Work Starts Soon on Chemawa Power Jobs

With the awarding of two construction contracts by the Bonneville Power Administration, work will get under way shortly on the first step of the program for constructing a major power supply substation in the vicinity of Chemawa to serve the central Willamette Valley area.

Secretary of the Interior McKay has approved the award of the contract to the Western Electric Construction company of Portland on a low bid of $159,519 for the construction which involves the work incidental to the installation of a 75,000-kva 115/37-kv step-down transformer and related facilities.

This substation will be initially connected to Bonneville's existing Oregon City-Salem 115-kv transmission lines at Chemawa and will provide an additional point of delivery to the system of the Portland General Electric company at the supply voltage of 57 kv.

At the same time Secretary of the Interior McKay approved the award of a contract to Charles R. Schmiedekamp, of Portland, on the low bid of $92,418 for the construction of the control house at the Chemawa substation.

In the future a 230-kv transmission line will be extended from the Detroit area to Chemawa to further reinforce the power supply facilities through a major step-down transformer rated at 150,000 kva, with operating voltage 230/115 kv.

Rex Beeman will be resident engineer for the Bonneville Power Administration for this construction project and will maintain headquarters at the Chemawa substation.
