Annual Out; Dances Are Scheduled

By ALICE LEBMAN (Special Journal Correspondent) Oregon State College, Corvallis (Special)—There seems to be nothing but rain in store for us as spring term ends in damp style. The latest splash on the campus, however, is the 1953 "Beaver." Seniors received the first shipment of the yearbooks yesterday. The annual this year is a volume of several hundred pages and the students are spending all of their free time looking over pictures of the year's activities, many of them bringing back memories of a wonderful school year.

This coming week-end finds many more house dances. The largest dance will be the annual Miami Triad, when the three fraternities, Beta Theta Pi, Phi Delta Theta and Sigma Chi, all founded at Miami university, join forces to give their spring dance. This year it will be in the Memorial Union ballroom. Another dance on the agenda is the Main Dorm dance. Every year the men of Main Dorm hold the "Archway Ball," a formal dance in the archway of the dorm. Stan Lyman of Salem is committee chairman for the affair.

Home economics seniors will be honored at a luncheon and convocation today. Introduction of Home Economics club officers and announcement of awards and scholarships will highlight the event. Home economics seniors from Salem are Leona Burgoyne, Diane Stoddy and Lorraine Welling.

The Business and Technology club is sponsoring a banquet tonight in honor of its seniors. They, too, will give awards for outstanding students in their field. Seniors from Salem in this school are Harney Rogers and Don Young.

Freshmen have now officially thrown away their rook "lids" and green ribbons. Usually the "burning of the green" is a part of the senior week-end activities, but it couldn't be worked in this year so the class planned their own festivities this past week. Also as a part of the affair is the women's football game between the freshmen and the sophomores. The freshmen won the gridiron battle this year. The men of the two classes tussled in a tug-o-war.

Spring football practice has come to an end. Several awards were made at the banquet following the last practice. The cup for the outstanding player of spring practice was awarded to Jim Rock of Salem.
