Some Notations . . .

By M. L. F.

May day was "coffee" day for many in Salem, Friday, two large coffee parties and a May luncheon making it a big day for a large group. . . . But it was fun to see all the beautiful May basket effects and to run from one place to another between the heavy showers that were most un-May-like . . .

First on the schedule was the coffee for which Mrs. William H. Hammond and Mrs. Garien L. Simpson were hostesses at the Hammond home. . . . A gay May basket was arranged on the door to greet guests as they arrived. . . . A profusion of spring flowers decorated the home, one especially catching the eye being the huge basket of pink dogwood on the piano. . . . The coffee table was a May day scene, covered with a bright pink cloth. The table was set back against the window overlooking the spacious gardens down the hillside, and in the center was a tall blue vase filled with bright blooms of various colors, giving a Maypole effect, little dolls in bright dresses standing around the base. . . .

Among guests greeted during our call, Mrs. Elmer O. Berg, Mrs. T. Harold Tomlinson, Mrs. Leon Perry, Mrs. Charles D. Wood, Mrs. A. W. Loucks, Mrs. Vernon Perry, Mrs. Robert Y. Thornton, Mrs. Robert D. Ebersole, Mrs. James C. Stone, Mrs. Otto Skopli, Jr., Mrs. Reynolds Allen, Mrs. Paul L. Patterson, Mrs. Edward O. Stadler, Jr., Mrs. Harold M. Olinger, Mrs. Claybourne Dyer, Mrs. W. C. Dyer, Jr., Mrs. Ralph Wirth, Mrs. Werner Brown, Mrs. Russell E. Pratt, Mrs. Stewart Johnson, Mrs. James Walton, Mrs. Ralph E. Purvine, Mrs. Thomas Roberts, Jr., Mrs. Charles A. Barclay, Mrs. George Beane, Mrs. Marion Lamb, Mrs. John R. Wood, Mrs. Bruce Williams, Mrs. Donald McCargar, Mrs. Robert Drager. . . .

The second charmingly arranged May day party was the coffee for which Mrs. Sidney Schlesinger and Mrs. Ralph Schlesinger entertained at the home of the former. . . . A May basket was set at the top of the front steps to herald the day. . . . A May pole with ribbons wound around it centered the coffee table. . . . Topping the pole was a nose-gay and encircling the miniature pole were little hobnail glass May baskets filled with pastel blooms, the ribbons from the poles reaching out to the baskets. . . . The tablecloth was a dark green one. . . . Among guests during our call: Mrs. E. M. Page, Mrs. Henry V. Compton, Mrs. Stuart Compton, Mrs. Earl T. Newberry, Mrs. Grant C. Rogers, Mrs. Sol Schlesinger, Mrs. Louis Lorenz, Mrs. Roy H. Mills, Mrs. Carl Steelhammer, Mrs. Raymond Busick, Mrs. William R. Shinn, Mrs. Kenneth Potts, Mrs. Chandler Brown, Mrs. John A. Heltzel, Mrs. G. Herbert Smith. . . .

Next, was the annual May luncheon for all women of St. Paul's Episcopal church, the affair given at the parish house. . . . The tables were colorfully set in the May basket theme. . . . It was a very successful event, a large number of women of the church and friends attending the gathering given each spring as a get-acquainted one. . . . Among those greeted during our stop there—Mrs. Gerhard Pagenstecher, Mrs. L. E. deWesse, Mrs. Homer Goulet, Mrs. A. D. Woodmansee, Mrs. Charles H. Heltzel, Mrs. J. S. Lothead and her daughter, Mrs. Hubert L. Williamson; Mrs. S. D. Wiles; Mrs. George S. Hoffman and her daughter, Miss Jeanne Hoffman, who has been home this past week from University of California; Mrs. Sydney Kromer and her sister, Miss Katharine O'Reilly; Mrs. William H. Burghardt, Mrs. George H. Swift, Mrs. Paul A. Lardon, Mrs. Glenn S. Paxson, Miss Mabel Robertson, Mrs. Albert C. Gragg, Mrs. D. C. Roberts, Mrs. George L. Hill, Mrs. C. A. McCargar, Mrs. Dan Johnston, Mrs. R. D. Paris, Mrs. William J. Busick and several greeted at the earlier coffees. . . .

One of the most clever May day touches—the miniature May basket, a real little basket, filled with real flowers, pinned to the purse carried by Mrs. Theron Hoover as she called during social activities, Friday. . . .

Matrix Table, an annual event staged by active and alumnae chapters of the Theta Sigma Phi, national journalism honorary, throughout the country, is building up quite a tradition in Oregon now. . . . Portland alumnae arranged their fifth annual one, Thursday night, theirs being the larger Matrix Table in the state. . . . These affairs were dreamed up nearly 20 years ago and their purpose is to honor women of achievement in all fields of endeavor, although women in journalism and writing are always included, of course, in the group of those honored. . . . There is one striking thing about these Matrix Table dinners however, setting them apart from routine banquets. . . . At Matrix Table, politeness, prestige and "big names" mean nothing. . . . In other words, all guests come, regardless of who they are, on the same basis, the theory being every one there is important or he or she would not receive an invitation! Only the "women of achievement" honored at each event are spotlighted and given special placards. . . . Just another way of carrying through "fearless" and matter-of-fact principles and procedure in that freedom of the press! . . . The Portland alumnae chapter has worked out a scheme, however, that assures every individual his place in the sun. . . . Two members make the introductions in a special system, using a hostess at each table, a movable "mike" and a spotlight, and in rapid order every guest at every table is introduced! . . . Among the special guests at the Thursday gathering were Mrs. David Lyle Davis of Seattle, one of the founders of Theta Sigma Phi; and Mrs. John Webber, Portland, who was one of the Theta Sigs starting the Matrix Tables while living in the mid-west in the early 20s. . . .

A pie social will be featured at Manbrin Gardens Garden club on Tuesday, the group to meet with Mrs. C. J. Wendt, 651 Manbrin drive, at 7:30 o'clock.

Scheduled for May 16 is the annual plant sale which will take place in Manbrin Gardens. . . .

A Mother's day program will follow the 8 o'clock business meeting of Chadwick chapter, Order of Eastern Star, on Tuesday at the Masonic temple.
