Ex Board Will Decide on Move

The executive board of the Chamber of Commerce will decide when and where the chamber will move when it vacates the present quarters in the Senator hotel.

It was debated this authority at a meeting of the board of directors Wednesday night. The most probable place is the space in the Pacific Building on South High, next to the Elsinore Theater, now occupied by the Christian Science reading room.

Ted Hobart, chairman of the agricultural committee of the chamber, said the annual farm tour will be June 5. The tour will go to the north part of the county this time, instead of south as last year, and the tour will end with a noon luncheon at a place to be named.

Use of all car parking space about the Capitol group of buildings by state employees and home-owners came in for some sharp criticism. Nelson Hickok said that hundreds of tourists come to Salem exactly to see the State House and find that they aren't able to get near it. Ross Pratt, chamber president, will appoint a committee to confer with the directorate of the Senator baseball club to see what can be done about advancing the sale of more stock.

Live Bombs in War Games

San Diego, Calif. (AP)—Naval bombardment with live ammunition of San Clement Island continued Wednesday following a blazing night-time shelling of the island in the first operations of the largest war games on the West Coast since 1948.

For the first time the new Third Marine Division was afloat—watching the shelling from a dozen attack transports. Destroyers and rocket ships made up the bombardment force with shore fire control parties on the beach directing the shelling.

The maneuvers against an enemy assumed to have invaded the Southern United States from Mexico and moved as far north as Santa Barbara will include the simulated use of atomic weapons by both the task force and "enemy aggressor" forces.

A total of 120 Navy ships, reported $25,000 of the $30,000 statue cost has been raised by donations from throughout the state.

Washington (AP)—The application of three airlines to expand Pacific Northwest services were taken under advisement by the civil aeronautics board Tuesday.
