Russell Raps Benson's Cuts

Washington (AP)—Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson ran into sharp resistance from senators Monday on cuts he is proposing for the new fiscal year starting July 1.

Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) senior Democrat on the appropriations subcommittee which deals with agriculture funds, said the reductions proposed would cause the "dismemberment" of the soil conservation program.

Russell declared that the Agriculture Department is the only big government agency which gets less money now than it received in 1940 before World War II.

The department's allotments now are about 30 per cent under the figure of 13 years ago whereas other non-military federal agencies get as much as 1,000 per cent more, the Georgian said.

"Some of us who are in favor of economy are a little reluctant to make the farmer the only living illustration of it," he said.

The practice was discussed in recent testimony before the house appropriations committee by officials of the food and drug committee hearing made public today.

The lawmakers were told that some dealers have been injecting a pound or two of water into turkeys just before they dropped them into the deep freeze.

The result: Consumers paid the turkey price for nothing more than water.
