6 of Governor's Bills Flouted By Legislators

By PAUL H. HARVEY, JR. (Associated Press Correspondent)

Gov. Paul L. Patterson is saying that he's pleased with the way the Legislature accepted his program, but actually, he didn't fare very well.

This is somewhat surprising, as the popular governor got along first rate with the lawmakers.

Six of his major recommendations were rejected or badly watered down. The Legislature approved his other eight proposals, but among these were recommendations that would have been approved if he hadn't said anything.

In his opening message, he asked for a rewriting of the Constitution, to be accomplished at a convention in 1958. All he got was a 17-man interim committee to study the matter.

The governor called for a new school district reorganization law, to replace the one defeated by the people last November. The Senate passed it, but the House scuttled it so badly that the Senate finally killed the whole thing.

Gov. Patterson asked that a State Department of Revenue be created by consolidating the state's revenue-collecting agencies. But the session was only a few weeks old when he agreed with the Legislature's opinion that it would take two more years to work out the details.

He advocated that the Tax Commission make it known to the public when it reduces anybody's income taxes. The Legislature wouldn't go for the idea because it said it would hamstring the commission's operations.

According to a United Press report received here Wednesday, such an order will be forthcoming from U.S. Circuit Judge Alger Fee as an aftermath of the disposition of property belonging to the Valley Concrete Pipe Co. of Albany, at a sheriff's sale here April 20, concluding foreclosure of a $6,066 mortgage held by Prosecutor Johns, who bid the property in at the amount of the note secured by the mortgage.

The report reveals that William E. Dougherty, attorney for Valley Concrete Pipe, asked Judge Fee merely to sign an order directing the Linn county officials to show cause why the sale should not be nullified but Judge Fee insisted that the contempt citation be included.

Senior Class Election Today

Salem high school's junior class votes on senior class officers for next year today. Candidates gave their campaign speeches yesterday.

Paul Beck, Norm Luther, Fred Minifie, Roger Moorehead and Ken Rawlings are running for president of the class while Judy Bancroft, Shirley Juran, and Jann Rowell campaigned for first vice president.

Running for second vice president are Lynn Barrell, Judy Loucks, and Pat O'Malley. Jane Barlow, Flo Burgermeister, Barbara Gronke, Mary Lou Hastings, Dorothy Kinney, and Shirley McCauley ran for secretary.

Running for treasurer are Jim Bowers, Jon Castle, Frances Finch, Charlie Friend, Joline Matthew, Milton McDaniel and Dianne West.

A re-vote will be held tomorrow for those not receiving more than half of all the votes cast. Miss Irene Hollenbeck is the advisor of the group.

His educational television investigation was turned down. The governor and the education committees of both houses agreed on a two-year interim study of whether the state should go into the educational television field.

But the House voted against any TV study, although the Legislature finally asked the governor to do what he could to save the two TV channels that have been allocated to the state.

And finally, he urged the Legislature against passing the bill to ban organizational picketing. He offered a substitute that would have established a 15-day waiting period during which strikes and picketing would be prohibited.

But the Legislature overwhelmingly voted the ban on organizational picketing, meaning that no union could picket a firm unless it is the bargaining agent for that firm's employees.
