Red Cross May Halt Blood Program Here

The Red Cross blood program will be discontinued in Marion county after June 30 unless the Red Cross, now $10,000 short on its 1953 financial campaign, receives more money than it now appears that it will.

The decision was made last night at a three hour board meeting attended by 18 members and presided over by Elton Thompson.

Marion county hospitals received 2442 pints of blood from the Red Cross in the nine months ending March 31, Frank Parcher, manager of the Marion county chapter, said today. If this blood had to be purchased from private sources it would require about $35 a pint, he said.

The Red Cross will continue to collect blood here for the use of the armed forces, but this blood will not be available to civilians if the program is curtailed as now planned, Parcher added.

Englishman Tells America How to Raise Better Wheat

Wiggenhall St. Mary, England (AP)—Farmer Dick Turrell leaves for the United States Thursday to tell Oklahomans how he grows wheat.

The black silt soil of Dick's Fenland farm here last year produced the world record wheat crop of 70 and a half hundred-weights more than 3 1/2 tons per acre.

Robert French, who farms 2,000 acres at Boise City, Okla., heard of the Turrell feat and invited Dick over to swap know-how.

Dick, 44, is not sure whether he can help.

"Much of my success is due to deep plowing and I gather from letters I have had from Mrs. French that less than a foot below his land he strikes chalk," he said Tuesday.

Dick farms 220 acres of the Norfolk flatlands with his brother, William.

Like many Fenland farmers the Turrells still use the old-fashioned steam plowing technique. Two big steam tractors stand one at each end of the field, drawing the plow between them on steel cables.

"I expect distances are too great in America for this sort of thing," Dick said. "But I may be able to give a few tips on feeding the crops."

He expects to learn a few things too. "I should say the American farmers will have quite a bit to teach us on the mechanical side," he said.
