Wally Cox, who in less than a year has risen to high popularity as star of "Mr. Peepers" on television, has cut his first phonograph record.

Check-Your-Bottle Service Going Out

Liquor by the drink will probably be the rule rather than the exception in Salem clubs and liquor-serving restaurants next week, representatives of several of the establishments indicated at a meeting Friday.

The check-your-bottle type of service will probably go out completely in most of the places and will be available only on request in others, even though the present licenses will be good until the end of the year.

At least one owner indicated that he would not even serve from the customer's bottle for those who already had bottles checked there. Of course the bottles can be checked out, he said.

Eight Salem public and private clubs have been issued the new licenses already and several others have applications on file with the liquor commission.
