Filbert Moth Spray Notice Released

The first spray or dust notice for filbert moth control dated July 21 has been released by Dr. S. C. Chang, entomologist at Oregon State College.

The recommended spray contains three pounds lead arsenate plus spreader in 100 gallons of water. For dusting, a 40 percent lead arsenate dust should be applied at the rate of 40 pounds per acre on mature plantings.

Dr. Chang reminds growers that egg laying by the female moths may occur within a day or so of the emergence date. The young worms may hatch from the eggs within a week. For this reason, sprays or dusts should be applied promptly.

Experience during recent years has shown that two applications of insecticides have been necessary for filbert moth control. A second spray or dust notice will be issued later. This notice will also contain suggestions for filbert blight control. No blight control materials are necessary in the first application.

"Such releases, made at various times for a period of nearly seven years, have contained material, much of which is irrelevant and immaterial, some of which is false and some of which is true, but all prepared in a way capable of creating the impression that I have been and am sympathetic to communism, and therefore subversive.

"I have been actively opposed to communism all my life. I have never been a member of the communist party. My opposition to communism is a matter of public record in books, addresses and sermons."

Farm Logging Now Hazardous

At the 1953 session of the Oregon Legislature, legislation was enacted to provide that logging and sawmilling on a farm, when performed by workmen other than those regularly employed as farm help, shall be deemed a hazardous occupation, beginning July 21, the State Industrial Accident Commission announced today.

This means that on or after today any farmer who employs workmen other than those regularly employed as farm help on his farm, to do any logging, sawmilling, or construction work on the farm shall be regarded as engaging in a hazardous operation according to the provisions of the amendment, and that such work will not be considered as incidental to farming. On or after July 21 all farmers who now have accounts with the State Industrial Accident Commission or who file for coverage with the commission after that date will have no protection as employers for any such hazardous work until a notice of engaging in such a hazardous occupation is filed by the farmer employer with the commission.

Assurances

At the truce site, things continued to move at a feverish pace, two days after the Communist agreement to go ahead with final preparations for signing an armistice.

Marine Col. James C. Murray, who heads the U. N. staff officer team working on the truce line, had to rush from the staff officer meeting today to attend the liaison meeting as chief Allied liaison officer.

Liaison Officers

The Allied and Communist liaison officers met 32 minutes and recessed without setting another meeting time. Liaison officers usually exchange communications for higher officers and arrange meetings of the full truce delegations.

After the liaison session, Col. Murray rushed back to the staff meeting.

At the same time, the other staff group, believed mapping the route to be used by neutral nations inspections and observer teams to and from the five ports of entry on each side, announced they had recessed with no further meeting scheduled.

Outside, a swarm of North Korean and Chinese workmen hurried to complete a building where the truce will be signed. They worked all through the night under floodlights put up for them by American soldiers.

Allied newsmen dubbed the one-story, T-shaped structure—largest in Panmunjom—"Armistice Hall."

The initial meeting of the committee has been called for Tuesday, July 28, at 1:30 p.m. in the state capitol in Salem.

The governor also announced appointment of Chester S. Benson and Lawrence F. Barber of Portland to serve on the interim committee to study economic values and recreational facilities of the Columbia river.

Lay members of a committee to study purchase or construction of an appropriate building for state-aided organizations whose purpose is collecting and preserving historical material of Oregon and the Pacific Northwest was also announced by the governor. These members include Miss Eleanor Stephens, state librarian, Salem; Phil Brogan, Bend; David L. Davies, Portland; Robert B. Wilson, Madras; Mrs. Claire Hanley, Medford and Fred Meek, Portland. This group will serve with legislative members already appointed including Sens. Dean Walker, Independence and John C. F. Merrifield, Portland; and Reps. Carroll Locey, Ironside, E. R. Mann, Medford and Monroe Sweetland, Milwaukie.

Income Taxes

Even with the drop in excess of $2½ millions in income tax collections, the returns are approximately $900,000 in excess of estimates given to the legislature by the tax commission.

The commission faces a difficult task in connection with setting the levy due to the uncertainty of the future business, particularly the timber business in Oregon.

While the timber, lumber and allied industries, from which about 35 per cent of all corporate taxes are collected, has held up in volume, profits have been on the downward trend.

Peer into Future

The question faces the tax experts is to endeavor to estimate if this drop in profits in this, one of the most important industries of the state, will continue and how much it will affect both personal and income tax collections in the next year.

The commission expects to have its report on the levy published next week, in which an anaylsis will be made of this situation, Smith said.

U. S. to Oppose

The House voted unanimously Tuesday against admission of Red China to membership in the United Nations. By a roll call vote of 379-0, it approved a Senate amendment to the State Department's appropriation bill expressing the feeling of Congress that Communist China shouldn't be admitted.

The expression has no binding legal effect, merely being a formal statement of how Congress feels about the matter. The United Nations alone decides what nations shall be admitted to membership.

President Eisenhower conferred for 15 minutes Tuesday with Asst. Secretary of State Walter Robertson, who returned from Korea last week after talks with South Korean President Syngman Rhee.

Robertson was accompanied to the White House by Dulles.

Dulles avoided any predictions about the outcome of the armistice negotiations. He said a number of matters remained to be ironed out, such as the mapping of battle lines, physical arrangements for handling war prisoners and the problems of translations.

He said these ought not to be insoluble if there is a real will to have an armistice, but he added quickly that whether the Communists have this will is not certain.

Bar Exams Held—State Bar examinations were given here Tuesday to 170 law school graduates who want to be lawyers. The examinations, held in the legislative chambers, will end Wednesday.
