Accidents Fatal To 3, Week-end

(By The Associated Press) Accidents claimed the lives of three in Oregon over the week-end. Ted W. Harkleroad, 47, Portland, drowned. So did Bill Brokaw, about 60, of Robinette near the Idaho border, in another accident. Mark Timothy Souler, 5, was fatally injured when struck by a car at Hood River. Harkleroad's car plunged into a canal after it ran off the Sandy-Bull Run Highway. The canal's current washed the car into Roslyn Lake. Air in the car apparently kept it afloat while Harkleroad climbed onto its roof. But after 10 minutes the car sank, carrying Harkleroad to his death. The widow and six children survive. State Police at Baker said a man identified as Bill Brokaw drowned when his outboard-powered boat overturned in the Snake River rapids. The Souler boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale E. Baird, Hood River, was struck by a car driven by a 17-year-old youth.
