

GOLD MEDAL FOR BOY SCOUT HERO

Howard Fitzgerald, left, received a gold medal for saving the lives of a younger brother and sister when the Fitzgerald home was destroyed by fire last spring. He is being congratulated by Buddy Raymond while James Friesen looks on. James and Buddy became Eagle Scouts at the same Court of Honor held at Valsetz.

Entry Chosen For Derby Race

Proposed activities for the coming year were discussed when Salem chapter of the Old Information Committee held its first meeting for the year Thursday at the Senator Hotel. This included sponsorship of a Soap Box Derby entry. The boy chosen was Michael Perkins of 1770 Fairgrounds Road. Last year the committee provided free refreshments for the contestants, and although the committee members have not decided on an activity yet for the 1953 Derby they hope to be of considerable assistance. Tom Kelly is chairman of the Salem chapter and his assistants are Ken Carlson, Ray Keaton, Willis Clark, Howard Smalley and George Alexander who are vice chairmen. Each local committee comprises all of the personnel connected with the industry locally and its purpose is to acquaint the public with the part industry plays in everyday life.

California and Oregon Sessions Quite Unlike

An Oregonian familiar with this state's Legislature would be in for a number of surprises if he visited the California Legislature now in session. Perhaps the most striking difference would be encountered in the assembly (the lower house) where members seem to continuously talk with one another while another is speaking over a loud speaker. The result is noise which raises to such a volume at times the Speaker must rap his gavel and appeal to the members to quiet down. On one occasion last Monday when the writer was visiting the Assembly, Speaker James W. Silliman banged his gavel and said: "I would like to hear the arguments being made by the speaker, so will the members kindly quiet down." One of the biggest hassles in the California Legislature is over setting up main line routes for priority in highway construction. Attached to a number of bills now in the assembly and senate is provision for an increase in gas tax ranging from 1 cent to 2 1/2 cents a gallon. The fight has developed to a point now where the arguments wander off into sectional demands for inclusion of secondary routes and larger allocation of funds to counties with no mainline routes within their boundaries. A great majority of Assembly members favor a 1-cent increase in the gasoline tax, while the majority of senators seem to favor a higher increase. Numerous legislative leaders including Speaker Silliman and Jonathan Hollibaugh, a veteran assemblyman, feel that the fight will end in a conference committee agreeing on an increase in the gasoline tax and leaving the selection of the mainline highways to the Highway Commission. Another bitter fight has developed over another Bay bridge location, with Governor Earl Warren and his followers favoring a new bridge paralleling the present long Bay bridge, while the San Francisco supervisors have gone on record for a southern crossing that would lead from Army street in San Francisco to Richmond in the East Bay. The recommendation of the San Francisco county supervisors was made only last Monday and is expected to carry considerable weight with members of the Legislature. Among the visitors to the California Legislature during the past few days was Ben R. Chandler, chairman of the Oregon State Highway commission. "After looking in on the Legislature and visiting about here for a few days," Mr. Chandler said, "I am more than ever proud of the Oregon Legislature, the officials of our state and our state highway department." Mr. Chandler was visiting with his brother, Irving Chandler, who, following an illness, died last Sunday in Sacramento. According to old timers in Sacramento the legislators there this session have been hard-working and attentive to business before them. Incidentally the California legislator is paid $3800 a year plus $14 a day expense money during the sessions. In addition they contribute, along with the state, to a legislative retirement system, under which a legislator upon reaching age 62 or after 20 years of continuous services, which ever comes first, may retire with $225 a month pension.

The work in the Assembly is speeded up materially by use of a voting machine. Members push buttons for 'yes' or 'no' on their desks which is recorded on two large boards located in front of the assembly. When the final vote has been taken, the totals are flashed on top of the boards as well as on a smaller board on the Speaker's rostrum. Desks in the Assembly are in pairs and frequently a member will reach over and vote for his fellow legislator who is absent from his desk but is within the bar of the assembly. The Assembly meets in the morning and frequently continues its session until about 3 p.m. after which members attend committee meetings. The Senate does not take up until 2 p.m., leaving the senators free to attend morning or evening committee meetings. In the new $8,000,000 office building-type addition to the State House in Sacramento, offices are provided for members of the Legislature, with a private office handsomely equipped for the members in the rear and a reception office in the front. During interims between sessions, legislators use these offices for interim committee work which is gone in for heavily in California.

In a complaint filed in circuit court here. The plaintiff has named Frank W. Asp as defendant, for allegedly damaging collision at Second and Mary streets in Lebanon, August 2, 1952. She claims her hand was badly lacerated in the accident and as a result two fingers were amputated. The minimum purse at Delaware Park, where racing begins for 32 days on May 29, will be $3000. This is an increase of $500 over last year.
