

Zone Problem Deferred Until Hearing May 19

Property owners and plat promoters interested in New Haven and Broadmoor additions in the southeast part of the city will have to wait until after a public hearing May 19 before the planning and zoning commission to find out if the city is going to give them a residential or an industrial zone classification.

General Realty company has already built 14 houses in New Haven Addition and had an application before the council for permits to build 16 more. This is under a recently-enacted ordinance requiring the council, rather than the build-inspector alone, to give its approval in areas where a zone is likely to be changed under the pending zone revision. The district is now in Class III, which permits residences, but the new code proposes to put it in M-2 classification, which does not permit residences.

General Realty company representatives said they had started the project which is south of Oxford and between 22nd and 24th streets before zone revision was started.

Broadmoor Addition hasn't yet built any houses, but is planning an extensive home building project. It was represented before the council by Mrs. Harriet Ness Ruff.

On motion of Alderman Chester Chase both were deferred until after the May 19 hearing.

Three other permits were granted. They were:

Application of E. L. Smith to build a one-story masonry grocery store at 3125 North River road.

Kenneth W. Hutchins, to build a commercial garage at 2515 North Commercial.

Walter Nystrom, to build a concrete warehouse at 2085 North Front.

East Salem

East Salem Home Extension units this year were assigned one of the special work shop projects, braided rugs, to Edna Lane, and Lansing Neighbors; Herbs for Variety and Accent," to Swegle and "Gifts from Cloth," to Lancaster unit.

Each year some East Salem unit has been awarded a first at the Homemakers Festival and this year East Salem's oldest unit, Swegle, received a first for its exhibit of herbs. It had been arranged by Mrs. Alfred Pauli, Mrs. Warren Fisher and the units president, Mrs. V. M. La Due.

In the point system used by the judges, Edna Lane was second with its rugs.

Lansing Neighbors won fourth in the exhibit, with a high rating.

Lancaster unit with its "Gifts From Cloth" was third in its division. This unit's members had used this project more than others having made about 50 of the large red felt stockings for use in their own homes, and as gifts at Christmas time.

In addition to the blue ribbon for the most points a purple one was given four units whose displays could be put in some store window in Salem and Swegle unit will have one of these displays. The stores where the different ones will be placed are to be selected this week.

Mrs. Zina Scharpnack and Mrs. Harry Ottee from Lansing Neighbors and Mrs. Melvin La Due from Swegle assisted in the dining room as hostesses and Mrs. George Hanaukska, chairman of Edna Lane, ushered in the main auditorium.

One unit meeting will be held this week. Lancaster unit will meet Friday at Charles Hagen, 3395 Duncan ave. on Friday, May 1 at 10:30 a.m. and have the project, "Herbs for Variety and Accent."
