FROM Peg in Washington

BY ALENE (PEG) PHILLIPS

Washington, D. C., May 26

Dear Marian:

It has been a busy week again, but interesting and it has been fun.

Another Embassy tour attracted some of us Oregonians last Saturday and with Mrs. William B. Chandler of Hillsboro, my guest, we visited the English and Japanese Embassies and stood in line for more than an hour to enter the stately Georgian residence of the Arthur Gardiner, where Mrs. Eisenhower and Mrs. Nixon alternated in receiving the guests. The President's wife had left before we reached the line, but Mrs. Nixon was gracious in greeting the hordes. In the line at that time, too, was Mrs. William O. Douglas, whom Salem Alpha Phis recall as Mildred Riddle, of La Grande. Once before I visited the Japanese Embassy on a similar tour and mentioned to you its beautiful paintings and art treasures, including magnificent hand-embroidered screens. I wanted to go again for one picture more than anything else. It is "Pine Trees on the Beach" by Takan Yokoyama, possibly the most famous of all Japanese painters. I can't do it justice in description as it must be seen to be appreciated. While we didn't have time to cover the other four embassies, the tour of the British and Japanese and a visit to the famous Mosque now under construction as an Islamic Center were sufficiently satisfying for the time available. The Mosque is dazzling white with light blue inlay over the entrance. The British embassy, one of the most magnificent in architecture and appointments, was built in 1930. Royal portraits of kings and queens in their coronation robes are on the walls of the staircases; beautiful black and white flooring is a specialty of the architect, Sir Edwin Luytens; lovely gardens and trees and shrubs are on three levels surrounding the residence; antique British china and fine paintings grace the dining room and drawing room; and most magnificent of all, the ballroom with large mirrors in a gunmetal tone, three fabulous old crystal chandeliers, beautiful furniture with soft peach and pale green damask upholstery — all combine to make a room that is impressive but somehow not overpowering as some ceremonial rooms might be. A special feature in one room was a huge hand-tooled, colorful leather screen depicting the battle with the Spanish Armada.

Oregonians were many this last week which, of course, adds to the pleasure of working in Interior. Ivan Laird and Fred W. Adams, Oregon legislators from Coos and Curry counties, and C. W. Brooks, of Sixes, were members of one group who visited the Secretary, Mr. and Mrs. Lars Peterson, of Coquille, were in on their way to Copenhagen to visit relatives and to make a pilgrimage to his brother's grave in the Meuse-Argonne section. It seemed natural to see them coming into the office as we saw them rather frequently at the State Capitol since Mr. Peterson as a county commissioner had considerable business with state departments. Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton brought greetings from Salem. He mentioned that during the time he served as Assistant Solicitor in the Interior Department he had never been in the Secretary's private office but on this trip he was given the "deluxe tour." Among other visitors were: Senator John C. F. Merrifield, of Portland; Representative Joe Dyer, Astoria; Jap Elliott, former superintendent of Warm Springs reservation but now with Army Engineers, Portland; Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Kern, Portland, well known as former Salem residents; Miss Jessica Longston, editor of the St. Helens newspaper; James McDonald, British consul in Portland, enroute to the Coronation with Mrs. McDonald and their three children; Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Ballentyne, the latter a Secretary of State's office employee, visiting their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Holman, who are here during his Navy assignment; W. A. Burdick, Gold Beach, former member of the State Board of Pharmacy; Berkeley A. Davis, vice president of the Rogers Canning company at Milton and Pendleton; W. L. J. Davies and George A. D. Kerr, both vice presidents of the U. S. National of Portland, enjoying a visit with Secretary McKay.

With all that list for a single week you can understand why it doesn't seem so far across the continent. Of course, in addition we saw the familiar faces of at least a dozen public and private power officials from Oregon, here relative to contracts and for conferences scheduled for them. The General Federation of Women's clubs this week will bring more Oregonians to Washington. Don't you think it is time you joined the parade?
