Joseph Brenner, king pin of the Harvey Television KPIC left Salem Wednesday afternoon and was very much impressed with the city of Salem. Along with him he took the key to the city which Mayor Al Loucks gave him at the Television Association meeting Monday night. Brenner and Harold Jury, chief engineer of the station have been studying the various site prospects of the station tower.

Jury remained in Salem Wednesday and will leave either Thursday night or Friday. The survey which the team conducted while in Salem will be rechecked in Los Angeles and then the Harvey firm will secure the land and then make the announcement to the public.

Then he went on to say he has seen no evidence of such faith. The President recently said he was willing to accept Soviet peace overtures at face value.

His statement Thursday that there has been no evidence of good faith on the part of the Russians seemed to indicate a bit of impatience.

The President said emphatically, however, that he was willing to take almost any kind of a chance to promote peace in the world.

On other matters, Eisenhower:

1. Announced he will make a nation-wide radio address next Tuesday evening on the security of the nation as related to the federal budget and taxes. The hour for the speech has not been set.

2. Said he probably will make a nationwide report by television a week or so later. He said he had in mind a review of what has taken place during his brief administration.

3. Emphasized that his appointment of a new military high command in no way implies any criticism of the men who are being replaced on the

State Police to Put 50 More Men on Highways

By PAUL W. HARVEY JR.
(Associated Press Correspondent)

A 22 per cent increase in the number of state police officers on Oregon's highways will signal the start of a new effort to reduce the traffic accident toll.

The state police, which has 230 officers on the roads, will take on 50 more officers July 1. They will be given six months' training in all phases of law enforcement, and then will be assigned to highway patrol.

Men who have the responsibility of traffic safety like to talk about the three E's—Engineering, Education and Enforcement. It takes all three of these E's to have effective traffic safety.

The State Highway commission handles the engineering, laying out roads, installing signs and signals and marking highways, all with a view to making them safer.

The secretary of state handles the education, preparing publicity to convince drivers to be careful, examining drivers, and teaching people to become better drivers.

But all of this is useless unless the laws are enforced. And that's where the state political organization. There are 330 state police officers, but 90 of them are assigned to duties other than traffic. Every officer, regardless of his assignment, is prepared to handle any kind of law violation.

The new freeways, like the one being built between Portland and Salem, will create new enforcement problems because, in effect, a freeway is two highways. That's because freeways are divided in the middle.

On present roads, officers can handle traffic going in both directions. But on freeways, each officer can handle traffic going only in one direction, since he can't cross over into the opposing lane of traffic.

Maison says he won't have trouble getting new recruits, and the applications are flooding in. Morale in the state police is high, and the men are

PRICE! PERFORMANCE! BEAUTY! LONG LIFE!

4-Way Proof that Dollar for Dollar you can't beat a Pontiac

Here's how to prove Pontiac value:

First, get behind the wheel and drive it—see how Pontiac puts you out in front in traffic, skims you along the open road with surprising economy; how its big, husky high-compression engine provides power to spare.

Next, take a good long look at its distinctive styling and its luxurious color-matched interiors.

Consider, also, Pontiac's reputation for unsurpassed dependability, long-range economy and high resale value.

Finally, compare its low price—so low, in fact, that if you can afford any new car you can afford a Pontiac. Why not come in and see for yourself!

Linn Forests To Be Sprayed

Eugene — Aerial spraying of some 75,000 acres of Willamette National forest for spruce budworm control will start about June 10, according to J. R. Bruckart, forest supervisor.

He said the flying will be done by Bowler's Air Service of Orofino, Idaho, who entered a low bid of 39.9 cents per acre. The firm plans to use two Ford Trimotor planes and one Fokker for the job.

Most of the area to be covered lie in Linn county, on the upper North and South Santiam rivers. About 10,000 acres is along the headquarters of the McKenzie.

Bruckart expressed the hope that this year's spray campaign will wipe out the remaining spruce budworms in the Willamette National Forest. A total of 281,000 acres have been covered since 1950.

as a Senate committee voted earlier this week to do. The move to combine the bills was sponsored by Democrats and some congressional Republicans contend it was motivated by politics.
