
