Pioneer Home Will Be Razed

Lebanon — One of the few remaining pioneer homes in the city's business district, is being torn down this week for construction of business buildings. It is the home of the late Maude Kirkpatrick, daughter of the city's founder, Jeremiah Ralston, and is situated on the corner of Park and Maple Sts.

The property was recently acquired by William Thomas, Laurence Morely, William Wall and Fred Johansen, Jr. The new business building which will house a drive-in cleaner establishment, replacing Johansen's present cleaner shop on south Main St.

Another section of the building will provide ample office space for Morley & Thomas law firm and for William Wall's public accountant business.

The drive-in cleaning business will feature auto entrances from both Park and Maple Sts., allowing patrons to leave clothes and pick up their cleaning without leaving their cars. All new equipment of the latest type will be installed, Johansen said.

The structure will be under construction within two weeks and completion is expected in the fall.

Engineer Killed in Troop Car Derailment

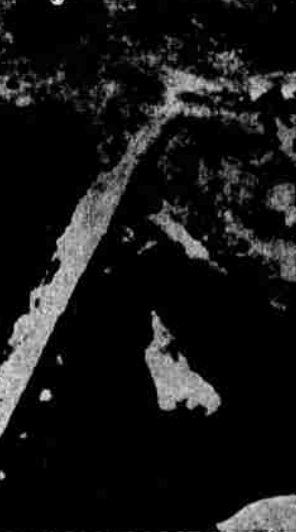

West Union, W. Va. (AP) — Seven of 10 cars of a Nevada-bound Army troop train were derailed here last night in an accident which apparently caused no more than minor injuries to the soldiers.

One man said the engine "leaped like a sheep" over an embankment. Pinned and crushed under the locomotive which plunged over a 40-foot embankment into a creek was Ira W. McDowell of Parkersburg, W. Va., the engineer.

REDS PRAISE IKE MOVE

London (AP) — Official news broadcasts heard here last night from Communist Yugoslavia hailed President Eisenhower's new peace program as "conciliatory and realistic."

Teacher Training Bill Passed by House 48-11

Educators had a victory and a defeat Saturday after legislative approval of the Board of Higher Education's expanded teacher training program, and scuttling of their school district reorganization bill.

The House passed 48 to 11 and sent to the Senate the teacher training bill, hoping it will cure Oregon's serious teacher training bill, hoping it will cure Oregon's serious teacher training bill, hoping it will cure Oregon's serious teacher training bill.

The bill would add high school teacher training and liberal arts courses to the three colleges of education at Monmouth, La Grande and Ashland. These schools now train only grade teachers.

At the University of Oregon and Oregon State College, where the only teacher training is at the high school level, grade teachers also would be taught.

And the House also voted 50 to 9 and sent to the senate a bill to change Portland State College, now giving only freshman and sophomore courses, into a four-year college. Liberal arts courses would be offered there, and both grade and high school teachers would be trained.

But the House, by a 40 to 19 vote, cut the heart out of the bill, whose purpose was to make it easier to consolidate school districts.

The Senate had voted to have consolidations settled by majority vote of the electors of the proposed consolidated district, plus a majority of those districts to be consolidated.

The House rebelled at this idea, deciding to keep the present system under which any district can vote to keep out of a consolidation.

After doing that, the House approved the bill's skeleton and sent it over to the Senate for consideration of the House change.

Local Interest In Camp Week

American camp week, April 20-26, the slogan for which is "Let's Go Camping," is being noted locally. The event is staged each year to call attention to the five million boys and girls who gather in 10,000 summer camps throughout the country during school vacation.

Organized camping in America, under the leadership of the American Camping association, has come to be recognized as one of the most effective means of conditioning young people for life in our free society, local leaders state. Educators are turning their attention to summer camps as a supplementary means of strengthening the work of the schools. One university president recently made the statement that "if we could transfer the technique of modern summer camps to our schools, we would have the greatest schools the world has yet seen."

Several youth camps are conducted locally, including Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, YMCA and YWCA.

HUNT MISSING PILOT

Las Vegas, Nev. (AP) — The search continued today for 1st Lt. James D. Lynn, of Norman, Okla., believed to have bailed out of his F-86 jet over rugged hills 45 miles southwest of here Wednesday. The wreckage of his plane was found Wednesday, but there was no trace of Lynn.

Gold Star to Captain Dake

Capt. Merlin L. Dake, Marine Corps pilot from Stayton, has recently been awarded a Gold Star in lieu of the 10th Air Medal for flights over Korea from September 17 to October 19, 1952.

The citation accompanying the decoration was signed by Maj. Gen. E. A. Pollock, U.S. Marine Corps and reads in part: "For meritorious acts while participating in aerial flight over enemy territory in Korea while serving with a Marine division from September 17 to October 19, 1952."

"During this period he participated in a total of 20 reconnaissance, evacuation and liaison flights in slow, unarmed aircraft at extremely low altitudes over areas where enemy anti-aircraft fire was received or could be expected."

The wife of Dake and their two sons, Stephen and Robert, make their home at route 1, box 86, Stayton, Ore. His mother, Mrs. Edna Dake, lives at route 1, box 161, Lyons.

Charge Reduced and Guilty Plea Entered

Granville George Combs, Marion, pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery in district court Friday after the charge was reduced from assault with intent to commit rape.

Combs was accused by two Turner girls of picking them up Monday when they were hitchhiking and then assaulting them. The charge was reduced from a felony to the lesser charge upon a motion of the district attorney stating lack of sufficient evidence.

Combs was sentenced to 90 days in jail on the assault and battery charge. Judge Val D. Sloper then suspended the sentence and placed Combs on a year's probation.

Herman Macy comes from the West Chehalis Friends church, four miles west of Newberg. He was pastor of the local Highland avenue Friends church from 1940 to 1945.

He has contributed articles to some publications; was the editor of the Northwest Friends church paper and has written lessons for the Friends Sunday School lesson quarterly for a number of years.

Veteran Lebanon Educator to Retire

Lebanon — Following the general policy of the school board, A. Burleigh Cash will terminate his long service as principal of Union High No. 1, Superintendent J. W. King announced Thursday. The retirement is effective June 30.

Provisions of a new state law make possible retention of those past retirement age on a semi-temporary basis, but the local board adopted the general policy of retiring all teachers upon reaching 65.

Cash started his service as principal here in September 1944. During his 40 years in the profession he was principal for six years at Eugene high, then dean of boys at West Seattle high for eight years and was head of the social science department at Oregon City high, also assisting there in administration. A veteran of world war I, he was also in charge of the Clackamas OPA for several years.

Cash states that he expects to continue in school work after a brief vacation. No decision on a man to fill the vacancy has been reached by the board, but members are considering applications for promotions within the staff and from the outside.

Maps now under way for the Topographic Atlas being compiled by the U. S. Geological Survey represent nearly 500,000 square miles.

Turkey Missionary Corvallis Speaker

Miss Grace Towner, Kansas born American educator who has helped mould an entire generation in Turkey, will be the principal speaker at Knight Memorial Congregational church Monday, April 20, when women from all parts of the east Willamette valley gather for the spring meeting of the women's fellowship of the East Willamette association of Congregational churches.

The sessions will be presided over by Mrs. B. E. Greenwood of Corvallis. Mrs. Charles Neubauer and Mrs. A. C. Haag of Salem are in charge of local arrangements. Registration at 9:15 will precede the morning session. The program of the day will end at 3:30 p.m.
