

FROM Peg in Washington

—BY ALENE (PEG) PHILLIPS—

Washington, D. C., April 20—Dear Marian: Newspaper editors' week in Washington was interesting as it brought visits with Oregonians and ex-Oregonians. It gave one a little feeling of being back in Eugene or Gearhart for the biannual meeting of Oregon publishers. On the opening day of the convention members of the cabinet participated in a panel discussion. Secretary Douglas McKay was quizzed on many topics concerning the department and a reporter of the Washington Post said that "McKay's brisk replies to the shower of questions earned him a loud round of applause." Some of the friends in the audience told me afterwards that his ovation was outstanding and equalled only by that given to Mrs. Ovela Culp Hobby, who is a fellow-member of the editors.

Included in the events of the convention was a formal banquet on Wednesday evening sponsored by the Women's National Press club. Harold Say had as his guests on behalf of his wife, Lillian, who is still in Seattle, the McKays, the Harris Ellsworths, and Ralph Tudor, the newly installed Under Secretary of Interior. At the table where I was a guest were Delegate Joe Farrington and Mrs. Farrington, of Hawaii; Senator Ed Thye of Michigan, who has brothers and sisters in Portland and who as a former governor of Michigan was a close friend of the late Earl Snell; and several Washingtonians. The United Nations theme was carried out in decorations, entertainment features including folk dancers from the Philippines and a singer from Paris, the menu, and in the address of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., chief of the U. S. Mission in the United Nations.

Secretary McKay gathered several of the Oregonians together for breakfast at the Interior dining room on Friday morning. Gordon Sabine, dean of the school of Journalism at University of Oregon, Eugene; Donald J. Sterling and David W. Eyre, of the Oregon Journal; William M. Tugman, of the Eugene Register-Guard; Frank Jenkins, of the Klamath Falls Herald and News; Robert Lucas formerly with The Astorian Budget but now editor of the editorial page of the Denver Post, joined the Secretary and Larry Smyth for the breakfast.

Another formal banquet on Saturday evening wound up the week. Don Sterling entertained at the banquet for the McKays, Senator Guy Gordon, the Larry Smyths, and Dave Eyre. Bill Tugman had Harris Ellsworth as his guest and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jenkins were at another table. I was adopted by the Denver Post for the evening and had as hosts Palmer and Helenmae Hoyt, Bob Lucas and the Barnett Novers — he is a Washington correspondent for the Post. Senator and Mrs. Edwin C. Johnson, of Colorado, were other guests of the Hoyts. Ep, as he is best known to Oregonians, and Helenmae, were leaving the next morning for a few days in New York but were more eagerly anticipating their return to their four boys in Denver. Following the banquet, a dance and floor show, the latter featuring Dagmar — brought the festivities to a close. Virgil Pinckley, United Press correspondent in Salem in the early '30s, and now editor of the Los Angeles Mirror, was warmly welcomed to our department during the convention. He interviewed the Secretary for one of his Pacific Coast broadcasts and later had many inquiries about former friends in Salem, including Capital Journal staff members.

M. J. Frey, publisher of the Portland Oregonian, and Mrs. Frey were not here during the convention but arrived at the week's end and were hosts

Town-Gown Club Elects On Thursday

New officers were chosen at the season's last meeting of Town and Gown club this afternoon. The program and business session for the group were in the Music hall on Willamette campus, the tea following at Lausanne hall.

The nominating committee, Mrs. G. Herbert Smith, Mrs. Paul R. Hendricks and Mrs. Harry S. Dorman, reported the following names as nominees for the club officers:

Mrs. George H. Swift, president; Mrs. Vern Shay, vice president; Mrs. Howard Runkel, treasurer; Mrs. A. Freeman Holmer, secretary; Mrs. W. C. Dyer, Sr., tea chairman; Mrs. Brooks Moore, program chairman; Mrs. Kenneth Lottick, membership chairman. The music chairman will be announced later.

Mrs. Robert D. Gregg has been president of the club during the past year.

HOME FROM three months in California is Mrs. N. J. Lindgren. She visited at Los Altos with her daughter, Mrs. E. W. Norman, and family, at Los Angeles, and in San Bernardino with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Griffiths.

A PRACTICE for installation of officers next Tuesday took place following the no-host dinner for Cherry court, Order of Amaranth, Wednesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Dilatash were chairmen for the event.

Monday evening for a cocktail-tea party at the Carlton honoring columnists and reporters who serve the Oregonian from the Washington scene. Some of the visitors were to be in New York this week for a publishers' meeting but others were going on there for diversion. Dave Eyre had plans for several theater productions and a three-day vacation with no more conventioning.

More later. Peg
